AMERICA DROPS CAPACITY BASIS IN DEBTS POLICY

Quid Pro Quo Principle to Enter Conference Here in March.

LINDSAY AND ROSSO ARE AMONG CALLERS

State Department Visitors; Defaulting Nations Are Likely to Wait.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Preparations for the Anglo-American debt conference here in March proceeded actively yesterday on both sides of the Atlantic. Out of all the consultations that marked the debt developments of the last 24 hours, the following salient principles emerged:

First, that the forthcoming debt discussions will veer away from the "capacity to pay" principle, which has heretofore been the touchstone of the deliberations;

Second, that the debt discussions will now be predicted upon a "quid pro quo" principle, which will take into consideration the various economic advantages deemed necessary for the general economic improvement of the world.

Third, the President-elect through his assistants, Profs. Raymond T. Moley and R. C. Tugwell, will keep in touch with the Department of State until such time as the President-elect has announced his own Secretary of State, who will then work in with the negotiations of Col. Stimson.

Lindsay Is Visitor.

The uncertainty which has kept the British cabinet from taking a definite step with regard to the Roosevelt invitation is believed to have sent British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay to the State Department yesterday where he was with Assistant Secretary H. H. Bundy.

The London Daily Mail this morning says that Premier Ramsay MacDonald plans to come to the United States toward the end of next month to prepare for the discussions.

The text of the Roosevelt invitation and its reference to the World Economic Conference created the interpretation in London that the debt conference also was to be an economic discussion, a forerunner, if not some-

Texas to Pick Garner's Successor on April 15

Austin, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The Texas Legislature passed a bill today providing for special elections in the Fifteenth Congressional District to choose a successor to Speaker John N. Garner, the Vice President-elect.

Under present plans, the first Democratic primary would be called for February 25, the run-off for March 18 and the final election for April 15. The bill also proposed to validate the election next Saturday to select a successor to the late Representative Daniel E. Garrett, of Houston.

Present Lame Duck Session Will Be Last

Missouri Gains Honor of 36th Ratification; May Be Unanimous.

(Associated Press.)

After ten years of trying, and a hundred of waiting, the United States modernized its political machine yesterday by eliminating defeated officials—the "lame ducks"—from government.

A twentieth amendment was written into the Constitution declaring that after this year both the President and the newly chosen members of Congress shall take office the January following November's election, and that the old-time short session which for so long has clogged the political machinery with its ineffectiveness, shall be held no more. The present one is the last.

Thirty-six States of the Union ratified the amendment in less than one-tenth the time it took to convince Congress that the country demanded abolition of this lumbering antiquity.

Missouri completed the ratification, seizing the distinction of being thirty-sixth approving State by a wide-awake maneuver. Its House was to meet at 2 o'clock to act on the amendment, already approved by the Missouri Senate. The Massachusetts House was to do exactly the same thing, but had the one-hour advantage of being in the Eastern time zone. The Missouri speaker rounded up his members for a 10 o'clock in the morning session, and the job was done immediately.

Later in the day, though no more were needed, Ohio, Georgia and Utah

Roosevelt Made Happy Despite Shorter Term

Warm Springs, Ga., Jan. 23 (A. P.).—News that the constitutional amendment abolishing "lame duck" sessions of Congress had been ratified by the required 36 States brought an expression of satisfaction today from President-elect Roosevelt.

"That makes me very happy," he told newspapermen, "because the State of New York was the first legally to ratify the amendment. Virginia stole the march on us and ratified it before receiving the official resolution from the Secretary of State. We waited for the resolution."

The amendment will cut short by almost two months Mr. Roosevelt's term of office, for the next President will be inducted in January rather than in March.

CAPITAL BANK BANDIT GANG PLEADS GUILTY

Four Wanted in Mechanics Savings Holdups Face New York Sentences.

The gang of bank robbers that terrorized Eastern bankers for the past year and who were identified as the men who held up two branches of the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, sought refuge from District authorities by pleading guilty to third-degree robbery charges while on trial in New York yesterday.

Two of the men have been positively identified by witnesses as the bandits who held up the East Capitol street branch of the bank on January 7, 1932, robbing it of $14,135, and robbing the Georgia avenue branch on June 10 last of $9,031.

The men interrupted their trial on bank robbery charges in General Sessions Court and entered pleas of guilty to third degree robbery while armed. They were accused of having robbed the Seward National Bank and Trust Co., in New York, in 1930.

By an odd coincidence, Detective Sergts. Floyd A. Truscott and F. O. Brass arrived in New York yesterday morning with witnesses of the two bank holdups in the District, who had identified the pictures of two of the men as those who participated in the robberies.

The men are Barney Niefeld, 35 years old; Samuel Rubin, 39 years

Bill Would Repay Lost G.P.O. Leave

Shipstead Resolution to Equalize Economy Act Offered Senate.

Employes of the Government Printing Office would get all earned accrued leave due them in 1932, but denied them by the economy act, under a resolution introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota.

Government Printing Office employes consistently have complained that the economy act discriminated against them in the matter of leave. It had been the custom of this agency to award leave only after an employe had earned a full 30 days.

The Shipstead resolution would reappropriate money saved from operation of the payless furlough, and authorize the public printer to use it to reimburse employes, denied leave coming to them for the twelve months ended last July.

Carload of "Bones" Found to Be Rum

$50,000 Shipment From Cuba Is Seized in Hoboken.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—A carload of "bones," on consignment from Cuba to an unknown New York purchaser, was opened today by customs agents in Hoboken and found to be liquors valued at $50,000.

The bottles were buried under a thin covering of bones.

Fully loaded freight cars of bones for use as fertilizer are brought into port almost daily. When a shipment was run onto tracks last Thursday, one car was much heavier than the others. It was shunted onto a siding. No one called for it and today it was opened.

TRUESDALE SCHOOL CALLED DANGEROUS

Faulty Heating Plant Cited; Investigation Ordered at House Hearing.

Charges of shockingly insanitary conditions at the George Truesdale School, where fumes from a faulty heating plant, overcrowded classrooms and a "firetrap" attic allegedly endanger the health of 250 elementary grade children, were made yesterday before the House District Appropriations subcommittee.

Mrs. H. P. Clarke, president of the Truesdale Parent-Teacher Association, and Mrs. N. P. O'Connell, legislative chairman, impressed subcommittee members with a picture of conditions at the school, for which no provision was made in the 1934 budget.

Chairman Clarence Cannon immediately called on Commissioner Luther C. Reichelderfer, who attended the hearing, to make an investigation and report back to the subcommittee.

Mrs. Clarke disclosed that only last week an assistant janitor was overcome by gases emanating from the building's ancient hot-air heating plant. She said teachers comment on the "dopey" appearance of some of the children after they remained any length of time in the building.

Mrs. Clarke, who has headed the parent-teacher group for 17 years, said a year ago every member of one kindergarten class was absent for sickness at one time. Only recently, when water was found seeping through the wooden floor of their former classroom, was the cause discovered, she testified.

The parent-teacher worker said this classroom is now being used as a lunchroom, but shortly will be used for teaching purposes again. She said there is another classroom in

Four Army Fliers Escape in Crack-Up

Leap to Safety Before Craft Crashes and Burns Near Wheeling.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Four Army fliers narrowly escaped death today as their plane crashed on the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad tracks, 6 miles north of Wheeling.

Lieut. C. R. Hoffman was piloting the plane and those with him were Alfred Troy and W. T. Forner, privates, and Sergt. Andrew Ontko. All are from Langley Field.

The accident occurred just across the State line, in Ohio, shortly after the fliers took off after picking up Sergt. Ontko, who had been visiting a brother at Steubenville. As the plane came down, all four occupants leaped to safety just before it crashed. The plane caught fire and was destroyed. Lieut. Hoffman and the privates were returning to Langley Field from Dayton.

U. S. Envoy to Mexico Will Quit Post Feb. 14

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 23 (A.P.). J. Reuben Clark, jr., American Ambassador to Mexico, will leave Mexico City February 14 to return to this city and resume his law practice, friends here reported today.

Mr. Clark succeeded the late Dwight W. Morrow as ambassador in October, 1930. He previously had served as private counsel to Mr. Morrow. Mr. Clark is a Republican.

TOKYO-U.S. WAR WARNING MADE BY DIET LEADER

UCHIDA DENIES ACTS OPPOSED BY PEOPLE

Party Chief Decries Strained Relations With America and Arms Race.

Tokyo, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The spokesman for one of Japan's principal political parties declared in the Diet today that unless relations between Japan and the United States are improved they will produce renewed armaments competition and possibly a world war.

This statement was made by Hitoshi Ashida, formally chosen spokesman for the Seiyukai party, who delivered the boldest criticism of the current military domination of Japanese diplomacy heard in Parliament since the Manchurian conflict began in September, 1931.

In response to Mr. Ashida's assertion that "a gloomy situation" rules between Japan and America, the foreign minister, Count Yasyua Uchida, declared that "there is no uneasiness concerning our relations with the United States."

"Being Dragged Blindly."

Rising in the Diet to question the government concerning its foreign policy, Mr. Ashida pointed out that when the foreign minister addressed the Parliament on Saturday he did not mention American relations, which Mr. Ashida considered "were not in a condition warranting contentment."

The Seiyukai spokesman questioned the desirability of the army's domination of diplomacy and asserted that the public was afraid that "we are being dragged blindly into an uncharted pitch-dark abyss."

He urged Gen. Sadao Araki, the minister of war, to "forsake the notion that the army is almighty."

His criticism was directed against the methods and not against the substance of the government's policy in Manchuria. Count Uchida responded that the foreign policy was conducted "in accordance with the will of the

Deputies Reject Cheron Program

French Cabinet May Fall if Budget Balancing Vote Is Taken.

Paris, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Overthrow of the present cabinet over the budget by the end of the week was freely predicted in well-informed quarters tonight.

The finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies continued to throw out provisions insisted upon by Finance Minister Henry Cheron, and it was doubted the chamber would support him if he stands with Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour, for a vote of confidence on the budget.

Cheron's proposals to reduce war department appropriations, including pensions, and salaries for civil service workers were summarily rejected. He had declared these provisions essential to balance the budget.

School Board Unit Report Raps Cadet Reorganization

Student Activities Committee Spurns Proposal for Sweeping Changes as Urged by Dr. John C. Eckhardt; Decision Awaits Final Approval.

As you were!

This order is expected to be given the Washington High School cadet corps by the Board of Education as the result of a meeting yesterday afternoon of the student activities committee of the board, school executives and school officials, which was called to study the recommendations of Dr. John C. Eckhardt for a sweeping reorganization of the cadet corps.

Meeting behind closed doors in compliance with a request of the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, chairman of the student activities committee, that reporters be excluded so that "the cadet situation might be discussed more freely," the committee and school heads heard the prescription for reorganization offered by Dr. Eckhardt and then received an account of just how the cadet corps is being conducted from Col. Wallace M. Craigie, military instructor in charge of the cadets, and from the school principals.

Dr. Eckhardt declared there are inequities in the cadet system and recommended that there be a more even distribution of students from various classes in the companies. He also recommended that the companies formed in February to accommodate incoming students be abolished.

It was Dr. Eckhardt's contention that each company contain the same number of fourth, third, second and first year men, the same number of tall men and the same number of short men. February recruits, he said, should be equally divided between all the companies at their individual high schools according to size. All recruits throughout the year, after the first organization,

Discovered

Ruins of Ancient Persian Cities and Sculptures Called Greatest.

Chicago, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Scientists' flashlights played tonight over ruins of an ancient city that Alexander the Great burned at the whim of a starry-eyed daughter of the magi centuries ago.

In the heart of modern Persia, where 3,000 years ago the fire-worshipers built their pyres on the Iranian Plateau at the behest of Zoroaster, comes to the light of modern science one of the most significant scientic discoveries of the age.

Under the shovels of the Persian expedition of the University of Chicago appear tell-tale stones and metal relics of a brilliant era at history's dawn during which splendid cities rose from the dust only to fade into the legends of the Arabian Nights and the raids of Kubla Khan and Attila, the Hun.

Discovery has just been announced at the University of Chicago by Dr. James H. Breasted, director of the Oriental Institute of the University, of sculpture dating from the Golden Age of the Persians.

Sculptures unearthed at Persepolis, the Versailles of the ancient Persians, by Dr. Ernst Herzfeld, of the institute's field force, were described by Dr. Breasted as "the greatest and most important discovery in the history of archeological research anywhere."

INFLATION WARNING IS ISSUED BY MILLS

Such Proposal Tends to Hurt Confidence, He Tells House Group.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

An emphatic warning against inflation of the currency was sounded before the House Banking and Currency Committee yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury, Ogden L. Mills, who was the first witness called in hearings on extension of the Glass-Steagall bill for another year.

This amendment, passed as an emergency measure a year ago, authorized the Federal Reserve banks to substitute Government bonds for commercial paper in backing the national currency, thus releasing some $700,000,000 in gold. Extension of the measure beyond its March expiration is necessary to enable the Federal Reserve system to continue its easy-money policy as a safeguard against the threatened stagnation of commercial credits throughout the country.

In discussing inflationary proposals projected by Representatives Jeff Busby, of Mississippi; T. Alan Goldsborough, of Maryland, and other Democratic members of the Banking Committee, Secretary Mills said the step was wholly unnecessary and hinted the continued public discussion of such proposals on Capitol Hill is having a depressing effect on business confidence generally.

He declared also that inflationary proposals at this time, when tremendous Federal bond issues are necessary to finance the national deficit, tend to undermine investment

Robbers Kidnap Banker And Girl; Take $2,000

Vermillion, S. Dak., Jan. 23 (A.P.). The Citizens Bank & Trust Co. was held up today by four men, who obtained between $2,000 and $3,000 and made their escape in a sedan.

The robbers kidnaped President Cheney, the assistant cashier and a girl stenographer, but released them on the outskirts of town.

QUALIFIED BEER BILL VOTED AND SENT TO SENATE

Restrictions in 3.05 Brew and Wine Proposal Stir Confusion.

ADVERTISING BY RADIO AND MINOR SALE OUT

Garner Hopeful of Compromise in 2 Houses' Plans if Upper Body Acts.

(United Press.)

The Senate received yesterday from its judiciary committee a 3.05 per cent beer and wine bill so closely hedged about with restrictions on advertising and sale as to create further confusion over the legislation.

The measure, reported to the Senate by an 8-to-6 vote, bars beer or wine advertising in dry States. This means that the radio is prohibited from all such advertising, since its waves reach in all directions, and that only newspapers which do not go beyond the borders of wet States can advertise the beverage. The bill forbids sale to minors.

Immediately House members commented that the emphasis on restrictions led to the inference that the beer mentioned in the bill is intoxicating. Some added that this would give drys more ammunition in their fight against it.

Comment on Restrictions.

"It is inferentially an admission that the beer is intoxicating," said House Democratic Floor Leader Henry T. Rainey.

The House bill, which legalizes beer of 3.2 per cent and excludes wine, also prohibits advertising and sale to minors, merely by not touching present provisions of the Volstead act. But it was the intention of House leaders to change the measure when it returned to the House to permit advertising of the new beverage. They said this had been overlooked when the bill was before them.

The Senate now has raised and stressed the issue. There was much ironic comment yesterday about the restrictions since the Senate committee went so assiduously through authoritative works on intoxication and then guaranteed, in its published report that the 3.05 per cent figure is "nonintoxicating."

Drys recently have made a point of advertising the beverage, picturing the family about the fireside with the children listening to beer advertisements over the radio.

Vote of Committee.

The committee vote yesterday was:

For the bill—Senators Blaine, Wisconsin; Norris, Nebraska; Hebert, Rhode Island; Schuyler, Colorado, Republicans, and Ashurst, Arizona; Walsh, Montana; King Utah; Dill, Washington, Democrats.

Against—Senators Borah, Idaho; Robinson, Indiana; Hastings, Delaware; Austin, Vermont, Republicans; and Bratton, New Mexico, and Neely, West Virginia, Democrats.

Senator Blaine formally reported the beer bill to the Senate and im-

Two Are Arraigned In D. C. 'Extortion'

Brothers Charged With Writing Threat Letter to Banker's Wife.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Michael Metrovich, 18, and his brother, William, 19, both of Arkon, Ohio, were arraigned today before United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter charged with use of the mails to extort money by threats.

The youths waived examination and in default of bail of $1,000 each were taken to the Federal House of Detention to await action of the grand jury.

They were charged with having, on January 17, posted a letter addressed to Mrs. O. H. P. Johnson, 2305 Massachusetts avenue, Washington D. C., with intent to defraud. A postoffice inspector and a detective charged the prisoners demanded $200 from Mrs. Johnson and threatened to expose the fact that her brother, Alan Hemmick, was employed at an emergency relief job, if she failed to remit.

DISTRICT AID FACING HOOVER VETO PERIL

McKellar Amendment Is Said to Be Frowned Upon by White House.

District emergency relief operations, which seemed assured of $625,000 forthcoming immediately after House and Senate passed the first deficiency bill, faced a new hazard last night.

Reports were current in congressional circles that President Hoover will veto the deficiency measure because of opposition to the McKellar amendment. It requires review by a joint congressional committee of all refunds in excess of $20,000.

Local relief money was completely exhausted more than a week ago, but activities have been carried on in the expectation that funds voted by Congress would soon be available.

Indications were local welfare authorities would be seriously embarrassed by a White House veto, aimed primarily at another provision of the bill. Even if both houses of Congress were to override the suggested veto by a two-thirds vote, several days delay at least would be involved.

Members of Congress close to the President expressed the belief he will veto the measure. An opinion to the President, holding the McKellar amendment unconstitutional, is said

Luke Lea and Son Ordered Arrested

Carolina Seeks Extradition on Convictions of Bank Fraud.

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Luke Lea and his son were in Nashville, Tenn., today when called to surrender in court here under convictions of bank law violations, and capiases for their arrests were ordered while extradition machinery was set in motion.

The 54-year-old Nashville newspaper publisher, former Tennessee senator and Army colonel, and his son, Luke Lea, jr., are under sentence in this State of conspiracy to defraud the now defunct Central Bank & Trust Co. of Asheville of nearly $1,000,000.

The father was sentenced in 1931 to 6 to 10 years and his son to 2 to 6 years with an option of paying $25,000 in fines and costs.

C. M. T. C. PUT IN HOUSE BILL; FUND BOOSTED

Chamber Drubs Collins Twice; He Faces New Battle Today.

TOTAL ARMY AMOUNT INCREASED $3,000,000

Fight Looms on Proposal to "Wipe Out" U.S. Uniform-Making Factory.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Given two drubbings by the House yesterday, Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the War Department appropriations subcommittee and arch enemy of the Army, is to be confronted with another battle today, this time over fundamental principles which should govern the labor standards of the Government.

The House overrode recommendations of the appropriations committee, framed by Mr. Collins, on two occasions yesterday and increased the total so far approved for the Army by $3,000,000. It voted $2,500,000 for continuation of citizens' military training camps, despite the protestations of Mr. Collins that the object could be better achieved through lesser expenditures on the National Guard, and voted to increase appropriations for the organized reserves to $6,354,000, an increase of $572,000 above the limits fixed by Mr. Collins. Both increases were on motions by Representative Henry E. Barbour (Republican), of California.

Faces Another Fight.

The first fight which Mr. Collins will have to face when consideration of the bill is resumed today will come on a motion to be made by Representative Harry C. Ransley (Republican), of Pennsylvania, to strike out of the bill a Collins proposal which representatives of labor contend is based on an improper conception of the Government's responsibility to labor and the American standard of living.

Mr. Collins' subcommittee, with the approval of the majority of the full appropriations committee, inserted in the bill a provision which it is said will practically wipe out the Government uniform-making factory in Philadelphia and turn the work over to sweat-shop operators in the needle trades, who are employing child labor and paying starvation wages.

Representatives of the private operators have been present about the House Office Building and the halls of the Capitol for several days, button-holing members and seeking their support of the Collins amendment. Among these private seekers of uniform contracts are some whose operations have come in for widespread public notice in the past.

Provision Limiting Work.

The blow at the Government plant, which under the law has had to compete with private bidders for its work, is contained in a Collins provision limiting the work which it may do now, to not more than 10 per cent of

CANADA WINS CASE IN SUPREME COURT

U. S. Seizure of Rum Ship Is Ruled International Treaty Violation.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court yesterday held international treaties above domestic law, ruling that British and Canadian rum-running vessels can not be seized if they are more than one hour's sailing from the American shore, even though inside the 12-mile limit prescribed by the tariff act.

The decision, disallowing the seizure of the Nova Scotia runner Mazeltov off Massachusetts in 1930, possibly averted serious friction with Canada. The latter last December informed the State Department that unless the policy laid down yesterday by the highest court were followed, the Canadian government would regard the antismuggling treaty with this country as practically nullified.

Justices Sutherland and Butler dissented from the majority opinion of the court, written by Justice Brandeis. They said the treaty of 1924 was not intended to abrogate rights claimed by this Government over a long period, but that the pact was drawn to extend those rights to enable the United States more effectively to enforce its liquor laws.

Justice Brandeis, however, pointed out that the tariff act provisions were first written in 1922. The treaty came two years later in the wake of a series of protests from Great Britain over the seizing of her ships outside the 3-mile territorial limit recognized by international law. The 1930 law, Brandeis said, was simply a rewriting of that of 1922, and there was nothing to show that Congress intended it to change the treaty in any way.

Ottawa, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—General satisfaction was expressed today over the finding of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of the Nova Scotian vessel Mazel Tov.

The famous I'm Alone case which some years ago was referred to arbitrators is not affected by this ruling. In that case it was a question of continuous pursuit and a difference of opinion as to how close to shore the pursuit must be started and the conditions which make the pursuit continuous.

Photographs Are Pouring in To Post's Contest Editor

Every One, Whether Received to Date or Sent in Between Now and End of Competition, Will Have Same Chance for Prizes.

Photographs of the most charming girls in the world are pouring by the basketful into The Washington Post's "Queen" contest department, but the one who will win fame and fortune and rule over a court of 50 as the Century of Progress Exposition throws wide its doors this June is all unaware as yet of her exciting destiny. Nobody knows—not yet.

It is just as possible that the girl whose picture will be singled out for the grand prize of $5,000 and the title of Queen has not as yet sent in her photograph as that it is already receiving the admiration of the contest staff.

Beginning next Sunday and continuing each Sunday for ten weeks, ten photographs that have been entered in this contest will be reproduced in the Rotogravure Section of The Sunday Post. Such publication does not imply that the subject has a greater opportunity to win one of the large cash awards, but merely that the photograph submitted was particularly suited for reproduction. For each picture so printed The Washington Post will pay $5 for the privilege of its use.

Every picture entered in the contest, however, will receive the same careful attention of the judges, who will select 51 charming girls to officiate at the opening of the great World's Fair at Chicago. From one of this group will be selected a queen who also will receive $5,000 in cash. The next two girls in the order of their selection will receive $3,000 and $2,000, respectively.

All of the 51 girls will be the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune at the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago during the first two weeks of June. Every expense of their transportation, residence at the finest hotels, entertainment, &c., under proper chaperonage, will be paid by these newspapers. In addition, each girl will be beautifully gowned by leading modistes and will receive international recognition for charming femininity.

The opportunity to share in these great honors and cash awards is offered equally to every unmarried girl, wherever she may reside. Only professionals, such as stage girls and artists' models, together with employes of The Washington Post and members of their families are barred from competition.

It is emphasized that this is a contest conducted under rules that will keep it above the rating of the usual tawdry bathing beauty competition. The winner must be qualified by her femininity and attractive appearance rather than by perfection of face or figure.

To enter, it is merely necessary to submit a photograph, at least 6 by 8 inches in size, that has been taken within the last 12 months. The picture should be accompanied by the transmittal coupon which is printed in the three-column announcement that appears elsewhere in this paper today, or by the same information written upon a separate sheet of paper. Either the subject herself or some friend or relative may submit the picture.

This latter provision makes it possible for employes of Government establishments, stores or offices and for women's organizations or schools to submit their favorite candidate to share in the unusual honors and financial rewards that will be paid to 51 charming girls.

BASIS OF CAPACITY TO PAY IS DROPPED FOR CONFERENCE

thing more important, for the World Economic Conference.

The same uncertainty was behind the visit of Italian Ambassador Augusto Rosso. It was believed that the Italian government will not immediately undertake revision of the $2,000,000,000 Italian debt to the United States by requesting similar action as the British. In any event, when the moment arrives for a new discussion of the capital sum of Italy's American debt, the negotiations will be largely under the guidance of the new Ambassador. Signor Rosso is one of the great authorities on disarmament at the League of Nations and his protracted delay in rejoining his post here was due to the inability of the Italian government to find another diplomat who could take his place in the Geneva discussions on disarmament, as well as on reparations.

Could Be Comprised.

Furthermore, the negotiations could be comprised within the instructions with which Ambassador Rosso came to this country. He would be assisted by some Italian economic experts, but in the main the actual discussion of the debt revision would probably be handled by him. No action, however, is contemplated at present by the Italian government until the terms of the Anglo-American debt accord are definitely drawn up. Undoubtedly, immediately afterward, the government of Mussolini likewise will request a definitive settlement of the war debt. Thereafter, the other nations which settled their interest or principal payments on December 15, like Czechoslovakia, Finland and Lithuania, will be able to take up the adjustment of their individual debt to this country.

Belgian Ambassador Paul May also called at the Department of State yesterday and remained with Undersecretary Castle for some time. It is understood that his conversations embraced the situation created by the Roosevelt invitation for those countries like his own and France, which did not pay their December 15 debts. The President-elect's invitation made no provision for the defaulting countries and in the absence of any specific directions from the incoming administration, the Department of State is taking a perfunctory role in merely passing on to the President-elect or his representatives any such inquiries. In any event, it is believed likely that the defaulting countries will have to await the settlement of the debts of the others. The imminence of a change of government in France, where the majority of Premier Paul Boncour seems daily dwindling away, has prevented the decision of the Chamber of Deputies in favor of the deferred payment. It is believed that with a stable majority and a strong government in office the necessary votes can be obtained to make possible the payment of $20,000,000.

Actual Negotiation Waits.

The activities of the Department of State at present are mainly concerned with the interpretation of the Roosevelt communique for the various queries that are officially made either to the Secretary or to his assistants. Actual negotiation will naturally have to be held up until March 4, or at least until the Roosevelt Secretary of State has been named. As soon as this step is taken the foreign governments can begin to plan more definitely their debt campaign here.

The change of American debt policy from the old "capacity to pay" basis to the new immediate "quid pro quo" basis will work to the advantage of a debtor country like Great Britain. The effects of the imperial conference tariffs have added to the general economic distress of American manufacturers.

President-elect Roosevelt has often indicated in his speeches and in his more recent telegraphic replies to the White House invitations his belief in a new economic approach to the problems of the intergovernmental debts. He likewise has an exact appreciation of the predominating influence of the debt problems in the general discussion of world economic problems. Therefore, he has linked the two problems together in his invitation to the British government, and similar methods will be employed in the debt discussions with other countries.

PRESENT LAME DUCK SESSION TO BE LAST; MISSOURI RATIFIES

added their ratifications, bringing the total to 39. Massachusetts and Nevada, which also had hoped for the thirty-sixth place, postponed final action. There were prospects, however, that this might become the one amendment to be ratified by unanimous vote of the 48 States. Every legislature that has not ratified already is now in session.

Though actually part of the Constitution already, the amendment will not be proclaimed in force until the Secretary of State receives the thirty-sixth formal record of State action. By its own terms it will not take effect until October 15.

After this year, when the people record their will at the ballot box in November the men they send to Congress will begin to function within two months. Hitherto the new representatives have had to twiddle their thumbs for 13 months—until December of the next year—while the country has been given legislation sponsored, framed and put through in part by men who have been specifically repudiated by the voters.

Norris Is Jubilant.

Senator George Norris, Nebraska's independent warrior, put the amendment through Congress last March.

He was confident yesterday the amendment would end such spectacles as the Senate filibuster of the last two weeks, for filibusters, justified or otherwise, thrive on lack of time and from now on Congress will have no set adjournment day.

It will meet every year on January 3. The President will take office every four years on January 20. The seventeen-day difference is to give Congress time to canvass and certify the election results.

The popularity of the change has been attested by the speed with which States have acted. Virginia ratified without even waiting to get a copy of the proposal. Seventeen States had ratified before last summer's campaigns. The remaining ratifications have all come since legislative sessions began again the first week of this month.

In discarding the influence of defeated officials, the new amendment carries with it a train of new difficulties which are going to keep Presidents and legislators worried.

By it the President loses irrevocably the peace, relative though it is, that may now be had as he begins a term with no legal compulsion to call Congress in session until nine months after inauguration.

How important to a new Chief Executive is a breathing spell at the beginning is shown by the fact that special sessions when called usually start in June, or at the earliest in April. Even now that such a session is unavoidable this year, Franklin D. Roosevelt wants a six weeks' period of adjustment, and the probable meeting date is around April 20.

Position of President.

Beginning with the next inauguration, the President will find Congress already in session two weeks, doubtless organized and working to some extent upon its own and his legislative ideas. It will include, usually, many new members not schooled in parliamentary tricks nor broken in to acceptance of discipline at the hands of party leaders, but fresh from the campaign of the preceding autumn.

That session will have major work to do. It must, between January and the end of June, shape up the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. A new President and his new officials will have to propose revenues and expenditures and get them through Congress within that time. Up to now the job has been done by the retiring administration.

The Democrats in this Congress have decided to pass the appropriations only and let the revenue end be taken care of later. But the groundwork of budgetary study, no matter how many conclusions may be discarded, has been laid by the outgoing administration.

By taking office only two months after election instead of four, the new President will have to do much studying and cramming on current affairs to be ready to go into action the moment he takes office. The preparation will have to be shared by a crew of aids ready not only to manage departments and bureaus, but to present their needs and defend their estimates before congressional committees.

GLASS BILL BALLOT EXPECTED TONIGHT

Factional Leaders Agree to Keep Senate in Session Till Vote Is Taken.

(Associated Press.)

Currency inflation through remonetization of silver arose as the last big obstacle in the path of the Glass banking reform bill last night as factional leaders reached an informal understanding to hold the Senate in session tonight to reach a final vote.

Senators Long, of Louisiana, and Wheeler, of Montana, Democratic liberals who have fought the measure, but who now are willing for it to face the final test after considerable revision, both proposed silver riders at the last minute yesterday.

Wheeler offered as an amendment his bill providing for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 with gold, and said he would speak on it the first thing today.

The Montanan proposed it as a substitute for the Long amendment, which is similar to the Cross bill in the House. This would provide for remonetization at a ratio of about 14 or 15 to 1 by calling for Federal purchase of silver bullion and the issuance of silver certificates whenever 371.25 grains of fine silver is less in value than 25.8 grains of gold, nine-tenths fine.

See Early Showdown.

With these amendments voted on, party leaders last night predicted the Glass bill would be about ready for a final showdown.

While no formal agreement was entered into, Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, commended Glass for this move and later predicted the vote could be had sometime tonight, if not sooner.

The bill withstood attacks from two sources yesterday when the Senate rejected, 62 to 14, an amendment by Long to kill the provision that the Secretary of the Treasury be removed from the Federal Reserve Board.

It also turned down without a roll call a change suggested by Senator Metcalf (Republican), Rhode Island, to require the Government to provide the entire capital stock of a proposed corporation to liquidate the assets of closed bnaks without the help of Federal Reserve and member bank subscriptions.

Metcalf Ignored.

Approval was voted an amendment by Glass himself to provide that the Government subscribe instead of appropriate $125,000,000 of the corporation's capital stock.

This left unchanged the rest of the section which Metcalf wanted stricken out and which require the Federal Reserve Bank to provide about $65,000,000 of the capital from its surplus funds and the member banks to furnish about $75,000,000, or about one-fourth of 1 per cent of their total deposits.

"This will be no burden whatever on the Federal Reserve system," Glass contended.

Metcalf had argued some of the weaker member banks might not be in a position to subscribe to the corporation's stock.

Columbia Spurns Technocracy Idea

Repudiates Howard Scott, but Will Continue Industrial Probe.

New York, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Columbia University tonight repudiated Howard Scott, disavowed technocracy, and withdrew all support for the theories and "laboratory work" under his direction.

In a manifesto signed by four of the one-time "key men" surrounding Scott, headed by Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch, announcement was made that study of some phases of industrial research would be continued, but that "we are withdrawing from association with technocracy."

Such research as is continued, into natural resources and industrial changes, will be conducted "by a new organization, under another name." The announcement was signed by Rautenstrauch, hitherto one of Scott's most vigorous supporters, and by Bassett Jones, Frederick L. Ackerman, New York architect, and Leon Henderson, of the Russell Sage Foundation. It was made in the Engineering Hall at Columbia, following a noon-day meeting of professors at the Engineers Club.

Indiana to Ask Congress To Modify Volstead Act

Indianapolis, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The House of the Indiana General Assembly today voted concurrently in a Senate resolution memoralizing Congress to modify the Volstead act. The resolution, having passed both House and Senate, will now be sent to Congress.

It urges that Congress make such changes in the National prohibition law as are possible under the Constitution and which will "concretely reflect the liberal tendencies of the country."

Hoover Wire Used In Movie Swindle

Investors Lost $3,000,000 When "Clean Picture" Campaign Failed.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Evidence introduced in the trial of nine persons charged with mail fraud today included a clipping from a New York newspaper, which contained the text of a condolence telegram from President Hoover.

The Government charged that salesmen for the National Diversified Corporation used the clippings to promote stock sales in the concern. The telegram referred to the death of Conde B. Fallen, who was president of the company.

The indictments of the nine persons on trial alleged mail fraud in the conduct of a "clean motion picture" movement, which, it was charged, resulted in the loss of $3,000,000 to Catholic investors. Thomas A. Lynn, former secretary and treasurer who pleaded guilty, has been on the witness stand for six weeks.

Four Macedonian Rioters Killed.

Athens, Greece, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Four persons were reported killed and five wounded tonight in Niaoussa, Macedonia, in a fight between municipal authorities and 2,000 textile workers who protested against a supplementary tax on the textile industry.

It was found on the stage of the auditorium. Boys will be boys—but there are girls, too, now at Maryland U.

PRESS OF AMERICA PRAISED BY CASTLE

Important to Government in Its Relations, He Says in Philadelphia Talk.

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Jan. 23.—The role of the press in modern international relations was discussed here tonight by Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr., before the Presbyterian Social Union. His speech was remarkable for its frankness and directness in describing the tremendous influence of the press as it is used in the United States and elsewhere.

Mr. Castle described the workings of the highly efficient Press Bureau of the State Department under direction of Michael J. MacDermott. He told of the 200 and more inquiries every day which this division answers in maintaining newspaper inquiries. He then compared this custom with that which obtains in some European chancelleries.

Cites Foreign Press.

He said:

"An official of the British government recently said to me that European foreign offices consider everything secret which does not have to be told, whereas the Department of State considers that everything should be told which is not secret."

In his description of the venality of the French press, the undersecretary then declared:

"It is a perfectly well-known fact that some of the great Paris newspapers are owned and controlled by the Comite des Forges. These powerful iron and steel magnates bitterly oppose disarmament and therefore one simply can not find in their press uncolored accounts of such matters as disarmament discussions. This is the more true since news in the French press, and indeed generally in the foreign press outside of Great Britain is never presented in the form of straight news stories, but is a running mixture of fact and comment on the fact, the comment generally predominating.

Different in U. S.

"If in Geneva there is discussion of abolishing heavy mobil guns that fact is presented to the readers of many metropolitan dailies in Paris as merely another attempt to destroy the security of France. The arguments in favor of abolishing these guns, even official French arguments are simply not mentioned. In Washington it is quite different. If we give out a factual story we can be reasonably sure that it will be printed, if of sufficient interest, to be printed at all in its entirety. Very few newspapers attempt to color the story as a story. What they may say about it editorially is perfectly legitimate, once they have given their readers an opportunity of knowing all the facts."

"There is no denying the fact that the attitude of the modern press is enormously important to the Government in all international relations. It gives us an index of public opinion; we must appreciate and understand public opinion and to a certain extent be guided by it. The press, furthermore, has a great influence in molding public opinion and we in the Government must, therefore, try to see that it leads in the right direction."

Ford Threatened With Court Order

Bench Warrant May Force Motor Head to Testify in Auto Suit.

Detroit, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Henry Ford, always reluctant to appear personally in court, today was threatened with a bench warrant to compel him to testify in litigation involving his motor company.

Served two weeks ago with a subpena by a rupe, the 69-year-old motor manufacturer, who hasn't been in court since 1919, failed to appear to give testimony today in a suit involving the Sweeten Automobile Co., of Philadelphia, and the Ford Motor Co., attorneys for the plaintiff at once threatened to seek a bench warrant.

Twice the attorneys for the Philadelphia company ordered Mr. Ford paged loudly in the anteroom and the corridors of Attorney Kenneth M. Stevens' law office. There was no response. In answer to direct questioning, attorneys for Mr. Ford declined to state whether he will appear without the threat of a warrant.

to have been prepared for the White House by Attorney General Mitchell.

The amendment was added in the Senate, and originally provided that all refunds over $5,000 could not be paid without the approval of the joint committee on internal revenue. In conference with the House the limitation was raised to $20,000.

The $31,000,000 first deficiency measure, the only supply bill passed by both Houses, was given right of way through the Long Senate filibuster because of the urgent need for local unemployment relief.

The $335,000 for relief activities in the next six months would be supplemented by another $625,000 item in the District bill, covering the last six months of 1931.

AUDITORIUM CHOSEN FOR INAUGURAL BALL

Picked by Committee After Federal Buildings Are Deemed Inadequate.

Selection of the Washington Auditorium as the site for this year's inaugural ball was announced yesterday following a meeting of the executive committee of the inaugural ball committee, Mrs. John Alien Dougherty, chairman, at its headquarters in the Hill Building, Seventeenth and I streets northwest. The crowning social event of the inaugural festivities as usual will be held on the night of March 4. It will reassume its official character this year after a considerable lapse due to the fact that members of Gov. Roosevelt's family have already signified their intention of attending.

The auditorium was selected after the committee had surveyed and weighed several other sites, both public and private. An effort was made to revert to the custom of former years and make use of one of the governmental buildings, but the requirements of the ball have grown so that none of the buildings could be used without entailing structural changes which were considered to be out of the question.

Ample Room for Boxes.

Ample room for the construction of boxes was a primary factor which guided Mrs. Dougherty and her associates in the final selection. Accommodations have to be provided for hundreds of national and social leaders. The Auditorium permits of such construction on a far more elaborate scale than any other building. Mrs. Dougherty announced yesterday that a horseshoe, consisting of two tiers of boxes, would be constructed around the lower floor of the Auditorium. The second tier will be raised sufficiently above the first to permit of full vision both on the part of the occupants and spectators on the floor. Use will be made also of the stage and balcony boxes already in the Auditorium. Another set of 16 boxes will be built, eight on either side of the stage in the orchestra stalls.

Use of the Auditorium permits also of the elaborate ceremonies with which each gubernatorial party attending the ball will be greeted. A guard of honor, composed of soldiers, sailors and marines, will be formed from the entrance to the hall on to the stage at the time set for the official opening of the ball. Attendants with large placards will identify each State delegation as it arrives.

Will Go on Stage.

The governors and their staffs will march through the guard of honor while one of the bands—two of which will be placed on the platform in the center hall—plays the State anthem. The State flags and the national emblem will be carried before each delegation and then will be moved on the stage. The various chief executives and their staffs will be seated on the stage during the progress of the ball. As soon as the floor has been cleared for dancing, the platforms containing the two bands will be consolidated and continuous music will be provided.

Establishment of a street floor ticket office was announced yesterday by the inaugural committee on grandstand ticket sales, of which Daniel C. Roper is chairman. The new office where all applications for tickets should be made is located on the G street side of the Washington Building. The telephones are District 4815 and 4814.

Banker Is Sentenced In $85,000 Larceny

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Abe Lewis, former Memphis banker, was sentenced to serve from three to six years in the State Penitentiary when he pleaded guilty today to charges involving the misappropriation of approximtely $85,000.

Lewis, former vice president of the Bank of Commerce and Trust Co., pleaded guilty to one count of fraudulent breach of trust which charged that he misappropriated $80,946.45 in securities belonging to two clients of the bank, and to a charge of forging signature on notes valued at $3,782.42.

Vincent Astor's Sister Weds Austrian Author

Newark, N. J., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The Princess Alice A. Obolensky, a daughter of John Jacob Astor and sister of Vincent Astor, was married here Saturday to Raimund von Hofmannstehal, a native of Austria.

The marriage, which became known today, was performed by Police Court Judge John C. Howe. Mrs. von Hofmannstehal is the divorced wife of the Prince Serge Obolensky Neledinsky Meletzky. Mrs. von Hofmannstehal gave her age as 29; her husband as 26. He listed his occupation as an author.

Mother Is Indicted In Triangle Slaying

Wife of Florida Narcotic Agent Probably Will Be Tried Soon.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Leah Frazier, 43-year-old mother of five children, was indicted by a Federal grand jury today for the murder of Miss Manona Murrell, 26, secretary to her husband, C. R. Frazier, who was suspended as chief of the Government narcotic office here after the crime.

Held in jail after shooting Miss Murrell on the postoffice lawn, Mrs. Frazier admitted she fired the shots, saying the girl "tried to break up my home."

Mrs. Frazier's trial probably will be set for the present term of court.

mediately it was referred to the finance committee headed by a dry, Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), Utah, for an examination of its revenue-raising features.

Despite the numerous differences in House and Senate bills, Speaker Garner said yesterday there will be no great difficulty in compromising the two measures if the Senate acts.

Borah introduced an amendment to the bill to levy a graduated excess-profits tax on the manufacture and sale of the beverages, which will be presented when the Senate considers the measures.

ROOSEVELT DENIES CABINET OBJECTION

Progressive Opposition to His Choices Does Not Exist, He Declares.

Warm Springs, Ga., Jan. 23 (U.P.). President-elect Roosevelt tonight spiked rumors that the Progressive Republican leaders who supported him in the election campaign were objecting to any persons he might have under consideration for Cabinet positions.

"There has been no opposition from the Progressives, I can say that definitely," Roosevelt replied.

The question concerning such reported opposition was put to him in connection with the visit here of Senators Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, and Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico. While he insisted they discussed unemployment relief, the general impression was that they went thoroughly into the Cabinet field.

Some friends of the President-elect believed their visit, at his "express invitation," was primarily for the purpose of exchanging views on the likelihood of Owen D. Young, reparations expert and international banker, or Norman H. Davis, arms conference expert, being offered the State Department portfolio.

Roosevelt, who is expected to complete his Cabinet line-up during his stay at Warm Springs, will have as his invited guests tomorrow and the next day Bernard Baruch, New York banker, and Walker Hines, former head of the Railroad Administration.

Baruch's scheduled appearance gave rise to speculation that he might be asked to assume an important post in the new administration. Hines, it is asserted, will take up the program for economic rehabilitation of the Nation's railroads, which Roosevelt is formulating as a phase of his complete scheme for pulling the country out of the red.

Seaboard to Drop Line in Carolinas

Lumberton-to-Lake View Branch Succumbs to Truck Competition.

(Associated Press.)

The Seaboard Airline yesterday was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to abandon the Raleigh & Charleston Railroad, which runs from Lumberton, N. C., to Lake View, S. C., a distance of 23 miles. The Raleigh & Charleston has been operated at a loss and on July 31, 1932, owed the Seaboard $487,000.

The abandonment does not affect a portion of the road which runs through Proctorville, N. C., and Smithboro to South Marion, S. C. A hearing on the petition was held by the North Carolina Corporation Commission, which did not make any representations. Protests were filed by merchants and citizens of Barensville and Marietta, N. C.

The portion to be abandoned is the northern segment and the commission report said use of that portion of the road by the people of the tributary territory has been materially reduced by diversion of much of their freight to trucks.

Agreement Gained On Crop Loan Bill

Hearings on $90,000,000 R. F. C. Fund Is Due to Consume Week.

(Associated Press.)

The hand of compromise smoothed the way yesterday for early enactment of a bill which will mean millions in credit for the farmers of the country to use in getting out their 1933 crop.

Before the Senate Agriculture Committee meanwhile the "domestic allotment" bill for raising farm prices reached the stage of public hearings.

The compromise of the crop production loan bill passed in slightly different form by the House and Senate was reached in speedy fashion by conferees.

As agreed upon, it would make available $90,000,000 of Reconstruction Corporation funds in loans for the production of the year's crop.

The Senate originally voted the unexpended balance of the $200,000,000 fund employed for the same purpose last year. This would total about $103,000,000 but the House cut it to $75,000,000 and in conference the $90,000,000 figure was hit upon.

Manila Vote Hits Independence Bill

Municipal Board Ballots Against Acceptance by 6 to 2.

Manila, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The strong movement against acceptance of Philippine independence after a transition period of about twelve years, proffered by Congress, was further evidenced today. The Manila Municipal Board voted 6 to 2 against the measure.

A resolution adopted declared the Philippine Mission in Washington should have waited for the forthcoming Democratic Congress to obtain a more satisfactory bill.

The insular Senate elected Joe Clarin to preside in case Manuel Quezon, its president, goes to Washington to fight for a bill granting immediate independence. Clarin is an ally of Quezon in aligning legislators for rejection of the present measure.

Steward Assails Retirement Costs

Employe Spokesman Says Burden to Government Certain to Mount.

Figures made public by Veterans' Administrator Frank T. Hines, showing 3,700 compulsory Federal retirements for age in the first half of the present fiscal year, last night were cited by President Luther C. Steward, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, as proof of the "folly" of the economy act compulsory retirement provision.

Gen. Hines' statement showed a jump of about $466,232 a month in the cost of retirements to the Government during the period covered. President Steward pointed to his prediction of increased cost made at the time the provision was considered, and predicted it would continue to mount.

"Every veteran employe retired under the act, who is doing important wrok, must be replaced by another of less experience," Mr. Steward said. "Not only is an additional cost saddled on the Government, but efficiency lags as well. Those forcibly retired usually are skilled in their jobs."

Man in Extortion Case Is Speedily Sentenced

Kansas City, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Four hours after he was arrested for attempting to extort $2,000 from Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, kidnaped a year ago, Henry J. Thomas, 27, was sentenced today to serve five years in the penitentiary.

Thomas, who admitted writing three threatening letters to Mrs. Donnelly, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted blackmail.

Receipts by U. S. Drop $84,504,169

December Collections Loss Is Held Due to Income Tax Shrinkage.

(Associated Press.)

Largely attributable to shrinkage in income tax collections, Government receipts from all taxes fell $84,504,169 in December, as compared with the corresponding month of 1931.

Total collections for last month were reported yesterday by the Internal Revenue Bureau at $210,995,057, against $295,499,227 in the previous December.

Income tax collections, which totaled $256,522,095 in the last month of the 1931 year, amounted to only $141,033,327 last month, a drop of $115,488,769. On the other hand, the miscellaneous tax, including the levies in the new tax bill, showed an increase of $30,984,600. Collections were $69,961,730, as compared with $38,977,130 a year before.

old; James Foley, 41 years old, and Joseph Flynn, 26 years old. Flynn and Foley had been identified through pictures in both of the Capital robberies, while Rubin had been partially identified.

As a result of their guilty pleas they face sentences of from 10 to 20 years in Sing Sing. Sentence will be pronounced February 2. The effect of the pleas will be to halt extradition proceedings which had been instituted against them by police of half a dozen Eastern cities.

Warrants for the prisoners had been lodged against the men by police of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Newark and Elizabeth, N. J., and by the District.

A fifth member of the gang, Robert Maples, who, as "John Doe," was indicted with them, is serving from 10 to 20 years in Philadelphia for bank robbery in that city in which the rest of the gang were alleged participants.

Descriptions of the men tally closely with the band of robbers who were thwarted by tear gas when they attempted to rob the Connecticut avenue branch of the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank on October 21. They fled when an employe of the bank turned on a tear gas protective device which blinded the robbers.

CENTRAL AMERICAN LINE ROW IS ENDED

Guatemala and Honduras in Accord as Union Body Acts Here.

A boundary dispute in Central America, which had flamed in bloodshed and looked askance at arbitration throughout a century, ended yesterday when officials of Guatemala and Honduras received the decision of the Special Boundary Commission.

The award which was made with ceremony at the Pan-American Union, gave Guatemala the Motagua River region and allocated to Honduras the disputed Cuyamel territory. Charles Evans Hughes, Chief Justice of the United States, as president of the tribunal, officiated at the award.

Aerial Maps Presented.

Conspicuous in the evidence considered by Justice Hughes and his colleagues, Dr. Emilio Bello Codecido, of Chile, and Dr. Luis Castro Ureno, of Costa Rica, were aerial maps of the disputed area made by United States Army fliers.

A group of diplomats and officials were awaiting the award when Benjamin Cohen secretary of the tribunal, announced Justice Hughes and his colleagues.

The Chief Justice announced the purpose of the meeting and instructed Mr. Cohen to deliver copies of the awards to the representatives of the two countries, who were seated with their ministers.

Representatives Are Complimented.

With each award was an official map. Justice Hughes said that copies in English and Spanish would be placed in the archives of the Pan-American Union, and at the close of the ceremony complimented the two delegations on the completeness of the evidence offered.

The question was submitted to arbitration in 1930. Representatives of neither nation would comment on the award, but declared that it was binding on both countries, whether they were satisfied or not.

Guatemala was represented before the commission by Dr. Carlos Salazar and Dr. Mariano Vasquez headed the Honduran delegation.

Kidnaping and Costly Fire Laid to Arson Gang

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—An arson gang that fired a $500,000 macaroni factory in Brooklyn was hunted by police today, but the clews were slim. Pasquale Fariello, night watchman, told detectives four men burst into the Savoia Manufacturing Co., Inc., last night, snarling: "If you want to live, be quiet."

They wrapped an overcoat around his head, drove him miles away and dumped him on the street. When he got to a police station he was told flames had practically ruined the inside of the factory. No motive for the gang's act was apparent.

ELECTION WARFARE CLOSES IN IRELAND

Free State Voters to Decide Today Between De Valera and Cosgrave.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The bitter election campaign in the Irish Free State, which will be climaxed tomorrow by a decision on whether rapprochement between Ireland and Great Britain will be made or a rigid economic warfare be continued, came to a close today in comparative calm.

Heading the opposing factions were President Eamon De Valera, leader of the Fianna Fail party, who is pledged to a policy of noncooperation with Great Britain, and William T. Cosgrave, former president, who favors development of the republic as an integral part of the British commonwealth.

Part of the campaign, which was waged vigorously in all parts of the republic, was based on the president's stand for nonpayment of the land annuities and abrogation of the oath to the crown.

The campaign closed in relative quiet compared with disorders which sprang up in several places yesterday when at least 100 Irishmen were injured. Disorders during the Sunday speaking occurred in Listowel, Tralee and Killarney, but tonight there had been no reports of serious incidents anywhere in the republic during the final day of speechmaking and campaign meetings.

WASHINGTON URGED FOR WORLD PARLEY

American Chamber in London Starts Drive to Bring Conference Here.

London, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The American Chamber of Commerce in London today began a drive to hold the projected world economic conference in Washington.

Letters advocating Washington as the site of the conference are being sent to the United States Chamber of Commerce in the American Capital and to all American chambers in Europe. By this means Francis E. Powell, the president of the London chamber, hopes to obtain concerted action on the part of interested American business groups to take the conference to Washington.

Powell announced his plan today at a luncheon at which Sir Evelyn Wrench, founder of the English-Speaking Union, also spoke. They were hopeful of the results if the forthcoming debts conference between England and the United States were followed by a conference between a more inclusive party of experts, who would "try to find a solution for the problem which had so bothered the world in the past few years."

(Associated Press.)

The suggestion of Francis E. Powell, president of the American Chamber of Commerce in London, that the world monetary and economic conference be held in Washington, following the British debts discussion, was first advanced by the British government several months ago.

The idea did not meet with favor from the Hoover administration. After long discussions representatives of the various powers selected London, but as yet have not fixed any date. No authoritative word has been available as to President-elect Roosevelt's view on the question.

Ensign R. B. Foster To Be Buried Today

Baltimore Officer, Who Took Own Life, Will Rest in Arlington.

Ensign Robert B. Foster of Baltimore, who killed himself aboard the U. S. S. Oklahoma at San Pedro, Calif., last week, will be buried with full military honors this afternoon in Arlington National Cemetery. The services will be held in Fort Myer Chapel at 2 p. m.

Ensign Foster's body arrived in Washington yesterday accompanied by Ensign Volckert P. Douw, also stationed on the Oklahoma. Capt. S. K. Evans, chief of the Navy Chaplain Corps, assisted by the Rev. Hugh Powers, of Baltimore, will officiate. A board of inquiry recently decided that Ensign Foster strangled to death "by his own hand."

Honorary pallbearers at the funeral will include Lieuts. H. W. Goodall, W. S. Mayer, jr., J. S Blue, J. M. Sweeney, C. S. Weeks and R. M. MacKinnon.

BERRY CLARK'S TRIAL OPENS IN ROCKVILLE

Conflicting Versions of His Stewardship Given to Jurymen.

Conflicting versions of the stewardship of Berry E. Clark were offered the jury at the beginning of his trial yesterday on charges of embezzling county funds while he was clerk to the Montgomery County Commissioners, in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md.

State's Attorney Stedman Prescott told the jury he was prepared to show that Clark had received county funds and had deposited them to his personal account and had checked them out to pay personal bills.

F. Barnard Welsh, of defense counsel, offered another picture to the jury. He contended Clark had served faithfully for many years and that he had not concealed the use of his account but that it had been common knowledge to the county commissioners, and that the defendant had paid to the county treasurer the funds entrusted to him as they were due.

State's Attorney Prescott said that "by one series of checks I will show where he got the county's money and deposited it in his clerk's account, and by another series of checks I will show where he drew it out of that account and deposited it in his personal account. I will show by the president of the bank that he transferred it over to his personal account and show by the checks where he spent it."

Reports Pointed Out.

Mr. Prescott stated that from July 11, 1930, to February 16, 1931, Clark received approximately $1,160 of Montgomery County's share of the franchise tax and that he accounted to the county treasurer for but $15 and that he had received $1,160.97 reimbursements to the county for care of insane patients and had remitted but $187.50 to the treasurer. He also said he would show shortages in Clark's accounts from building permits and sheriff's fees which had been paid him.

Attorney Welsh pointed out that Clark had been indicted on 97 charges, but that he was being tried on but one. He declared the defense is prepared to show that Clark had for years been "a fine, efficient employe" of the county. He said there was no such thing as a clerk's account, that Clark had given bond that he would protect the county funds and that as the business of the county became heavier that Clark had established the account as a convenience to himself in handling the county money. He said all the county commissioners knew of it. Mr. Welsh declared the money did not come into the clerk's office as it should, but that often the accounts of the sheriff and others would be as much as two months late. Clark made quarterly reports, Mr. Welsh said.

Cites 77 Audits.

The defense attorney said the county commissioners had even approved Clark's service so much that they asked for indictment of the editors of the Montgomery Independent when that paper charged irregularities in his office. He stated that Clark's accounts had been audited 77 times and found to be all right and that Robert D. Hagner, now a county commissioner, had made two special audits for the county commissioners and had approved the accounts. He said that, although Clark issued checks on that account, he reported regularly to the commissioners and that when he was separated from his position as clerk Clark paid $3,100 which the auditors claimed was due. Following objection to his remarks by Mr. Prescott, Mr. Welsh continued: "Mr. Clark always accounted for all amounts which we will show by receipts signed by J. Forest Walker, the county treasurer."

He said that the county owes Clark more than $1,000 for the work he has performed.

Most of the morning was consumed in getting a jury. Approximately 60 veniremen were called and the defense exercised its challenge prerogative 18 times, while the State challenged 7 prospective jurors. The jury was selected at 1 p. m., when the court adjourned for lunch.

Members of the jury are: William G. McCrossin, James W. Carlin, Joshua T. Austin, Clayton W. Ricketts, William L. Myers, Walter Buxton, B. E. Moxley, William Moxley, Albert Dorsey, C. C. Lawson, Walter Davis and Stanzey King.

Latimer First Witness.

The first witness called was Charles Y. Latimer, who succeeded Clark as clerk. Mr. Latimer produced records to show that Clark had been clerk at the time the indictment alleging shortage of $426 in county funds indicated. Owen H. Donegan, representing the bonding company, testified that his company had given bond for Clark, and Milton L. Tull, of the State treasurer's office, identified several checks which had been forwarded in payment of the county share of the franchise tax. He explained that half of the tax goes to the county in which is located the corporation from which it was collected. Former Sheriff Joseph B. Pyles identified several checks he had paid to Clark for sheriff's fees and fines collected by his office. Eight witnesses identified checks which they had paid the county commissioners for care of insane relatives.

Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Associate Judge Arthur D. Willard presided. Judge Charles W. Woodward withdrew from the bench for the trial, as he had acted on the case while judge of the county police court. Defense attorneys are Mr. Welsh, E. Barrett Prettyman, Albert M. Bouic and Thomas L. Dawson. Trial recessed at 4:50 p. m. until 9:30 a. m. today.

Smeeman in Cell After Pardon Plea

Former Ohio Executive Is Awaiting Colorado Action.

Denver, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—After making a dramatic plea before Gov. E. C. Johnson for a pardon, Glenn Smeeman, Colorado fugitive who became a prosperous business man in Cleveland, Ohio, returned to the State Penitentiary at Canon City today to await the executive's decision.

In taking the case under advisement, Gov. Johnson said he would not act until after he had received reports from Prison Warden Roy Best and the board of corrections.

Full of expectation that his application would be granted and he would be allowed to return to St. Louis, Mo., to face a two-year prison term for auto theft, Smeeman appeared before the governor with his attorney, F. E. Dickerson.

CAPT. R. G. ANDERSON FOUND DEAD IN BED

Fire Department Officer Is Victim of Heart Attack at Engine House.

Capt. Robert Gregory Anderson, veteran member of the District Fire Department and commander of No. 22 Engine Company, was found dead early yesterday in his bed at the engine house. Death was attributed to a heart attack. A few hours earlier he had issued final instructions to his men and retired.

Discovery of the death was made by Lieut. C. W. Wright, who went to awaken his superior about 6 a. m.

Capt. Anderson held numerous citations for bravery. His work at the Knickerbocker Theater disaster and again during the Kenilworth flood, brought praise and commendations from Chief George Watson and the District Commissioners.

Born in New York in 1880, Capt. Anderson was appointed a private in the District Fire Department in 1908. Six years later he was made a sergeant and advanced to the rank of lieutenant in 1922. After being commended on several occasions, he received the department ribbon "for having been commended three times," and in 1930 was appointed a captain.

Capt. Anderson lived with his wife, Mrs. Pauline Helmuth Anderson, at 1431 Kearney street northeast. Mrs. Anderson is a sister of Sergt. George Helmuth, of the Police Department. Capt. Anderson also is survived by a son, Robert S. Anderson; a sister and a brother, of Bayonne, N. J.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from Saffell chapel, at Fifth and H streets northwest.

Blast-Fire Damage Placed at $200,000

Turbine Is Destroyed in Electric Plant at Burlington, N. J.

Burlington, N. J., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Accompanied by an explosive-like detonation, a fire today destroyed a high-pressure steam turbine in the Public Service electric generating plant and considerably damaged a portion of the six-acre plant.

Fire apparatus fought the flames for an hour before bringing it under control. The oil around the turbine gave off dense billows of black smoke, which blanketed the city, and the heat was so terrific it warped and twisted the steel girders in the building housing the turbine. Chief Ralph McKinley of the fire department estimated the damage at not less than $200,000.

The report of the plant superintendent, made to the Public Service headquarters in Newark, stated the fire broke out first and was followed almost immediately by the loud detonation, which gave rise to initial reports an explosion had caused the fire. Burlington firemen who fought the flames said an explosion had occurred. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

MONEY INFLATION WARNING MADE BY SECRETARY MILLS

Ample Money, He Says.

In response to questions from committee members, Secretary Mills said there is ample money in circulation in the United States today to facilitate a volume of business equal to the boom period of 1929, but that the need of the hour is to restore normal credit functions so that bankers will not be compelled by uncertainty to hold on to their present abnormal cash reserves.

"The first step toward real recovery," Secretary Mills insisted, "is a balanced Federal budget. Until we achieve this step I believe we shall, at best, mark time on the road to recovery."

Reviewing the experiences of foreign nations which have attempted recovery by the inflation route during the last ten years, Secretary Mills emphasized that every such attempt had culminated in national disaster. In some cases the complete economic breakdown was delayed several years; in others it followed inflation by only months, he said.

Cites Two Instances.

The United States has twice suffered complete financial prostration following experimental inflation, he said, suggesting inferentially that such a step in the present crisis might precipitate an era of economic chaos as long as ten years.

"Whatever we now try as a solution for our present difficulties," Mr. Mills declared vigorously at another point, "we shall achieve the ultimate solution by the determined application of the basic principles of sound national economy—that is, we shall achieve recovery through sound currency, a balanced national budget and a restoration of confidence in the business and financial community. These are the elements of our problem, and we must face them frankly and honestly, now or later."

Secretary Mills' suggestion that uncertainty concerning governmental fiscal policies is contributing to the steady shrinkage of bank loans and the continued decline of commodity prices was confirmed yesterday in two reports of the Federal Reserve Board.

The weekly statement of member bank condition in the principal financial centers showed a further decrease of $21,000,000 in total loans outstanding for the week ended January 18.

As compared with a year ago, total loans in this group of banks last week were off $2,820,000,000. These weekly statements normally reflect approximately 65 per cent of all Federal Reserve operations.

During the last four weeks, this group has reported a shrinkage of approximately $200,000,000 in total loans outstanding, or at the rate of about $50,000,000 a week.

Gold Holdings Increase.

This pinching-in of credits has come, according to the monthly survey of the Federal Reserve Board yesterday, at a time when American gold holdings have been increasing at the rate of approximately $20,000,000 a week. Banks generally are improving their liquid position daily.

Total loans and investments of Federal Reserve banks in the leading cities now are only $300,000,000 above the low point recorded last summer, when the credit stringency became extremely acute.

This steady shrinkage in loans has been accompanied by a comparable increase in the reserves of the member banks, this item now standing at a figure approximately $600,000,000 above a year ago.

Paralyzed by Uncertainty.

As interpreted by Secretary Mills yesterday in his answers to committee questions, this resumed general movement in the banking community toward abnormal liquidity may be attributed largely to the fact that investing sentiment throughout the country is paralyzed by uncertainty regarding, first, inflation, and, secondly, budget policy.

Even the discussion of inflation, he suggested at one point, is an incentive to the hoarding of prevailing sound money. And the mounting Federal deficit, with no new revenues or budget curtailments in sight, aggravates the entire situation in the degree that the deficit stimulates the cry for inflation.

M'CULLOCH, FEDERAL COMMISSIONER, DIES

Trade Body Member, 72, Expires in St. Louis; Native of Arkansas.

Judge Edgar A. McCulloch, 72 years old, a member of the Federal Trade Commission, died at noon yesterday at the Barnes Hospital, in St. Louis, Mo., it was learned here yesterday afternoon.

Judge McCulloch had been a patient at the hospital for the past month, following an operation.

Judge McCulloch was appointed a member of the commission February, 1927, by the late President Coolidge and was chairman of the commission in 1929.

As a member of the commission he was in charge of the investigation of the financial set-up of public utility companies and was trying to complete the work before the end of the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Born in Trenton, Tenn., August 21 1861, Judge McCulloch was a member of the Supreme Court of Arkansas, and was chief justice from 1909 until the time he came to Washington. He was a Democrat.

Judge McCulloch made his home here at the Army and Navy Apartments. His wife died two years ago this month. He is survived by four sons, Dr. Hugh McCulloch and Edgar H. McCulloch, an attorney, both of St. Louis; Richard McCulloch, an attorney, of Marianna, Ark., and Ben McCulloch, a business man of San Francisco.

Arrangements for the funeral had not been completed last night.

Action on Power Rate Cut Delayed

Ham, Head of Company, Is Out of Town; Patrick and Others Back.

No action is expected for several days in the negotiations of the Public Utilities Commission with the Potomac Electric Power Co. for an electric rate reduction for 1933, because of the absence from the city of William F. Ham, president of the power company.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, and Riley E. Elgen, vice chairman, and William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, yesterday returned from New York, where they attended a conference on cost of electric distribution.

Gen. Patrick has stated that the commission intends to fight the battle in court over its proposed sliding scale to the end, and to limit future parleys to the sole question of this year's rates and last year's profits.

10 in Ohio Wait Chair; 'Death Row' Mark Falls

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Ten men await death in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary. To house this number—the largest ever to occupy the prison's death row at one time—Warden Preston E. Thomas said an additional screened cell would be added.

The tenth condemned man will arrive this week. He is Ford Parker, 28, of Millersburg, convicted of killing his wife, Norabelle, when she refused to live with him. Parker was sentenced to die May 20.

Gladys Burgess, Noted English Acrtess, Dead

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Gladys Burgess, an English actress who has played on American stages for the last fourteen years, died today after a several months' illness. She was 34 years old.

Miss Burgess came to the United States in 1919. She played with H. B. Warner in "Bulldog Drummond;" with Mrs. Fiske in "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary;" with Cyril Maude in "If Winter Comes," and last with Ina Claire in "Grounds for Divorce."

La Verne Baldwin to Speak.

La Verne Baldwin, of the Western European Division of the Department of State, will address the current events section of the Women's City Club this afternoon at the club headquarters.

TRIO ORDERED HELD IN MIAMI ASSAULTS

Irate Wife, Son and Comrade Accused of Attempt to Kill Victim.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Frieda Riley, her 20-year-old son Bernard, and Jimmie Duffy, all of Miami, were ordered held for trial today on charges of assaulting Mrs. Adelaide Doing Stork, wife of a wealthy Baltimore and Miami Beach resident, with intent to commit murder in the first degree.

The trio also was held for trial on charges of breaking and entering Mrs. Stork's home on the night of December 22, when they were alleged by the State to have attacked Mrs. Stork and Bart Riley, a prominent Miami attorney and husband and father of two of the defendants.

Peace Justice Henry L. Oppenborn fixed bond for Mrs. Riley and her son at $2,000 each and that of Duffy at $3,000, pending trial in Dade County Criminal Court.

"The testimony for the last few days shows there has been a heinous crime committed against the laws of the State of Florida," Justice Oppenborn said, "and the defense has offered not one word of contradiction."

Mrs. Stork previously testified she and Riley were in her apartment on the night of the attack and that both were beaten badly by the defendants. She testified Mrs. Riley had told her repeatedly during the attack that Stork, from whom Mrs. Stork is estranged, had promised to care for Mrs. Riley and her children if she would kill Mrs. Stork.

Dr. Chase Is Elected Chancellor of N. Y. U.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the University of Illinois today was elected chancellor of New York University to succeed Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, who retired July 1 to become chancellor emeritus.

Dr. Chase, nationally known because of his work at Illinois and formerly, as president of the University of North Carolina, has accepted the chancellorship, New York University announced.

Dr. B. A. Baer Is Named On Optometrists' Group

Dr. Bernard A. Baer, optometrist, with offices in the Farragut Medical Building, was appointed a member of the national legislative committee yesterday by Dr. Thomas McBurnie, of Brooklyn, N. Y., president of the Optometrists Association.

The committee is headed by Dr. E. B. Alexander, of Duncan, Okla., who is vice president of the organization.

OTT FUNERAL TOMORROW.

Pioneer Resident of Capital Is Survived by Three Sons.

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Elizabeth Ott, 73 years old, who died Sunday at her home, 2023 First street northwest, will be held tomorrow from her late residence. Following a requiem mass at St. Martin's Church, interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Ott was a native of this city. She was the widow of Joseph W. Ott, who died about 20 years ago. Surviving Mrs. Ott are three sons, Raymond G. Ott, president of the Standard Art Marble Co.; Ernest S. and the Rev. George E. Ott, of Baltimore, Md.

QUEENS TO ATTEND DIARY DANCE FEB. 2

Girls Entered for Prizes in Contest Will Pose for Photographs.

Federal Diary Dance
Shoreham Hotel—Thursday, February 2.

Swarmi Fedd,
The Washington Post
Washington, D. C.

Dear Swarmi: I would enjoy being your guest to dance at the Shoreham Hotel the night of Thursday, February 2. If I am among the first 250 to accept your invitation please send tickets in the enclosed stamped envelope.

P. S. I am an employe of .....
.....
(Name Government dept., bureau or commission.)

As the plans of Swarmi Fedd, the official prognosticator of The Washington Post's "Federal Diary" column, were announced yesterday, they induced a flood of offers to cooperate in making the dance to be held in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on the night of Thursday, February 2, one of the most colorful and interesting affairs ever presented in Washington.

Of particular interest to young women employes of the Federal Government who intend to participate in The Washington Post's $10,500 search for 51 charming girls to form the "Court of Honor" at the Century of Progress International Exposition in Chicago next June, is the arrangement that has been consummated with Underwood & Underwood, internationally known photographers.

Learning that Swarmi Fedd would make some personal selections of "Queen" contestants during the evening, Lawrence Rubel, manager of Underwood & Underwood, has agreed to demonstrate the artistry of portrait photography by posing these girls and making their photographs at the magnificent Shoreham ballroom during the course of the evening. Mr. Rubel also promises that his finest artists, the photographer of presidents and royalty, will conduct the demonstration.

Free Tickets Available.

This is but one of the interesting novelties that will mark the dance that has been arranged by George D. Riley, editor of the Federal Diary—in conjunction with his mysterious coworker, Swarmi Fedd—in testimony of appreciation for the enthusiastic cooperation received from Federal employes in the conduct of this personal column for Government workers.

Tickets to the dance are limited to 500 and these are being mailed without charge to all feminine employes of Government establishments who request them before the supply is exhausted. Two tickets are given in answer to each request accompanied by a self-addressed and stamped envelope and, as a matter of convenience, the form appearing elsewhere in this issue may be employed in sending for tickets.

Music for dancing will be supplied by Leon Brusiloff and his orchestra, one of Washington's foremost dance organizations and one that has proved extremely popular at various previous affairs conducted by or for Federal employes.

Broadcast Is Arranged.

Station WRC, of the National Broadcasting Co., will broadcast a portion of the evening's proceedings and Loew's Fox Theater management has announced the intention to bring units of the week's stage show to entertain the guests.

Last but not least, Swarmi Fedd—the old crystal-gazer in person—has promised to attend, although possibly incognito. He makes this last reservation because of the possibility of embarrassment in selecting personal candidates to participate in The Washington Post's contest to select a queen of the Chicago's World's Fair. He also states he will have a number of other interesting surprises for the pleasure of his guests, but says the column of The Washington Post and particularly "The Federal Diary" must be followed for advance forecasts of the evening's entertainment.

SCHOOL BOARD UNIT HITS CADET CHANGES

should be equally divided, according to size and year in high school.

Dr. Bennett announced after the meeting that reports from the various principals showed that the cadet corps is already being conducted along lines recommended by Dr. Eckhardt, as far as is practicable, and that there does not appear to be any need for a reorganization.

"The principals told us that students are now being distributed throughotut the various companies," Dr. Bennett said. "Extremely tall boys and short ones, however, are not placed in the same company because of the wide difference in gait between a tall staudent and a short one."

"Incoming students in February are placed in existing companies, but new companies have to be formed at this time to take care of the overflow. Drilling on streets makes it impossible for formation of large companies, which would be necessary if all the new students were placed in the existing companies.

"The committee is of the opinion that the individual schools should be allowed as much freedom as possible in conducting their cadet companies, and that they should not be subjected to dictatorship from the Franklin Administration Building."

Dr. Bennett stated emphatically that the committee will not make a recommendation for a sweeping reorganization. This report will have to be ratified by the board as a whole. Members of the student activities committee, besides Dr. Bennett, are Henry Gilligan and Mrs. William C. McNeill. Both colored and white schools were represented at the meeting. Dr. Bennett expressed particular satisfaction over the manner in which the cadet system in the colored schools is operating.

Dr. Eckhardt's recommendations had aroused the interest of school officials, resulting in yesterday's meeting. Dr. Bennett said that if Dr. Eckhardt had given closer study to the cadet system as it now exists he would have no doubt modified his recommendations.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

MANY stories are being told and written just now illustrative of the taciturnity of the late President Calvin Coolidge.

Ike Gregg.

"I am here to bear witness to this fact, although I would not take a great deal for my experience with the beloved President," says Ike Gregg, Postoffice Department.

"It was in the early part of 1924, less than a year after Mr. Coolidge had succeeded the late President Harding as Chief Magistrate of the Nation. The White House Correspondents Association was giving its annual dinner to the new President. At the time I was president of the association and it was my duty and great pleasure to preside at the gathering and occupy a seat next to the Chief Executive during the banquet.

"Naturally, I was somewhat nervous and ill at ease. The responsibility which was mine rested heavily on my shoulders. I racked my feeble brain before the dinner started in an effort to hit upon some topic of conversation which might prove a bit interesting and entertaining to the distinguished guest. One has to be careful about his conversation with a President.

"Mr. Coolidge was a candidate then for election to the Presidency, although the campaign had hardly begun. This gave me the first opening I asked him how he viewed the political situation and he replied that he was perfectly satisfied with conditions as they existed. He did express some concern, however, about the probable attitude of Hiram Johnson regarding his candidacy. Mr. Johnson, it will be recalled, heard the Presidential bee buzzing in his ear about that time. The President said the California senator had always appeared to be most friendly while Mr. Coolidge was Vice President and presiding officer over the Senate. He said that he hoped Mr. Johnson would support him, a thing which came to pass.

• • • •

"Then the conversation took on a local tinge. A member of the Board of District Commissioners had just resigned under fire and the President was considering appointment of a successor. I asked him if he had decided on the man to be selected for the job and he replied that he had about made up his mind. In a few days the name was sent to the Senate.

"All this time the President conversed in that quaint New England fashion that was his, never changing his expression nor betraying any emotion whatever.

"Then came my one Herculean effort to get a smile.

"Mr. President," I began, "when I was a small boy studying my first geography at Independence, Mo., I recall sing-songing the names and locations of the capitals of the several States of the Union. I well remember when I came to the State of Vermont I intoned 'Montpelier on the Onion.' Whatever became of this river?" I queried the President.

• • • •

"The President glanced from his plate, burst forth in a hearty chuckle and replied:

"'This is the first time I have heard the mention of the Onion River in many a year.'

"He explained there was such a creek or stream by the name of Onion which flowed many years ago through a portion of the town of Montpelier, but that it had been obliterated from the map and was now only a memory.

"Anyhow, I had won one of the most important contests of my career—I had forced a laugh from the throat of the most serious-minded statesman with whom I had ever come in contact."

FOR to his surprise——

When Fedd unjacketed his note and presented it to the skipper for his aid in decoding, the captain's eyes widened, then narrowed. He was all interest. He was a man of deliberation and he was also broad of shoulder.

Calmly folding the letter, the captain returned it to its envelope, politely handed it to Fedd, left the bridge in charge of his trusted, brass-buttoned-and-braided aid, gently locked arms with Swarmi and escorted him below, oh so far below. They called it the brig. And such a nice captain he was. And the brig, was it nice? Ask Swarmi some day. He has seen all, even the inner confines of a brig. But he still had his note.

Special to The Washington Post.

EAGLE RIVER, Wis., Jan. 23.—Washka, the Alaskan bloodhound with the homing instincts, on his way from Sitka to Washington, D. C., to attend The Washington Post grand ball at the Shoreham Hotel February 2, was shaking the dust of this town from his heels at a late hour tonight.

Washka, maintaining that easy stride at between 14 and 15 miles an hour, has been met all along the way with cheers from throngs, especially the many children who love to tug at his ears and get them out of shape(?).

Unescorted, Washka has wuff-wuffed in return to the warm welcomes all along the route. The best viands have been showered on him.

This will probably be the only march on Washington in recent months not to be stopped by the War Department or soldiers and firemen in police uniforms, one of Washka's greeters observed here tonight.

Only Eliza, a second bloodhound; Simon, a blacksnake whip, and some ice were lacking to complete the "props" for "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Photographers have had difficulty snapping Washka. He's not the snapping kind. Just good old Washka, friendly right on.

To the tune of "Hiking Down the Highway," Washka cleared the southeast section of Eagle River, making a beeline toward Chicago.

Weather: Overcast, windy, warm.

Elapsed time: From Sitka, 18 bones, 3 biscuits and 17 doughnuts.

A PICKEREL, perhaps 8 inches long, streamlined and all, bolted from his tank adjoining the bathing facilities of the Kentucky bass in Commerce Aquarium yesterday afternoon and played hob with his new neighbors. Fred Orsinger, hearing of the commotion, dashed behing the tanks to remove Mr. Pickerel to his proper habitat, whereupon "Pick" scooted under the rocks and out of sight.

When Orsinger had left the tank "Pick" began chasing the bass in circles. The bass are much larger, although of different build from the pickerel. Just what will result when the pickerel overtakes a bass is to be determined.

Last week you read the story as first revealed in the Federal Diary of how a large fish devoured a smaller one. Here we have the case of a small fish chasing larger fish. It may keep up all week. What will result if the pickerel catches a bass? Orsinger wonders.

MAKE A GARDEN STICK.

Birds cut from wood properly colored stuck in among the plants in your garden will look real. To make the bird illustrated secure:

One piece plywood or other wood 9-16 by 5 by 6 inches. One piece ½-inch dowelling approximately 48 inches long.

Sketch outline of bird desired on the wood, and cut the bird out with a coping or jig saw. Bore a ½-inch hole for dowel stick as shown, about 1 inch deep. Insert dowel in hole and drive the other end, which should be sharpened, into the ground. A number of these birds on sticks highly colored, add a great deal to the appearance of the lawn or flower bed.

Dimensions and proper locations of homes for 27 different species of birds, will be found in the booklet, "You Can Make It for Camp and Cottage," published by the National Committee on Wood Utilization.

Tomorrow: How to make a folding dressing table.

NEW LEAGUE REPORT IS ORDERED ON EAST

Geneva Seeks to Remedy Manchurian Rift; Parties May Be Ignored.

Geneva, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The League of Nations, which for sixteen months has vainly sought a conciliatory settlement of the Manchurian conflict, attacked the problem more directly today by initiating preparation of a report containing proposals for remedial measures regardless of the wishes of the parties.

Overriding the British and French view that the Lytton commission's Manchurian report would provide all necessary facts and recommendations, the league's committee of nineteen instructed a group of nine of its members to draw up the document with the assistance of all available data.

This was a victory for the smaller nations, which were displeased with the interpretation Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, gave the yLtton report before the assembly, and feared that he might impose this interpretation on the assembly if the Lytton commission's work alone were employed as a basis.

Today's action by the committee of nineteen also was a victory for China, whose cause is being especially advocated by the smaller and weaker countries.

Hundreds of Marchers Swarm Colorado Capitol

Denver, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Several hundred men and women, styling themselves a part of the "Colorado hunger march," swarmed the capitol grounds today bearing signs and banners. A delegation of 50 was received by Gov. Edwin C. Johnson, and this committee later divided itself and appeared before the House and Senate.

The demonstrators requested $50 for each unemployed man and woman and $10 for each dependent for immediate relief and State unemployment insurance, the funds to be raised through tax on wealth and incomes and direct levies upon employers.

Japanese Continue Jehol Plane Raids

Invaders Assert Chinese Rushing New Troops to Province.

Changchun, Manchuria, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—New air raids by the Japanese against concentrations of Chinese troops in the Kailu district of northeastern Jehol were reported today.

In addition to the activities of air bombers Saturday and Sunday, the Japanese operated in the region of Chinhsi, on the southeastern border of Jehol, where cavalry detachments dispersed groups of Chinese.

Japanese general headquarters reported that additional Chinese troops were entering the province of Jehol, which Japan intends eventually to seize. Military officials said there would be no major Japanese operation in Jehol for several weeks.

people and in cooperation with the army."

"But the army is not dragging the foreign office along," Gen. Araki said. "The army has never been arbitrary."

The general launched into an oration on the subject of national spirit and the necessity of preparedness. There were cries of "Finish! Finish!" accompanied by laughter.

Mr. Ashida formerly was counselor to the embassy in Belgium and first secretary in Turkey. He resigned from the diplomatic service recently and was elected to Parliament.

TRUESDALE SCHOOL CALLED DANGEROUS

the basement, facing the old heating plant, and reached by its fumes.

These gases, according to Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. O'Connell, not only penetrate to every room in the old structure, but seep through to the new eight-room addition, adjacent.

Mrs. Clarke described the attic of the old building, where wooden joists and rafters are in close proximity to heating pipes, as a "firetrap."

The children's lavatories, she said, are heated by dilapidated gas radiators that frequently become disconnected and leak gas. On one occasion, she testified, the janitor narrowly averted an explosion when the gas was accidentally turned on by a schoolgirl.

She said she would pay for tuition at a private school, rather than endanger the health of any of her own offspring, now past school age, by sending them to the school.

Witnesses asked that $90,000, originally included in the budget estimates to replace the old structure with a modern, eight-room building, but dropped by the Budget Bureau, be reinserted by the subcommittee. She said the building was scheduled to be demolished when the present eight-room addition was erected.

Following the hearing, Chairman Cannon said the subcommittee would like to provide more elementary facilities, but is handicapped by the cost of expensive and unnecessary elaborations made on many of the new high school structures.

EINSTEIN FINDS U.S. SLUMP IS INTERNAL

Famous Scientist Relegates War Debts to Second Place in Speech.

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Prof. Albert Einstein attributes America's "severe economic depression" for the most part to "internal economic causes," relegating the war debts to secondary consideration.

"The improvement in the apparatus of production through technical invention and organization," the bushy-haired Berlin physicist said at a public symposium program here tonight, "has decreased the need for human labor and thereby caused the elimination of a part of the labor from economic circuit and thereby caused a progressive decrease in the purchasing power of the consumers."

The subject of the symposium was "America and the World Situation." It was arranged by the Southern California Student Body Presidents' Association. Other speakers were Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker; Dr. Robert A. Millikan and Dr. William B. Monro, all members of the executive council of the California Institute of Technology.

Prof. Einstein said the spreading of the view that internal causes are responsible for the economic situation would set aside "a dangerous source of mutual embitterment of the nations."

"From this understanding," the noted relativist added, "would also grow the spiritual forces which could lead to the overcoming of the depression."

Early Muscle Shoals Action Is Predicted

(Associated Press.)

Early action at the next session of Congress on Muscle Shoals legislation was foreshadowed yesterday when Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, announced he would introduce his bill for Government operation of the gigantic power and nitrate plants on the first day.

Norris, who has just returned from a visit to the power plant with President-elect Roosevelt, predicted the bill would be approved. In slightly different form it has been vetoed twice by Republican Presidents.

John L. Proctor Resigns As Deputy Comptroller

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mills yesterday announced the resignation of John L. Proctor, deputy comptroller of the currency and the appointment of Gibbs Lyons, of Jackson, Ga., as his successor.

Proctor, a native of Minnesota, has been deputy comptroller since 1928. Lyons entered the comptroller's staff in 1919.

Meeting Friday at Alexandria Designed to Increase Cooperation.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Officers of the four volunteer companies of the Alexandria Fire Department will meet at 8 o'clock Friday night in the auditorium of the Potomac Company, No. 2, the Alexandria Fire Department Officers Association, the purpose of which will be to promote cooperation among the officers and companies. The name, it is stated, may be changed to the Alexandria Fire Department Association. Officers of companies and squads, as well as all others interested, have been invited to attend the meeting.

Distribution was begun yesterday of the shoes donated Friday night to the Old Woman in a Shoe, during the course of the parade held in Alexandria under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club, at 802 King street, which was besieged by a crowd so great that the services of a policeman were required to preserve order.

The headquarters will be kept open daily from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

The Rev. Pierce S Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Alexandria, on Sunday morning installed these officers of the Valiant Knights Bible Class: C. E. Brooks, president; Jesse Channel, vice president; Thomas Payne, secretary; J. Troy Hawkins, treasurer, and R. H. Cox, teacher.

The second of a series of vocational talks by members of the club will be delivered before the Alexandria Rotary Club today by Charles Newman, manager of a local bottling plant.

Willie Cherry and Melvin Barber, both colored, recently acquitted by a jury in the Alexandria Corporation Court of a charge of grand larceny in connection with the theft of six rings, valued at $120, from a King street jewelry store, were arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of perjury in connection with their testimony in the larceny case, and were held for the grand jury.

According to Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims, the men charged that he beat them until they agreed to sign a confession. Deputy City Sergt. Frank Moriarty and Police Capt. John S. Arnold testified that no force was used in connection with the confession made by the men.

Police Capt. John S. Arnold, of Alexandria, yesterday acted as lord high executioner in the case of the City of Alexandria against 152 bottles of beer, 85½ gallons of corn "licker" and 5 gallons of wine. Capt. Arnold wielded a wicked ax in the presence of a large audience, who viewed his vandalism with doubtful eyes. Attending the obsequies, to give them an official flavor, were Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan and Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk of the courts.

McFadden Renews Attack on Hoover

Newspapers Are Quoted on Floor of House by Pennsylvanian.

(Associated Press.)

Carrying his criticism of President Hoover to the House floor again yesterday, Representative McFadden (Republican), Pennsylvania, said newspapers had questioned his "integrity" because of his attacks on the Chief Executive. The way in which Mr. Hoover has "violated the Constitution is open and notorious," McFadden told the House.

He quoted the New York Herald-Tribune as having called his recent attempt to impeach the President a "contemptible gesture." That paper added, McFadden continued, that he appeared to be a "common scold or a benevolent busybody."

The New York Evening Post, the Pennsylvanian said, referred to his charge against the President as "an indecency," the Philadelphia Inquirer called him "just a national nuisance" and said there was a question of whether McFadden "belongs not in the House of Representatives but in some other institution." The substance of these articles is "false and defamatory," McFadden said.

Hyattsville Council Orders Court Step to Oust Firemen

Rejects Compromise Suggested by Citizens Committee and Approved by Company, Holding Proposals Would Fail to Settle Question.

After rejecting a compromise suggested by a committee of citizens, the Hyattsville, Md., town council last night instructed its attorney to take legal steps to oust members of the original volunteer fire company, who have kept possession of the town fire apparatus since their company was dissolved by the council last week.

The compromise suggestions were made up last Saturday by attorneys for both sides, together with Mayor L. L. Gray and former Mayor H. T. Willis. They were accepted by the fire department, but rejected by the council by a tie vote settled by the mayor. Councilman C. D. Anderson then introduced the resolution instructing Attorney Caesar L. Aiello to institute legal proceedings against the original company.

Mr. Anderson said the council, which met in executive session, rejected the compromise because it did not settle any of the disputed questions, but just put them back where they were before the company was dissolved. The three items of the compromise were: The council to rescind the dissolution order, the firemen to elect their own officers, to be confirmed by the council, and expenditures to be more directly under control of the council. This last item included a provision that Hyattsville's share of the fire-aid money from the county should be turned over to the town if the County Firemen's Association, which dispenses the fund, permitted it.

Mr. Anderson's resolution called an unsupervised fire department a menace to the town, said there was no basis to the fire department's claim to be a separate corporation, and pointed out that it was the council's duty to maintain a fire department. The resolution instructed Mr. Aiello to get a judicial determination of the claims of the two sides, to protect the town's right to maintain the department, and to restrain the old department from occupying the firehouse.

STATE PLEDGES AID IN BRIDGE APPROACH

New Arlington County Fire-Alarm Phone System Is Installed.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Returning yesterday from Richmond, where he conferred with H. G. Shirley, State highway commissioner, on the question of the Lee boulevard, County Manager Roy S. Braden stated assurance was given that the State will cooperate with the county in the development of the project and its approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Shirley said the money is now available for the surfacing of the boulevard from Station 107 to Falls Church where it meets the Lee highway. This part of the project, he says, must be started not later than July 1, as the funds will not be available until after that date. No time for starting the work was given.

H. W. Beattie yesterday completed installing an automatic relay on telephones in all firehouses whereby the alarm is sounded by the operator at the telephone switchboard at the courthouse.

The case of Brint E. Shomette, held on two warrants, one charging operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and the other leaving the scene of an accident without giving his name or address, was continued until tomorrow to await the condition of Miss Carrie Wood, who was seriously injured when it is alleged his car struck the car in which she was riding early Sunday morning. He is being held on $2,500 bond.

Meeting tonight at the courthouse, the Arlington County School Board will consider the budget for the new year effective July 1.

At a special meeting last night in the Democratic headquarters in Clarendon, the Arlington County Democratic Woman's Club completed its plans for the series of benefit card parties to be held each month. The first of these will be held at headquarters Thursday night.

The special committee from the Arlington County Bar Association making a study of cost of local county government with a view of making recommendations to the association at its March meeting for a reduction in taxes will meet tonight in the office of the chairman, Emery N. Hosmer, opposite the county courthouse.

C. M. T. C. INSERTED IN HOUSE MEASURE the total, unless it meets the prices of the private bidders.

The antipathy of Mr. Collins toward the Philadelphia plant was clearly shown in his questioning of Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, during the secret hearings before his committee while the bill was being framed.

Those who favored the Philadelphia plant just wanted to get an extra thrill out of wearing a pair of drawers which were made under the supervision of Army officers, Mr. Collins charged. Officers of the United States Army do not make drawers, Mr. Steward snapped back.

Armed With Affidavits.

Mr. Ransley and his supporters, who will seek to have the Collins provision stricken from the bill, are armed with affidavits from workers in the employ of the private operators to show what they say will happen to the makers of United States Army uniforms if the Collins idea prevails.

One of these affidavits was made by a married woman in Philadelphia who is an experienced hand stitcher of 17 years' experience. She said she worked from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m., without a let-up for lunch, and was paid 36 cents, an average of four cents an hour.

Another was made by a man, an experienced clothing operator-tailor of 18 years' experience, who said he worked from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m. on one day and 13 hours the next day and two hours the third day and received a total of $2.36 in pay, an average of less than 10 cents an hour.

Not only are representatives of the workers against the Collins proposal but also are other manufacturers who refuse to pay such low wages.

20 Speeders Punished In Laurel Police Court

The drive against speeding on Baltimore boulevard netted 20 defendants yesterday. That number either were convicted in Laurel Police Court or forfeited collateral.

Fifteen of the speeding cases were for exceeding 40 miles an hour, while two were for exceeding 35 miles an hour in Laurel, and three were for a speed greater than "reasonable and proper." One man, William Barrett, of Baltimore, was sentenced to 30 days in jail in default of his $25 fine for speeding.

7 Cruisers Shifted To Pacific Armada

Eight 10,000-Ton Ships Only Strength Left on Atlantic.

San Pedro, Calif., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Cruiser Division 2, consisting of seven 6-inch gun cruisers, has been permanently assigned to the battle force here, Admiral Richard H. Leigh, commander in chief of the United States Fleet, announced today.

The assignment gives the Pacific armada dominant fighting strength of the entire United States Fleet. The scouting fleet, based on the Atlantic Coast, will thus hereafter have as its chief combatant strength only the eight 10,000 "treaty class" cruisers.

The fleet sailed from the harbor today for the annual war games. More than 125 vessels will take part.

LIQUOR LAW VALID IN PRINCE GEORGES

Circuit Court Rules County Act Constitutional in Demurrers.

The Prince Georges County liquor law is constitutional, the Circuit Court ruled yesterday afternoon in overruling demurrers filed in the cases of three men indicted last fall for possession of whisky.

The court's decision, rendered in the presence of the full bench, is based on a ruling of the Court of Appeals in another case, in which the constitutionality of the law was attacked. After sustaining the law in this case, the Court of Appeals had said "it is not claimed and we do not find that it (the county law) violates any other provision of the Constitution."

Binds Lower Court.

This decision of the higher court, holding the entire act valid, binds the lower court, it was said yesterday. Lawyers for the three accused men have not yet decided whether to appeal the Circuit Court decision and allow the Court of Appeals to pass on the new attack.

The three cases on which the law was tested are those against Ralph Sparks, James Hammon and Vincent Pokorny. They were represented by Attorneys J. Wilson Ryon, Lansdale G. Sasscer and Frank M. Hall. Overruling of the demurrers means that the men must stand trial on the indictments against them.

Raids Ordered Renewed.

The law, which applies only to Prince Georges County, was attacked on the grounds that the prohibition of possession of liquor is not mentioned in the title, and that no right is given magistrates to issue search warrants in possession cases. The sale and transportation provisions did not come under fire.

Shortly after the law was upheld yesterday J. J. Crowley, chief of police, issued instructions to his force to go ahead with raids on any suspected persons. Raids on possession violations had been suspended, pending the decision of the court, although the force had continued its drive against sale and transportation cases.

PROSECUTION PROBE REFUSED BY LEHMAN

G. O. P. Plea Brings Statement Officials Are Working on Voting Frauds.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Gov. Lehman declined today to order an investigation of the attorney general's office, in accordance with a request of State Republican leaders. The Republican leaders, including State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy, claimed that the law department had failed to check registration and voting frauds at the last election.

Gov. Lehman said he believed that both Attorney General Bennett and District Attorney Crain, of New York county, were "doing their duty" with regard to the prosecution of alleged election frauds.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Four indictments charging 23 election inspectors and others with violation of the congressional election law in connection with the election last November were returned today by a Federal grand jury.

Today's group was the second named by a Federal grand jury in election indictments. The first group consisted of seven Manhattan election officials, who were charged with conspiracy to falsify election returns, in an indictment returned ten days ago.

Subsequently a New York County grand jury returned indictments against 44 Manhattan election officials in connection with the election last November.

Firemen of Kensington Hold Annual Banquet

Members of the Kensington Volunteer Fire Department held their annual banquet last night at Villa Roma on the Rockville Pike near Montrose, Md. Impromptu remarks were offered by Alfred L. Geiger, president; Enoch H. Burner, secretary, and M. D. Curran, second vice president and retiring chief.

Chief Eugene J. C. Raney, H. E. Magruder and Thomas Saxon, members of the committee in charge, were roundly cheered by the firemen, who voted the affair the most successful in their history.

Furness Ties

Severed as Viscountess Is Granted Divorce by London Court.

London, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—A divorce was awarded today to Viscountess Furness, twin sister of Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, of New York, and sister of Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, jr., of Pittsburgh. Viscount Furness is chairman of the great Furness Shipbuilding Co., Ltd. The action, started December 21, was based on misconduct charges.

Lord and Lady Furness were married in London on June 27, 1926. She has been prominent in British society, frequently being seen in the company of the Prince of Wales at charity balls and other social events.

A daughter of Harry Haya Morgan, of New Orleans and New York, a former consular official, her first husband was James Vail Converse, New York broker. They were divorced in 1925.

Hyattsville Chamber Names Fahey President

Daniel Cox Fahey, jr., was unanimously elected president of the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce last night in place of W. T. Jennings, retiring president, who declined to run for a second term. There was no opposition for any of the offices filled last night, only one man being chosen for each place by the nominating committee.

Other officers are: Vice president, Walter F. Mulligan; treasurer, William Bowie; secretary, C. D. Anderson; member of the executive committee, A. H. Seidenspinner; national councillor, Morton T. May; and associate national councillor, B. W. Anspon.

Delayed Ship Carries British War Debt Gold

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Bar gold worth $4,000,000, part of Great Britain's December war debts payment, reached New York today in the liner Laurentic, of the White Star fleet. It was consigned to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The ship was 24 hours late because of rough weather.

DESPERADO ESCAPES IN LEAP FROM TRAIN

"The Swede," Wanted for Southern Murder, Flees En Route to Trial.

New Orleans, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Using his head and elbow as a battering ram, Stanley Anderson, St. Louis underworld character, known as "The Swede," today hurled himself through a plate glass window on a speeding Pullman train and escaped from two United States marshals who were bringing him here on a charge of murder.

Although the train was moving at 40 miles an hour at the time, Anderson apparently was not seriously injured. His cap was found in the midst of splintered glass by the side of the right of way and a Negro woman said she saw a man answering his description walk away quickly after the train passed. Later, officers received a report the same man was seen to hitch-hike a ride in a car traveling toward Baton Rouge. Officers believed confederates may have been waiting nearby through a prearranged plan.

U. S. Marshal T. W. Hukriede and Deputy William Layne, who had charge of the prisoner, said they pulled frantically at the emergency bell cord to stop the train, but no stop was made until the train reached the suburbs, when the delayed search started.

Anderson had been forced to wear leg-irons on the trip from St. Louis, but these were abandoned for handcuffs as the train neared here.

Anderson had these temporarily removed on the excuse of putting on his overcoat and leaped through the window before the officers could grab him.

Anderson was wanted here in connection with the mysterious disappearance two years ago of Louis Cheramie. Thomas Kehoe, a Federal prisoner arrested here several months ago, charged "the Swede" killed Cheramie in Donaldsonville, La., and threw the body into the Mississippi River. Bones were recently found in the river at a spot indicated by Kehoe as Cheramie's burial place, but they were not definitely identified as those of the missing man.

ILLUSION:

This very old illusion was invented by Indian fakirs. The secret was unearthed in 1849 by the great magician, Robert-Houdin. At that time, ether had just been discovered, and little was known about it. Houdin claimed that he had discovered that this new anesthetic could make people light as air. To prove it, he caused the subject to rise into the air and float apparently suspended. He passed a hoop around the body to show there were no wires or supports.

EXPLANATION:

There are many, many explanations for this old trick. One is that the girl wears a concealed harness, which ends in a socket between her shoulder blades. This is attached to a piston below the stage. The piston is pushed up from below, causing her to rise in the air. The piston is invisible, because it is covered with mirrors which reflect surrounding draperies, similar to the background. The magician can pass the hoop over her body because it is cut in one place. It can be pulled apart for a second when it passes the piston.

It's fun to be fooled— ...it's more fun to KNOW

Another "magic show" is cigarette advertising.

One of its greatest tricks is the illusion that cigarettes can be made miraculously "MILD" through manufacturing methods.

THE EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos.

The real difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. The better the tobacco, the milder it is.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

This is why Camels are so mild. This is why Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made.

It's the secret of Camels' rich "bouquet"... their cool flavor... their non-irritating mildness.

All the natural, ripe goodness of Camel's tobacco is kept fresh for you by the famous air-tight, welded Humidor Pack. Don't remove it.

NULLIFYING PROHIBITION.

Beer advocates of the Senate judiciary committee have put the House of Representatives to shame. The House was so naive as to pass a measure purporting to legalize beer of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content. But the canny old Senate will not put the head of its beer bill under the Supreme Court guillotine. It does not propose to legalize beer or any other beverage, but merely to withdraw all punishment for the manufacturers and vendors of light drinks. What can the Supreme Court do about that?

In this way the Senate judiciary committee has avoided the most perplexing question arising out of the attempts to modify the Volstead act. It develops the theory that "the definition of 'intoxicating liquor' for beverage purposes must ultimately rest with the judicial department of the Government". But Congress has the power to prescribe punishment for bootleggers or to leave them to the mercy of the States. Regardless of what the courts might decide as to the intoxicability of 3.05 per cent beer, the committee proposes to restrain the arm of Col. Woodcock's sleuths, so far as beverages of that potency are concerned.

Apparently this scheme avoids all possibility that the beer bill might be declared unconstitutional. The Supreme Court can not force Congress to punish liquor vendors. It can merely interpret the Constitution and set aside anything that is repugnant thereto. But if Congress wishes to embark upon a nullification policy, there is nothing to prevent it from doing so, except the weight of public opinion. In these days it appears that the anti-beer sentiment is not very weighty.

Of course, the judiciary committee contends that the 3.05 per cent beer and wine which it would make available to the public is not intoxicating in fact. But in spite of the precautions taken by the judiciary committee to keep this new beverage safely within the non-intoxicating class, there is a sneaking suspicion in the minds of some senators that it might not be harmless after all. Hence, Senator Borah's amendment, forbidding the sale of such non-intoxicants to minors, was adopted. The committee also decided to forbid advertising of this new elixir in the "dry" States. These safeguards are comparable to the attempt of the House to protect the "dry" States against the beverage which it proposed to legalize.

The chief virtue of the Senate measure is its honesty. It proposes to nullify the eighteenth amendment. This is the first step toward the abolition of enforcement, regardless of what the people may decide as to the amendment itself.

SPREADING EMPLOYMENT.

The share-the-work campaign has been the most effective means yet devised to put men back on the payroll. The latest estimate from the committee, of which Walter C. Teagle is chairman, shows that no less than 5,000,000 men and women have returned to at least part time jobs under the system of dividing available work. Communications have been received from nearly 100,000 firms employing all the way from a few operatives to many thousands. The great majority manifest every desire to care for the greatest possible number of employes.

Some factories find that their requirements for specialized workers do not lend themselves to work-sharing, as few men with the special skill necessary could be found among the unemployed, but in such cases efforts are being made to keep full forces at work. The committee does not intend to give the impression that employers throughout the country awaited suggestions from the organizers of the share-the-work movement before expanding their forces. Many thousands of factories and establishments of all kinds have been employing this considerate course for a year or two. However, the general agitation in favor of dividing what work there is has brought the possibilities of the sharing system to the attention of others who had not considered its advantages.

The Departments of Commerce and Labor have both been cooperating with the work-sharing committee in sending out questionnaires to industrial establishments, and have been gratified to find how generally the idea has been accepted. It has met with better response among industrial plants than in the "white-collar" class. It is reported, however, that various trials that are being made by department stores, banks and offices are being watched with interest. Methods of spreading employment are being perfected and doubtless will greatly extend available part-time work in these categories. Secretary Chapin finds that keeping the maximum number of employes on the payroll of American industry has already had a great stabilizing effect.

WAR ON CRIMINALS.

All forces are working toward a speedy breakdown of the crime wave in Washington. Major Brown, superintendent of police, has increased his night force so that the city may be more effectively patrolled. In the courts the wheels of justice have been oiled and every effort will be made to bring to trial the suspects now in custody.

Speedy trials for all the alleged criminals who fall into the police dragnet are possible because the criminal docket of the District supreme court is up to date for the first time in its history. District Attorney Rover and the court are entitled to commendation for this performance. They have followed the example of the Supreme Court of the United States in disposing of old cases. Current business may now be handled without the delay which has become characteristic of American courts. Criminal trials may be conducted two weeks after the crime instead of the customary two years.

Indications are that the police are quite capable of thwarting any attempt that may be made to establish organized criminal gangs in Washington. If they meet every crime wave, whether large or small, with drastic measures, and are able to put a major portion of the hold-up men, burglars and safe-blowers behind the bars, there will be no opportunity for gangsters to get a hold on the National Capital. Their efforts will be materially strengthened by speedy action in the courts. Justice must not only be sure, but it must be swift to be effective.

Neither the police nor the courts should hesitate to use drastic measures. Amateur gangs may be easily stamped out, but if the city should once become a prey for gangsters, a prolonged battle would be necessary to restore peace and order. Prevention is always better than cure. Let the machinery of law enforcement be augmented to any extent that is necessary to cope with this menace of a gangster invasion.

TERRITORIAL CLAIMS.

Europe apprehends a new source of trouble in the territorial demands of Italy and Germany in the not distant future. Berlin is expected to begin with negotiations for the restoration of her colonial possessions, while the recent attitude of Rome indicates action with regard to her long-cherished desire to annex the Dalmatian coast. The recent destruction of two stone lions at Trogir, relics of the days of Venetian domination, has been magnified into a national insult in Italy, though this act of vandalism was committed at night by unknown persons.

Italy holds Zara, with a small surrounding area, under the 1920 treaty of Rapallo. The balance of Dalmatia is under Yugoslav domination. Italy's claim to the 230 miles of Adriatic coast line is based on the fact that the seacoast towns are largely populated by Italians, though the rest of Dalmatia is by a large majority Slavic. With control of Dalmatia, Italy would be in absolute control of the Adriatic, since the coast contains many excellent harbors and a long chain of islands which form a natural base for naval operations.

The incident of the lions has aroused intense popular feeling both in Yugoslavia and Italy, and has been the subject of conference between the nations of the Little Entente, which are now somewhat fearful that with the renewed efforts to reconcile Franco-Italian differences the interests of France's minor Balkan allies may be prejudiced. The recent large shipment of arms from Italy to Hungary, it is believed, would have been the subject of much more energetic protests from Belgrade if it had not been for restraining word from Paris.

Germany has as yet made no outward move in the matter of regaining lost territory, but those who have watched the successive steps which culminated in the suspension of indemnity payments and more recently the acceptance by Great Britain, France and Italy of Germany's claims for armament equality see territorial demands as the next step. It is expected that the more complex questions relative to the Polish Corridor and upper Silesia, held by Poland, will not be pressed until after demands have been made for the return of colonial possessions now under British mandate. With the completion of the agreement regarding armament this action is looked upon as a natural sequence. German claims for the return of neighboring territory is also considered inevitable, but this will be resisted to the bitter end by Poland, and the approach to this demand may be expected through less controversial questions. With uniform success in all the various attacks which Germany has made upon the provisions of the Versailles Treaty it will not be surprising if her next step will seek to break the compacts which curtailed her territory.

CHANGING SPAIN.

Nothing so strikingly emphasizes the evolution of Spain under republican rule as the changed status of women. They now have equal political rights with men, who formerly had absolute control of every act of their wives. Divorce, which in former days was almost unknown, may now be secured by common consent or allegation of misconduct by either party. The only limitation is that those who have been divorced three times may not remarry. Spain has adopted the eight hour day and six day week.

In addition to the changes in general laws one of the most interesting experiments in self-government bestowed on a minority group is to be witnessed in Catalonia's virtual independence. The Spanish government retains the right to intervene in that fiery province only in case of extreme necessity. For the first time since 1705 Catalonia has its own parliament. Col. Macias, president of the Gerneralidad, announced at the time of the elections that Catalonia would manifest its "spirit of liberty in collaboration with Spain and with the rest of the world."

The center of a highly developed industrial as well as agricultural district, Barcelona is today the largest port on the Mediterranean. It is full of factories, smart shops and more energetic business than is customary in Spanish cities. The fast tempo of life in Barcelona is at once apparent to the traveler. There are eleven parties in Catalonia, each struggling to make itself felt, but only two have achieved much power. The Esquera party, headed by Col. Macia, won sixty-eight of the parliamentary seats, while the conservative Regional League gained the other seventeen.

Headed by Spain's leading financier, Francisco Cambo, the Regional League stands for the existing order without change. It was this party that was responsible for gaining Catalonia's autonomy. The really radical elements have found Col. Macias too mild and so have split into various smaller groups, the most important being the labor syndicate, with 600,000 members. This organization demands sweeping social reforms. Having secured a large measure of independence the separatists are now demanding the next step. Some observers feel that most Catalans are separatists at heart, and that the new party which has been started will attract members from all the older organizations, to combine under the banner which will advocate eventual complete independence from Spain.

ARMS FOR HUNGARY.

The academic discussion of connections between armaments and war debts has been given somewhat practical application in a minor way by the recent shipment of arms from Italy to Hungary. Following so closely upon the heels of Hungary's default of the small payment due last month to the United States it would be interesting to know the cost of the 50,000 rifles and 200 machine guns which arrived in Hungary via Austria from Verona. Yugoslavia sees in this consignment of arms to her enemy neighbor new evidences of Italian intrigue.

The various explanations that the arms were simply obsolete guns captured during the war by Italy and returned as a friendly gesture, or that Hungary is simply stocking up against the expected release from treaty restrictions, do not sound very convincing to the Little Entente. The growing hostile feeling between Belgrade and Rome continues to be disquieting, and there is a somewhat general belief that Yugoslavia and her allies would have made more pronounced protest against this latest development if they had not been restrained by France.

The minor features of the Balkan disputes all revert to France and Italy as the important factors, with Italy arming Hungary and now allied by blood ties with Bulgaria, while France is the sponsor for the nations of the Little Entente. At Paris there is hope that Franco-Italian differences may be adjusted, and the troubles of the little nations will not be allowed to interfere with such a consummation.

Here is business for the League of Nations close at home; to negotiate Balkan settlements that will relieve the growing tension. Considering the Balkan incident which started the world conflagration, the league, if it is ever to be of service in an important crisis, might well direct its attention to smothering sparks that are now being scattered in the inflammable Balkans.

It is proposed to expand the Anglo-American conference into a world economic confab. That's all right, if the debtors will continue to pay their installments.

Under the lame duck amendment the first lame duck in the Government will be President Roosevelt, unless he is re-elected.

JIG-SAW PUZZLES

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Periodically some ancient pastime is taken up and made a fad by large numbers of the American people, played for all it is worth and then forgotten. Mah jong, crossword puzzles, backgammon, and very recently jig-saw puzzles, have had their day of triumph. All of these had their devotees for generations, and all retain a goodly number of followers after the craze is over. But each of them at times has been the foundation of a big industry so long as millions, not merely hundreds, were actively interested.

The current enthusiasm for jig-saw puzzles seems to have developed gradually, supposedly reflecting the increased leisure that came with business depression and unemployment. Certainly the jig-saw puzzle, in its more elaborate forms, requires a vast amount of leisure. Indeed, it requires not merely leisure, but the state of mind that envisages nothing important to be done for a long time to come. A psychologist might easily maintain that it is the ideal pastime for those who are waiting for business to pick up.

Oddly enough, the present-day jig-saw puzzle usually is not made with a jig saw, but is stamped out of cardboard or composition with a die, making its production very cheap. More costly puzzles still are sawed out. Here and there is an individual who has fitted up a jig saw and makes his own puzzles. This is just as laborious as solving them, but a trifle more satisfying to the creative instinct.

Like many another "modern" pastime the jig-saw puzzle is rooted in antiquity. The ancient Egyptians, we are told, used to while away the long summer afternoons with just such puzzles. Doubtless it is safe to give the jig-saw puzzle another year or so and then predict its prompt demise. If it be true that its popularity is the psychological response to depression and idleness then we may devoutly hope the jig-saw puzzle makers go broke in short order. Let them try depression awhile!

PITY.

I like that sort of pity best which shares
That which it has and silent moves along,
Which makes no question now of right or wrong,
But merely sees the suffering someone bears,
Senses sharp hunger nor asks no cares
Whose is the blame or where the faults belong,
Nor makes an object lesson for the throng
Of one poor brother's sad and bleak affairs.

Pity, I think, has little time to teach.
The hungry sinner needs a meal of bread.
Pity would rather help than stay to preach;
Would rather find the weary man a bed.
It argues never when the poor beseech,
But gives and thinks that little should be said.

It Isn't Winning That Makes the Great Lawyer, but the Methods He Refuses

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IF you wish to know how a man will handle large affairs, observe how he handles small ones. If you wish to know whether he will deal justly and sensibly with many servants, observe how he deals with one.

If this is a fair and reasonable way to judge men, you now have the evidence by which to measure statesmen on whom the Nation depends for salvation.

Consider the Byrd case.

Byrd is a member of an organized group of citizens whose object is national economy. One economy suggested by him and his group would deny compensation to disabled veterans whose disability had no connection with their war service. Men disabled 15 years after a brief service in uniform, said he, should not be supported by taxpayers.

For this he was immediately and furiously attacked by statesmen who did not agree with him. "You have no right to criticize," they said, "for you are drawing disability pay of $4,200 a year from the Government. How can you condemn others for doing the very thing you are doing yourself?"

That sounds convincing, doesn't it? But wait.

Why does a surgeon deserve more pay than a ditch digger? Because of the years he spent learning his trade and the greater service he renders.

Byrd spent years learning his trade and deserved the pay of an officer.

When a leg injury made him unable to stand a four-hour watch, he was placed on the retired list. But he was recalled to active service and now earns every cent he draws. This is the testimony of the chief of navigation, and the facts are known to Byrd's critics.

In what way is he guilty of the practice he condemns if he was injured in service and the veterans were not?

In what way is his case similar to theirs if he is still in service while they were discharged long ago?

If he draws compensation unjustly, he should be required to return it; if he is legally and justly entitled to the compensation he receives, why doesn't he share the right of every free and honest citizen to condemn a practice he considers evil?

It isn't the injustice to Byrd that matters. But the effort to injure his cause by placing him in a false light is a shyster trick. It is the trick of a hick-town lawyer who convicts an innocent man of crime by telling a jury of religious zealots that he is an atheist.

Such tricks may indicate shrewdness, since they get results, but does their use indicate the bigness of mind needed to guide a nation in distress?

What else could Rome expect of Nero if he was a fiddler before the fire started?

POLITICAL COMMENT

Jobs for Democrats.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

In response to Senator Kenneth McKellar's resolution, passed by a patronage-hungry Senate, the Civil Service Commission has completed a list of the Federal jobs available for appointment without benefit of the merit system. It is an extraordinary document, now printed for the second time, being first compiled when the Democrats came to power in 1913. This year, however, it is being printed on a large scale, for distribution to deserving Democrats who want to know what jobs there are to be had.

The patronage list includes approximately 65,000 jobs, from Cabinet offices down to watchmen and janitors. To this may properly be added more than 15,000 postmasterships, which are under the merit system, but in such manner as to make partisan appointments easy. This gives a handsome total of 80,000 plus, and, if minor and temporary jobs be added, the grand total is more like 125,000.

Democrats for Tariff.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Reports from Washington of "a marked change" in the attitude of Democratic leaders toward the tariff should be encouraging to American business and industry. After all their thundering during the campaign against the "iniquitous" Republican tariff—which incidentally was enacted with their votes—they are now saying that this is no time to weaken the protection for American wage-earners.

Deadly Parallel.

New York Herald Tribune.

It is interesting to note the parallel between the ratification of this amendment and that of the eighteenth. Seventeen States approved the present reform last year before the adjournment of their legislatures for the summer political campaigns. The rest, or eighteen to date, have acted since they met in regular session the first week of this month. In the case of the prohibition amendment fifteen ratified the first year (1918), and in the following January 29 tumbled into the fold. Before this week is out no doubt a comparable drama will have been enacted. Apparently a proper setting of the stage is all that is necessary for legislative ratification of an amendment in record time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fewer Cabs and More Equitable Fares Would Improve Taxicab Situation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The people's counsel, Mr. Keech, is, according to press reports, in favor of an increase in taxicab rates, because he, like every one else familiar with the taxicab business, is convinced that the drivers can not make a living out of the cab business under present conditions.

However, he is opposed to a taximeter system because he believes that a meter system would put some drivers out of business. At the same time, he is quoted as being in favor of requiring taxicabs to carry insurance. As meters can be bought for as little as $25 and as cab insurance—the most expensive item attached to cab operation—costs over $300 a year, it can be readily seen that his position regarding meters is inconsistent. The insurance that he favors would doubtless put some cabs out of business, but the meters cost so little in comparison that it would put very few, if any, out of business.

A standard rate of any kind, zone or meter, if based on costs of operations, would improve present conditions for both the public and the drivers. A limit to the number of cabs and drivers is also needed because of the failure of the Public Utilities Commission to enforce the anticab rental law. The streets are crowded with rented cabs.

Does Japan's Fear That Other Nations Are Selling Arms to China Betray Her Intentions?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our Far Eastern diplomacy and relations afford considerable humor in certain of their aspects. Consider the feeling and excitement aroused in Japan by the allegations of her press that the United States and Germany are selling munitions and military supplies to China. Perhaps it was the proper course for our State Department to make a prompt denial, but according to the highest Japanese authority Japan is at peace with China. What grounds has she for objecting to our selling anything whatever to a nation with whom she is at peace? Germany was sufficiently arrogant the first years of the late war, but I do not remember that she made any attempt to force us to deny we were selling munitions to the allies.

Very likely, when we seek to induce the Europeans to reduce their armaments drastically, we are like a tenderfoot in a mining camp trying to persuade the inhabitants not to carry a gun. In that case we might as well recognize what sort of a world we are living in. The tenderfoot, if he is wise, and especially if there is friction between himself and some of his neighbors, will provide himself with the best weapons obtainable and form pleasant relations with as many as possible. Woman Suggests That Unemployed Seek Odd Jobs in Residential Districts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I'd like to make a suggestion for these unusual times that I believe would work:

I believe if a carpenter out of work would go from door to door in a neighborhood where he was known, asking if there were any small jobs needing to be done, that in many cases he would be able to make a living wage. After going through the neighborhood once let him go back again in a few days.

I know in my case often I would be glad to pay a small sum to have a picture hung or other odd jobs done, but rather than call a carpenter for a small job I either wrestle with it myself or wait until several small jobs have accumulated. No doubt in many cases the carpenter might have to come back the next day with the proper tools, because likely he could not carry a whole tool chest around with him, but that would not make any difference in most cases.

I am anxious to see this plan tried out because, judging by my own needs, I believe it will work.

Animal Lover Envisions Cruel Punishment for Sportsmen and Toreadors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An American toreador, strutting before the camera and harrying a helpless, nose-ringed, unfortunate bull, is to me neither heroic nor amusing, but only one more contemptible instance of man's myriad detestable forms of cruelty toward so-called lower animals.

A staged lion hunt is another immediate instance, and the hideous "sport" of fox hunting we have always near at hand.

How long will it be before the lower members of the human race become sufficiently civilized to cease regarding as sport all these abominable forms of torturing and slaying defenseless dumb creatures?

If the doctrine of transmigration is valid, justice might be served by having the souls of animal tormentors, from sportsmen to vivisectionists, inhabit after death bodies similar to the victims that they have tormented and to suffer as they have caused these to suffer. MRS. C. E.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, a 4-year-old white boy, is found by a roving family of lions in the heart of the jungle and adopted by Kali, a powerful lioness, whose cubs had just been killed by hyenas. Her mate, Paka, the leader of the group, Nguvu, another male lion, and his mate, Mua, tolerated the child because Kali had taken him for her own. He is brought up with the other young cubs. Mua is caught in a trap laid by natives and killed in full sight of Kaspa and the lions. From then on Kaspa realizes that man is his enemy. Because of the danger from the natives, Paka leads his family away to the distant mountains.

CHAPTER 3.

THE new den was 60 miles away on the upper reaches of the Noyoka River. It was here that Kaspa, being now nearly 6 years old, began to learn something of hunting and the customs of his adopted people. The child was unusually tall and developed for his years. He was quite naked, tanned, and his bright golden hair formed a cap of curly thickness for the protection of his head. He was fleet, agile, strong and hardy as a lion's cub. His sense of hearing and sight had been abnormally developed, but his scent, though infinitely keener than that of an ordinary man, was yet inferior to any of the wild creatures. He made up for it by increased intelligence and by his hands—instruments of utility beyond the envy or understanding of his companions. They enabled him to climb, which no lion could do. By observing the monkeys he soon became agile and fearless in the branches.

His education went forward apace. He was taught the lion's way of hunting zebra and kongoni. The easiest method of hunting was by the drive. Having located a herd of game, Paka would post Kali and Kaspa downwind in the best cover available. The old lion and Nguvu would make the circuit of the herd, uttering their melancholy hunting roars which, by an effect of ventriloquism, appeared to come from all points of the compass. While the confused zebras gathered in a bunch, uncertain which way to run, the lions would suddenly rush them and in the stampede that followed, Kali would jump out and catch the nearest one and kill it.

Kaspa at this time was unable to kill any of the larger creatures. If a small gazelle were mixed up with the zebra herd, he would catch it and break its neck by the leverage of the horns. In many encounters he was cut and beaten and once sustained a couple of broken fingers. In this way, he earned the astonishing hardihood of wild creatures which enables them to run and fight even when seriously wounded.

He seemed to thrive on a diet of raw meat, berries and such fruit as he saw the monkeys eat. At an early age, the boy's mind had developed far beyond that of an animal and he was aware that he was not a true carnivore. In shape he was not unlike the natives he had seen murdering Mua, but he was convinced he was not of their tribe because his skin was whiter and his hair of a different color and texture. Neither was he a monkey. He came to the conclusion that he was a kind of ape born of a lion.

Paka, warned by Mua's fate, gave the natives a wide berth. As soon as the natives vacated the thorn country and returned to the high veld, the lions went back to their old lair in the kopje. Here Kali reenforced the pack with two fine male cubs, the progeny of Paka. They were called Dogo and Ruka, and were both black manes like their father.

These two were Xaspa's brothers and constant companions. He played with them as cubs and bore the scars of their teeth and claws upon his skin, for the playing of lion cubs is not gentle. He quickly learned that he was no match for a lion in sheer strength. He discovered that his best chance in holding his own with them and win a place in their regard lay in his agility. Quick and spry as a cat, he could leap and dodge and run in a manner most puzzling to his four-footed playmates. But despite his superior agility, it seemed he would never be able to conquer a lion. His equipment was too meager.

He could dodge a rush, parry a stroke, place himself in a position to inflict damage, but when he had done so the damage was beyond his power to inflict. His teeth were negligible as weapons and his claws were futile. Remained his hands, deadly weapons against most things with his enormous strength, but of little use against teeth and claws. At times he would try to throttle his playmates, but the lions would wrench loose their grip and throw him off without trouble. Straight punches sufficiently severe to cripple a man had little effect upon the bony heads and massive bodies of his antagonists. Of course, he could always run away, but this was not very satisfactory. To live among savage companions and be unable to compel respect is a dangerous existence, as he found out by the events of the summer which found him 16 years of age.

Paka was by this time a very old lion. His muzzle was gray, his teeth loose in his head and his sight failing. He did but little hunting and but for the activities of his pack would almost certainly have starved to death or been driven to man killing. He still tried to assist in the capture of game, but he had become so slow and uncertain that his efforts were more harmful than useful.

One night when a kengoni had been hunted almost into the jaws of Kali it turned at the last minute and tried to break back through the drive. It made straight in Paka's direction, and the old lion unhesitatingly launched himself at its throat. But his fading eyes were not keen enough, his motions too slow. He missed his hold on the throat, and the beast with lowered horns charged straight into his chest, knocking him out of the way and making its escape to the open veldt. Paka struggled to his feet and roared his rage and disappointment. He did not seem to be hurt at that time, but after they had returned to the cave, hungry and tired, Kaspa was surprised to notice that Paka made no attempt to leap on to his flat-topped rock, but lay down in the sand beside it. In the day he awoke several times and heard the old lion groaning in his sleep. As usual, Kaspa roused himself in the afternoon and set out upon his rambles along the river bank, rambles in which the lions had no share. When he reentered the cave at dusk it was to find Kali standing over the prostrate body of her mate, sniffing at him in a frightened way. Kaspa sat down to watch. It was strange that Paka did not awake, and he began to understand that the old lion was not as usual. In a few minutes Kali communicated to him the intelligence that the leader was dead.

At dusk they were abroad again, and Ruka almost immediately struck down a fear-blinded impalla doe that crossed his path. He set paws on the carcass, and raised his voice in the roar of triumph that announces a kill. The doe was dragged into a suitable position beneath a tree, the belly opened and entrails removed, and the lion family gathered to the feast, but scarcely had Ruka torn his first mouthful from the haunch than a low grunting was heard close at hand and every head was lifted expectantly to watch a newcomer emerge from the bush.

He was an enormous tawny-mane in the prime of his strength. He paused in the moonlit clearing and grunted an inquiry. The answering grunts were doubtful, and not inviting, but the big male came forward with the confidence of one who is on his own hunting ground and strong enough to resist infringement of his rights. He was entitled to figure as a guest at this meal, and it would take more than an old warrior and two young ones to keep him from it.

Kaspa he ignored, summing him up as some sort of freak creature—a hybrid ape, perhaps. Kali snarled at him as he came foarward, and he walked wide of her, as became a male when a lady insulted him, but this detour brought him within a few feet of Nguvu, who, unwilling to be ousted by this handsome fellow, snarled also. Quick as a flash, Bulu turned and attacked the old lion with fang and claw. Nguvu, half surprised, was overwhelmed. He rolled over and over, roaring terribly, striving to keep the tawny-mane's teeth from his throat, but suffering severe gashes on neck and forearm.

With thrusting hind feet he managed to throw Bulu clear, but before he could regain his feet the big lion was back at him, ripping and tearing and snarling like a demon. Nguvu was knocked about like a helpless cub. He was dazed from a succession of blows upon the sides of his head, and the other gave him no time to regain his wits.

In a moment he was in full retreat into the bush, with Bulu after him. Kaspa watched all this, astonished. It was the first fight, other than the petty differences of half-grown cubs, that he had seen. He wondered whether they should interfere on Nguvu's behalf, but before he could make up his mind on this point Bulu returned and stalked up to the kill as though he owned it. This was too much for Ruka's self-control. It was his kill, and Bulu was an uninvited guest. He marched forward snarling, and immediately was overtaken by the same fate as Nguvu. So rapid and irresistible were the big lion's attacks that the unfortunate Ruka, though a well-grown and powerful youngster, was given no opportunity to prove his prowess. He crouched down, growling defiance, but plainly showing that he had no desire to dispute the ownership of the kill with so dangerous an opponent.

In a lordly manner Bulu began to eat. Kali came up for her share, and beyond a sideways glance at her he ignored her presence, but the instant either Dogo or Ruka attempted to follow her example a warning growl made them retreat.

Kaspa and his brothers sat watching the new leader eating his fill, and when at last he was satisfied he moved a little way apart and lay down as though making the others free of his leavings. Ruka and Dogo went forward, but when Kaspa joined them, Bulu rose and without warning made a rush at him.

The boy, warned by the experience of Nguvu and Ruka, had never taken his eyes off the big lion, and he was not caught napping. With a sudden effort he leaped 5 feet off the ground and caught a bough above his head pulling himself up until he was well out of reach. He sat there snarling at the attacker and wishing he had the strength to descend and fight it out with him. Bulu lay down again, but at every movement of the boy in the tree he growled and looked warlike.

Kaspa got no food that night. He sat up in the branches watching the others feed under the savage eye of big tawny-mane. Ruka and Dogo were depressed and nervous. All their lives they had been subjected to the leadership of Paka, and now they did not know what attitude to take toward the confident interloper. Kali, obedient to the law that governed her kind, conducted herself as though nothing untoward had happened. It was in the best interests of the lion family that their leader should be a redoubtable fighter and a forceful character. Bulu was both.

Events in Washington Society

Mrs. Hoover Guest of Honor at Luncheon Of Mrs. Adams.

MRS. HOOVER WAS THE guest of honor at an informal luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy. The other guests were the Cabinet hostesses.

The Minister of the Netherlands, Mr. J. H. Van Royen, left Washington yesterday for Philadelphia to be the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Netherlands Society.

The Minister of Canada, Mr. William D. Herridge, will go to New York this evening and join Mrs. Herridge there.

The Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro entertained at a tea on Saturday in the legation for Miss Fanny Stanish and her fiance, Senor Eduardo Sosa, whose marriage will take place on Thursday. Senor Sosa was attache of the Legation of Panama during the former regime of Dr. Alfaro. More recently he was private secretary to President Harmodio Arias, and is now Secretary of the United States-Panama Claims Commission.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Ogden Mills will be the guests in whose honor Senator and Mrs. Warren Barbour will entertain at dinner on February 7. Senator and Mrs. Barbour will go to Hilden, their estate in New Jersey, for the week-end.

The Secretary of War, Mr. Patrick J. Hurley, has returned to Washington from New York.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Arthur M. Hyde, is in New York for a few days.

Representative and Mrs. Chester Bolton entertained at luncheon yesterday. Their son, Mr. Charles Bolton, will join them on Friday for a week, after which he will go to Florida for the remainder of the winter.

Representative and Mrs. Bolton will entertain again at luncheon on Sunday.

The Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, Col. Clarence M. Young, is in Detroit, where this evening he will address the Society of Automotive Engineers. Col. Young will return to Washington on Thursday.

The former Assistant to the Attorney General and Mrs. John Lord O'Brian have returned to Washington and will be at the Wardman Park Hotel for about a week.

Miss Gherardi Announces Wedding Arrangements.

Miss Neville Taylor Gherardi, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter Rockwell Gherardi, whose marriage to Mr. Christopher Robinson, jr., will take place on Saturday, has chosen for her matron of honor her sister-in-law, Mrs. Walter Rockwell Gherardi, jr.

Miss Gherardi's two young nieces, Lila Rockwell Gherardi and Florence Neville Gherardi, small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gherardi, jr., will be flower girls. The bridesmaids will be Miss Cornelia Szechenyi, Miss Anna Lodge Minot, Miss Alice Graeme and Princess Ourusoff.

Mr. A. Bruce Matthews, of Toronto, will be best man and the ushers will be Mr. Walter Gherardi, jr., Mr. Taylor Gherardi and Mr. Hopewell Darneille.

The wedding will take place at 4 o'clock in All Saints' Church, Chevy Chase, Md., the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, rector of the church, officiating. A small reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents.

Capt. Barron DuBois, U. S. N., and Mrs. DuBois, with their debutante daughter, Miss Catherine DuBois, have left for Florida, where they will be for several weeks.

Capt. and Mrs. J. S. McCain announce the marriage of their son, Ensign J. S. McCain, jr., to Miss Roberta Wright, Saturday, January 21, at the home of the bride's parents in Los Angeles. Ensign McCain was graduated from the Naval Academy with the class of 1931. Miss Wright is a graduate of the University of California. Capt. McCain, who is in command of the U. S. S. Nitro, was present at his son's wedding.

Mrs. Sutton McKee entertained informally at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton.

Mrs. Harry Norment returned yesterday from New York, where she and Mr. Norment had been for several days, and left this morning by plane for Palm Beach, where she will be for several weeks.

Dorothy Griffith Wed To Joseph de R. Cranford.

The Rev. John Hammond Griffith, of Roanoke, Va., announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Dorothy Page Griffith, to Mr. Joseph de Ronde Cranford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cranford, of this city. The marriage took place on Saturday at Rockville, Md., and was performed by the Rev. A. B. Rudd. After a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Cranford will be at home at 3320 Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Francis E. Warren, wife of the late senator from Wyoming, is at the Carlton for some time.

Mrs. John Glover Smith, wife of the Minister of the United States to Portugal, will sail today to join the minister in Lisbon. She will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Morrow, whom she has been visiting and who will spend some time in Lisbon, returning to Washington in February.

Representative and Mrs. Charles D. Millard, of New York, who make their home at Wardman Park Hotel, are entertaining for a small group at dinner there on Thursday.

Dr. and Mrs. John B. Martin have motored to Washington from their home in Wheeling, W. Va., and are at the Carlton.

Mr. W. W. Spaid is spending some time at St. Augustine, Fla.

Mrs. Charles I. Corby is at the Breakers, Palm Beach.

Miss Laura Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis, is in Bermuda.

Mrs. Ira Wallace Sylvester, of Alexandia, La., is at the Evangeline Hotel while visiting her son, Lieut. M. D. Sylvester, on duty in the Navy Department.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. C. Pearsall, of New York City, are at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles De Sales Thomas entertained at dinner last evening at the University Club before the address given by Mr. David Lawrence. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel and Mrs. M. A. Jordan Markley.

Mrs. Perry S. Heath entertained at luncheon yesterday.

Mrs. C. T. Richardson, of Springfield, Mass., is at the Carlton for a few days, where she will be joined shortly by Mr. Richardson.

Mrs. Gerry, wife of former Senator Peter Goelet Gerry, has been reelected president of the board of directors of Biltmore Hospital at Asheville, N. C.

Mme. Paul Dupuy, publisher, of Paris, France, is at the Carlton for several days, accompanied by her son, Mr. Jean Dupuy, and Vicomte de Bonchamps.

The wedding of Miss Katherine Clark Pendleton-Arrington to Mr. William Conway, of Henderson, Ky., took place at Warrenton. Mrs. Conway is the adopted daughter of Mrs. Peter Arrington, of Warrenton, who spends the winter in Washington. Her father was the late Milo M. Pendleton. The family was prominent in Southern society. She was educated in Fassifern, N. C., and St. Timothy's Catonsville, Md., and was graduated from Miss Spence's School in New York in 1929. She also studied in Switzerland. She made her debut in 1929 and has traveled extensively in Europe and the Near East.

Wedding Announced

Underwood & Underwood.

MRS. ERNEST SIDNEY LEWIS GOODWIN, who was before her marriage, January 3, Miss Betty Zane, daughter of Lieut. Col. Edmund L. Zane, of Nice, France.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WHAT Manager Meakin modestly hopes will be one of the most distinguished groups of veterans of the Great War ever assembled in a Washington theater to view a footage of celluloid of particular interest to them will gather in RKO-Keith's tonight at 11 o'clock for a special, complimentary, preview screening of "The Big Drive," to be presented as the regular attraction on Fifteenth street for the week beginning Friday.

This invitational preview audience will be composed of the officers of both the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, a large proportion of the 80-odd veterans in Congress, plus a large number of high ranking officers of the Army and Navy.

"The Big Drive," of which most flattering accounts are filtering into Washington from outside cities where it has been either publicly or privately shown, is a pictorial record of the World War, compiled from the official Government films in the archives of eight of the warring nations, representative of both the Allies and the Central Powers.

It is not improbable that many of the distinguished veterans who will be present at tonight's midnight showing will recognize themselves at some juncture in the action, since the picture carries the United States through the entire period of its participation in the conflict.

This extraordinary film was compiled by Albert L. Rule, formerly of the A. E. F., who, with his motion picture camera, caught many of the battles of the war and, too, many heart-rending scenes of actual hand-to-hand fighting and death.

Since the termination of the struggle, Sergt. Maj. Rule has been visiting the other nations involved, securing their respective official films and fashioning them into an accurate and thrilling visual history of the great conflict.

Admission tonight will be by invitation only.

Speaking of attractions in the offing, within the next few weeks there will be flashed upon a local screen a feature-length Columbia picture, bearing the title, "Obey the Law."

In this film, written especially for the screen by Fannie Hurst, will be Leo Carillo, Lois Wilson, Dickie Moore and a young man whose identity you will probably fail to penetrate through his make-up although he is appearing this week in the flesh and in his persona propria as a feature of the stage bill at the Earle.

The young man is Eddie Garr, whose mimetic abilities made him much in demand during a recent Hollywood visit of some ten weeks duration. It was while on this ostensible vacation that he was lured before the cameras and mikes for "Obey the Law."

Well, at least, Columbia has an optimistic title writer!

And that stage show at the Earle reminds me. Last evening while dozing before the great log fireplace and listening to the blizzard howling through the pine-clad gorges of Gallatin street, it came to mind to twiddle the dials a bit and see what good the Three X Sisters might be doing the great bleacher, George Marshall, God's gift to linen, and man-about-the-better-places.

Well, sir, you would have been surprised!

Even while still groping around a bit for an acceptable routine to grace their first vaudeville appearance under their new billing, at the Earle last Friday afternoon, these three X's —Ibex, Index and Kopex, if you recall—struck this rickety old typewriter as being pretty smart songstresses, blessed with something a little beyond the usual endowment in versatility, but last night, on the air, they sounded like one million dollars!

I have since been told that they have hit their true stride at the Earle and are stopping the show at every performance. I wouldn't give any one an argument about it after listening to them last night, isolated out there in the big snow country, as I was, by the frigid intensity of this Arctic cold snap we're having with the January thermometer 'way down in the 70's and blowing on its knuckles!

Since you won't let the matter of the stage show drop, Sidney Marion, over at Loew's Fox, where his thick dialect is teamed with Marie Duval's gorgeous warbling, is engaged in a more or less honorable, and fruitless, pursuit of a renaissance that seems a bit difficult to bring about. I mean the restoration to favor of the brand of low German comedy that flourished before the war.

When the gray-clad hosts began their fatal tramp over the poppy fields of Flanders and the prostrate form of heroic little Belgium, they were walking directly upon the neck of a type of comedy that had waxed fat for years on the American stage under the inspired patronage of such of the old masters as Weber & Fields, Sam Bernard, Raymond & Caverly, Cliff Gordon, Kolb & Dill and scores of others.

When we got into the big muss, "Dutch" comedy went out, like sauerkraut, and couldn't discover any convenient non de guerre, like "liberty cabbage," under which to sneak back in. And the chin-whisker-and-flat-derby boys have been having a tough time of it ever since. Jack Pearl and Sid Marion are about the only two I can think of who seem to be going anywhere.

Clifford Brooke, who, since the establishment of his new Academy of Dramatic Art in this city, has made his home in Washington, has been notified of his appointment as a member of the General Entertainment Committee of the Inaugural Committee, under the chairmanship of Huston Thompson. He has also been placed on the Dramatic Committee, of which Maj. J. A. Hillman is chairman. It is indicated that the entertainment features of the impending inaugural will be on a more elaborate scale than for many years.

Harking back four years, I suggest that what ought to be done is find some nice, comfortable, flattering berth for the Weather Man!

When Walter Hampden appears at the National in "Caponsacchi," beginning Thursday night of this week, Miss Laura Barrett, a former Washingtonian, will be prominently cast in his supporting company. Miss Barrett is a graduate of the American University, who, following her residence in the National Capital, graduated also from the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York. Although I believe she did not appear in the play in Washington, Miss Barrett was a member of the cast of "Cyrano de Bergerac" throughout most of Mr. Hampden's tour in that play last season.

When the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra of New York is heard in Constitution Hall this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock, Bruno Walter, distinguished conductor, will wield the baton and Walter Gieseking, the celebrated pianist, will be the solo artist.

This, lamentably, will be next to the last opportunity Washington will have to hear this famous organization as a local attraction. On March 7, under the baton of Arturo Toscanini, the orchestra will give its last concert in the National Capital.

The Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, the second oldest in the world, is now in the ninety-first year of its existence. Today's concert will be the 2,840th in the history of the orchestra and the twenty-fourth it has given in Washington since the regular series has been established.

The demand for additional time in New York and the excessive cost of present-day travel have caused the board of directors to cancel all out of town time and confine the activities of the Philharmonic to New York after this season.

Gabriel Leonoff and Zinaida Nicolina, singers, formerly of the "Chauve Souris," Swoboda and Yurieva, Imperial Russian ballet dancers (not a muscle-building racket—or don't you remember Mr. Swoboda, with his curled mustachios, gazing at his knotted biceps in all the magazines a few years back?); Serge Abagoff, whirling Caucasian dancer and knife spinner; Sasha Leonoff, accordionist, and Senia Phillioff, with his balalaika.

So what?

So what else could that be but the roster of specialty artists who, with Walter Scott Kolk as master of ceremonies, are making the floor show at the Troika restaurant and night club as distinctly and distinctively Russian as vodka patties, with BB buckshot in oil, or fried samovarson toast!

Which recalls that the juvenile mind is a strange and wonderful thing. For instance, Master Ophfift, the young intellectual of the art department, busily engaged in lettering-in one of Mr. Barron's pet ads for "Rasputin and the Empress," opening its road show engagement at the Columbia on Friday, suddenly looked up, his brow knit and his expression crow shade, and inquired malignantly, "Why razz the Empress?"

Hold his head still, men, one shot ought to do it!

GAYETY

"FEMALE FOLLIES," Empire burlesque, starring "Bimbo" Davis, Sid Gold, Lee Hickman, Gladys Clark, Gladys Smith, Dottie Vaughan and May Dix. Georgia Sothern, guest star. Reviewed Monday night by William L. Wright.

Although there have been better shows at the Gayety, "Female Follies" has many attractions that recommend it to the followers of the best in burlesque.

Gladys Clark, a lovely blonde, is one of these. She appears several times and if the applause following her acts is any criterion, she will remain a member of the local company for some time to come.

Our old friend, Georgia Sothern, as vivacious and peppy as ever, is superb as Tondelaya in the scene from "White Cargo." Her dance in this number far surpasses anything she has attempted heretofore. And, in passing, it must be said that the setting for this South Seas playlet is extremely effective.

Other "femmes" playing this week are Gladys Smith, Dottie Vaughan, Ruth Bradley and Mae Dix. They appear many times, always offering something new. Miss Smith was at her best in "Gaston" with Les Sponsler opposite.

The comedy is the weakest part of what otherwise would be an "ace" show.

The chorus, carefully chosen, displays new costumes and dance routines.

COMPETITION FOR CHARMING GIRLS
It Costs You Nothing!

51 charming girls are wanted to serve as "Queen and Her Court of Honor" to dedicate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago. This competition is being conducted by The Washington Post by exclusive arrangement with the Century of Progress.

Unmarried girls everywhere are invited to submit their photographs. Professionals such as stage girls or artists' models are barred. This is not a "Beauty" contest. Judgment will be based upon charming personality—loveliness, gracefulness and character.

There are three Grand Prizes—First $5,000.00, Second $3,000.00, and Third $2,000.00. Also 100 other cash prizes totaling $500.00. Paste the coupon below or the same information written on a separate sheet of paper on the back of your photograph and send to The Washington Post.

For first pictures of entrants and full particulars see the Rotogravure Section of next Sunday's Washington Post.

The Washington Post.

TUESDAY JANUARY 24, 1933 SPORTS

G. W. FIVE TO COMPETE IN NEW YORK TOURNAMENT

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

DR. CLOYD HECK MARVIN, intrepid president of George Washington University, has announced his intention of running to earth that evasive critter which is the root of most of the evils of college athletics—the "Athletic Scholarship," which has never been defined to anybody's satisfaction.

Dr. Marvin took the bit in his teeth last Saturday at New York at the meeting of the Middle Atlantic Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools when he denounced the special commission within the association as too autocratic and un-American in its procedure. This much information leaked from the secret meeting, but over the week-end added details of the commission's working has seeped out of the secretive dealings.

Among other items it was learned that the special commission of 14 members has the absolute privilege of adjudging "educationally unsound" any member college or school which violates even the simplest of the eligibility rules, thus costing the offending institution its ranking as an accredited college and virtually outlawing the credits obtained by students of that college inasmuch as these credits will not be recognized by a member institution if the student at the offending college seeks to transfer.

Withhold Name of Accuser.

It has also been learned that this commission of 14, whose rulings are tantamount to the approval of all of the 110 colleges represented in the association, will under no conditions reveal the name of any college's accuser in the matter of eligibility violations, a condition which prompted Dr. Marvin to denounce it as "un-American" and contrary to all laws of jurisprudence.

Dr. Marvin intends within the next few days to amplify his statements at the meeting with a letter to the commission and each of the 110 presidents of the institutions in the association, emphasizing again his New York appeal for a clear definition of athletic scholarships, and pointing out the fallacy of the commission's procedure which calls for the commission to act as both judge and jury in all violations.

Attacks Scholarship Rule.

Dr. Marvin attacked the wording of the association's athletic scholarship rule, which at present bars "financial aid or its equivalent" to students participating in athletics among the association's colleges.

The head of the local institution is expected to ask for a clear definition of "athletic scholarship," pointing out to the association the many subterfuges employed by colleges in general to circumvent the intent of the scholarship rule, and the eligibility sins that are committed in the name of "athletic scholarships."

If the colleges intend to enforce strictly their athletic scholarship ruling, Dr. Marvin may propose an amendment that would limit the participation in athletics to students paying their own way through college or receiving aid from only their fathers or mothers, sisters or brothers, thus barring aid from "rich uncles" and "friends," the latter being two of the most popular methods used by athletic scholarshipless colleges to facilitate the matriculation of promising athletes.

Jack Sharkey Holds Ace in Hole in Schaaf

Boston, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Champion Jack Sharkey is going to have an ace in the hole when he defends his heavyweight title next summer. He said today that his opponent would have to sign to meet Ernie Schaaf in the event that the title changed hands. Schaaf's contract is shared by Sharkey and his manager, Johnny Buckley.

Although Max Schmeling now appears tied up with Max Baer for an indoor bout, Sharkey is confident that he will be opposing the German for the third time when he risks his title.

Maryland Considers 2% Pari-Mutuel Tax

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 23.—A 2 per cent tax on pari-mutuel betting is being considered by the State administration to increase the scope of special levies to raise $4,500,000 to care for the funding of Baltimore's relief expenditures for three years and to ease the local tax burden in the counties, it became known today.

Although Gov. Ritchie let it be known that he looked with disfavor on the proposal to place a 10 per cent tax on betting because he believed it would be ruinous to the race tracks, he has indicated, however, that he thought the proposal in a minority report to the tax survey commission for a 2 per cent race track tax should be considered seriously.

A 2 per cent tax on pari-mutuel betting, based on the aggregate of the bets at the tracks last year, would produce approximately $700,000 a year, it has been estimated.

Genaro, Fino To Clash at Portner's

Former Champion to Face Mexican Star in Battle Tonight.

Van Meets Vermillion in Semifinal; Green to See Action.

By DAVE HERMAN.

JOE FINO'S big moment awaits him at Portner's Arena in Alexandria tonight.

When the "Little Brown Panther" from Mexico squares off with Frankie Genaro in the feature eight-round fight on the weekly program for the benefit of the Day Nursery, a lifelong ambition will be realized.

Ever since the gritty Mexican reached a point in his boxing career when he could return blow for blow, and emerge from a battle satisfied that he had fought his best, Fino has expressed a desire to meet a world champion, or some one who had been ruler of his class.

Tonight he comes face to face with the former world's flyweight champion, a veteran of twelve years of ring warfare, whose greatest claim to fame, besides that of having been title holder, was his double triumph over Pancho Villa, when the late champion, a Filipino, was at the zenith of his power.

Genaro Hopes to Regain His Crown.

Genaro is now 32. He has been in the game a long time. His flyweight kingdom taken away because of a knockout by Jose Perez in France on November 26, 1931, the plucky Italian battler entertains high hopes of pulling the famous comeback act before hanging up his gloves permanently—perhaps to go the way of all good champions.

The entire program savors of being one of the season's best. Thirty-two rounds are scheduled.

Young Van's return in the six-round semiwindup packs a lot of interest. It has been nearly six months since the fighting stereotyper has had a bout. Van's opponent is Billy Vermillion, of Baltimore, a rugged 170-pounder, who bids fair to give the Southwest pride a battle to the finish. Van created a furore last year by scoring six straight knockouts and two decisions before he kissed the canvas for fatal counts on two consecutive occasions. His conqueror was Sammy Britt.

Van Feels Lure of Ring Battles.

Then Van retired. During the time he was inactive as a fighter Van kept himself in tip-top shape. When the lure of the ring brought him back the pulchritudinous 19-year-old fellow had no trouble in whipping himself into fighting trim at Frankie Mann's gym. Harry Groves will be in his corner tonight.

Barefoot Green, who will be cheered by some 200 Fredericksburg folks, heads the preliminary cast in a six-round battle with Bob Hollingsworth, Alexandria athlete.

Eddie Compton, of Philadelphia, takes on Joe Copera, of Baltimore; Young Gentile meets Sammy Romano and Young Jack Britten clashes with Cary Wright—all four-rounders.

The first bout goes on at 8:30. Tickets may be obtained at Vic's.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS—Genaro to beat Fino, Van to beat Vermillion, Green to beat Hollingsworth, Wright to beat Britten, Copera to beat Compton, Romano to beat Gentile.

Levinsky Stops Christner in Fifth

Ohioan Floored Five Times Before Staying Down; Baiguera Wins.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight, knocked out Myer (K. O.) Christner, of Akron, Ohio, veteran trial horse, in the fifth round of their ten-round bout at the St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

Levinsky outclassed the Ohioan virtually all the way and floored him five times in the fifth before landing the knockout punch. Christner went down four times for no counts in this session and once for nine. Levinsky then put over the finishing punch in 1 minute 15 seconds. Levinsky weighed 205 pounds; Christner, 206.

Innocente Balguera, latest Italian heavyweight importation, made his American debut in an eight-rounder and stopped Chris Karchi, of Rockaway, in one round.

Miss Hicks Injured; Out of Miami Event

Miami, Fla., Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Helen Hicks, former women's national champion, notified club officials today she would not be able to compete in the Miami-Biltmore women's invitation golf tournament here next week because of a strained stomach muscle.

In her letter from Hewlett, N. Y., Miss Hicks said her physician had ordered her to play no golf for at least a month. However, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, Midwestern champion, advised that she would compete.

Amateur Golf Title Dates Set Sept. 11-16

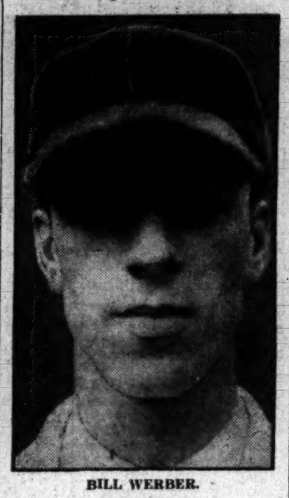
New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—A. M. Reid, secretary of the United States Golf Association, today announced that the dates of the amateur golf championship at Cincinnati had been set for September 11 to 16.

There had been some discussion as to whether the championship might not be played in August.

Qualifying rounds for the amateur will be played on August 8 in the various districts.

Holdout

Werber Returns Yankee Contract Unsigned Despite Raise.



BILL WERBER.

CONTRACTUALLY speaking, Bill Werber, of the Berwyn, Md., Werbers, stepped into Babe Ruth's class last night.

Werber, Tech High graduate and former star at Duke University, emulated Ruth when he sent back unsigned, and on the first bounce, the 1933 contract he received from the New York Yankees, who recalled him from Buffalo at the end of the 1933 season. He played shortstop with Buffalo, hitting .291.

Werber's contract was returned to the Yankees with a threat to quit professional baseball unless the New York Club raised the ante, despite the fact that the contract called for a salary higher than Werber received when he was released by the Yankees to Buffalo early last season.

The raise offered him by the Yankees this year merely replaces the salary cut he suffered last year, Werber said. If he receives no more recognition in the form of a higher salary, Werber declared, he is prepared to abandon baseball and continue with his father in the insurance business here which occupies him in the off season.

Werber was signed by the Yankees direct from Duke University in 1930, but has twice been sent to Yankee farms. He faces the prospect of beating out Lyn Lary, Frank Crosetti, and Ed Farrell for the regular Yankee shortstopping job. His chances were thought to be brightened when the Yankees released Jack Saltzgaver, another shortstop candidate, in preference to Werber.

YANKS SIGN GOMEZ FOR 1933 RACE

Brennan, Van Atta, Rookie Pitchers, Also Sign.

By ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Deftly sidestepping, for the time being, the task of wheeling their biggest guns into line, the New York Yankees engineered a flanking movement in their contract campaign today, thereby capturing the signed documents of a second-string backstop, two recruit pitchers and last, but not least, the celebrated Castilian southpaw, senor Vernon Gomez.

After a second and more convincing conference with Ed Barrow, the club secretary, Gomez was persuaded to accept a small increase in salary in recognition of his performance in winning 24 games last season, including seven out of eight starts against the Athletics.

Barrow declined to say what figures the final agreement involved, but it was reported the slim southpaw ace of the world champions would draw down around $15,000 for his 1933 activities.

Van Atta, Young Southpaw, Also Signed.

The day's proceedings for the Yankees were distinctly left-handed, inasmuch as Barrow also signed Russell Van Atta, who southpawed 23 victories for St. Paul last year, and received a social visit from Herbert Pennock, the dean of the Yankee pitching staff. Pennock has not yet signed, but due to the high esteem in which he is held by the club, particularly in view of his great relief pitching in the last world series, he is not likely to feel much financial pinch, if any.

Manager Joe McCarthy was asked his view of the outstanding feat in last October's championship affair, he unhesitatingly named Pennock's pitching, instead of Ruth's or Gehrig's long-range hitting.

The other two Yankees brought into the fold were Don Brennan, right-handed pitching ace of the Newark Bears last year, and Arndt Jorgens, understudy to Bill Dickey behind the bat. Brennan won 26 games and lost only 8 with the 1932 International League champions and starred in the "little world series" with Minneapolis.

Cuccinello Signs Contract With Dodgers.

John C. (Blondy) Ryan, of Lynn, Mass., young shortstop purchased from the Buffalo Internationals, brought his signed contract to the office of the New York Giants today. Ryan, former Holy Cross star, joins his team mate Bill Werber in the hunt for a big league job in New York. Werber, a product of Duke University, is on the Yankee roster.

Brooklyn supplied a rift in its holdout troubles today by signing Tony Cuccinello, hard-hitting second baseman who came to the Dodgers from Cincinnati last year. Meanwhile "squawks" over the size of their "cuts" have been heard from Hack Wilson, Joe Stripp and Al Lopez. Wilson is understood to have been offered only about 25 per cent of the salary he was paid two years ago with the Chicago Cubs—$38,000.

Eastern Must Win to Stay In Race

Central Game Today Holds Key to High School Title.

Roosevelt to Oppose Improved Western in Other Game.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

OLD MAN OPPORTUNITY, one of those who got in on the ground floor in the door-rapping business, pounds his skinny knuckles against the stout wood of Eastern High School's portals today for the second and last time during the basket ball series. Eastern plays the league-leading Central quintet and should it fail to halt its wild rampage the Blue virtually will be in, so far as the championship is concerned.

That Eastern has an attentive ear cocked for the expected thumping is certain, but whether it can rise to the occasion is another matter, the settlement of which probably will attract a sizable throng to Tech gymnasium.

The game is the second on the program. Roosevelt and Western will prepare the gathering for the big game, and judging from the speedy improvement of the West Side lads, it will not be surprising if the Roughriders really have to play some basket ball.

This second Central-Eastern fracas is the bend in the race for the 1933 high school crown, despite the fact that it helps open the second half. There is a muddy bottom to the high school pool and Eastern is the only team in a position to stir it up.

Central has won all four games, Eastern three against one defeat, and Tech broke even. Eastern and Central can tie for the title if the Lincoln Parkers win their remaining games and Central encounters no more setbacks. Possible, but improbable, it is a triple-tie between the three, dependent, of course, on an Eastern triumph today. In the latter case Tech must win all its games in the second half. That would bring them to the end of the regulation series with six wins and two defeats each.

Tech still must be reckoned with. It can catch up with Eastern, but unless Central is stopped today it is hardly likely that Roosevelt or Western will accomplish the feat and a loss to Tech will be of little consequence.

Central Easy Winner Yesterday.

Central served notice on Coach Mike Kelley's troupe that its decks are cleared for action, romping home with a 41-17 decision over Georgetown Prep yesterday. Thus far it has avoided a much expected slump. Against the prep quintet Central's passing, which evidenced signs of slipping last week, picked up perceptibly. Eastern will find it a tough problem to solve.

Should Kelley decide to start Tom Davis at center it may make a difference in the game, for Davis looked like the highest jumper in the series against Tech. Obtaining the tap-off means nothing, however, if the team can not follow up its advantage and obtain possession of the ball. Central teams are noted for their ability in this phase of the game, and the present one is no exception.

Roosevelt is favored to win over Western by approximately the same margin that Central holds over Eastern. Tech made the Rough Riders appear rather foolish when the two met last week, but a decided improvement is looked for today.

Young Stribling Signs For 3 Fights Abroad

Paris, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Young Stribling, American heavyweight, has been signed for three matches by Promoter Jeff Dickson. Stribling will fight twice in Paris and once in London.

The American boxer is now on his way from South Africa, where he defeated Dan McCorkle.

Shorey-Price Oppose Altrock-Rice Today

Two of the best golfers on the Washington Baseball Club, Sam Rice, fleet right fielder, and Nick Altrock, nationally known comedian and coach, will test their mettle in an 18-hole match at Rock Creek this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock with two of the District's professionals, Mel Shorey, of East Potomac, and Al Price, of Rock Creek.

First Big League Holdout Act Staged By Sweezy in Cincinnati Back in 1870

8-INCH HOLE IDEA IRES BRITISH

Pros Term Sarazen's Plan as "Farcical" and "Tommyrot."

LONDON, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Great Britain's elder statesmen of golf today expressed indignation over Gene Sarazen's advocacy of a larger golf hole.

"Tommyrot. The very idea makes me angry," said Harry Vardon, six times the British open champion.

"Farcical. You couldn't miss an 8-inch hole unless you were blind," chimed in old Sandy Herd, who has made eighteen holes-in-one.

"If there's to be a change, make the hole smaller, not larger," said J. H. Taylor, "but I think it's just right now to produce a player's best skill."

Same Sentiment Expressed By Braid.

The same sentiment in different words was voiced also by James Braid, 63 years old and playing golf with most of them.

"It would be almost impossible to keep the 8-inch hole in condition," Braid said. "The larger balls would crumble, causing endless trouble to the greenkeeper. If anything, the hole should be smaller."

Charles Whitcombe, the Ryder Cup captain in 1931, joining the oldsters in their criticism, said: "Sarazen's suggestion is absurd. The golf hole is just right now. Don't tinker with it."

Sarazen, the American and British open title holder, ill in bed and with nothing else to do, recently suggested that the present cup size of 4¼ inches be increased to 8 inches to add interest to the game.

Coast Loop Cuts Admission Prices

25-Cent Bleacher Seats and 40-Cent Grand Stand Fee Decided Upon.

San Francisco, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Dipping back fourteen years into "the good old days," directors of the Pacific Coast League today voted to return to 25-cent and 40-cent baseball as a means of combating present times and conditions.

The representatives of the eight-club Class AA circuit decided upon a minimum admission price of 25 cents for bleacher seats and 40 cents for the grand stand.

As a concession to those opposed to reducing the ticket cost, it also was decided to make the prices optional with the various clubs, so long as the minimum or over figures were maintained.

HOLLEY UNDER ETHER.

Chicago, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Ed Holley, Philadelphia Nationals' pitcher, was convalescing in a Chicago hospital today after a tonsil operation. Holley's home is here.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, Jan 23 (A.P.).—No play ever fashioned, be it comedy, drama or burlesque, has so consistently wowed the customers over an extended period as has that tearful opus, "The Holdout."

Such epics as "Abie's Irish Rose" and, even "Uncle Tom's Cabin" were never in the same class in box office appeal. They were good, but no producer ever attempted to revive them annually.

Now "The Holdout," it dates back to 1870, when the original words and music were written by one Charley Sweezy, a second baseman for the old Cincinnati Red Stockings.

Since that time the vehicle has been polished up and, in recent years, given a touch of comedy relief by such accomplished thespians as Babe Ruth and Col. Jake Ruppert, but it has retained its central theme—more money, or else.

Sweezy Demanded $200 Raise.

Sweezy, history reveals, presented the act for the very first time when he demanded a salary of $1,000 for the 1870 season, a boost of $200 from the previous year. He didn't get it. The salary role of the Red Stockings at that time had reached the staggering total of $9,500, and the owners did not intend to implant any foolish ideas in the players' heads.

But Sweezy's failure to bring the magnates (the perpetual villains of the piece) around to his way of thinking didn't discourage those noble athletes who were to follow him on the boards. If anything, it encouraged them, just on the off chance they could make their bluff stick.

With all those who have played the title role, however, it is interesting to recall how few have gone through with their threat to forsake the game forever and go back to the cotton rows. They can be counted on the fingers of both hands, with several digits left over for more important matters.

Kerr Game's Most Tragic Holdout.

Perhaps the most tragic holdout was Dickie Kerr, the wee portsider who stood clear while his team mates of the 1919 White Sox looked under their pillows. He received around $4,000 for that season, with no bonus for pitching his heart out in the tainted World Series, but was turned down when he asked for more ink on his 1922 contract. So he stayed out.

He never did get back into the big leagues to do any good, missing out completely on the era of fat salaries. He played semipro ball several years, finally came back with the Red Sox, only to find much of his stuff gone, and wound up pitching in the Texas League.

Eddie Rousch, Mike Donlin and Bill Doak were other stars who bucked the club officials and remained out all season. And they, like Kerr, got the worst of it.

If there is a moral, which is doubtful, it is that the present epidemic of "holdoutits" should not be taken too seriously. The Babe and the colonel will get together, and so will the others. Most of them will take their "cuts" like little men, there will be numerous "compromises," and around May 1 you will be able to pick up almost any newspaper and see what your favorite player did the previous afternoon.

But it looks like they could have given a fellow like Sweezy that extra $200, at that.

D. C. Amateur League Lists 2 Games Tonight

With a triple tie existing between Boys' Club, Delaware & Hudson and Central Y. M. C. A., the newly organized District of Columbia Amateur Basket Ball League will swing into its third round of activity tonight, with the "Y" and Praters clashing at the latter's court at 7 o'clock, and Takoma Business Men and Saranacs meeting at Takoma at 8 o'clock.

Tomorrow night Boys' Club and Red Sox will vie at 8:30 o'clock at the former's gym in the only game on tap.

Thursday night two contests are slated at Hyattsville, Terry's and Griffith Consumers will battle at 7:30 o'clock, while an hour later Company F and the "Y" will come to grips.

DEPARTMENTAL NINES MEET

The Departmental Baseball League will hold its first 1933 meeting February 3 in the green room of the Government Printing Office, according to an announcement issued yesterday by President Walter Shomo. All former teams and any new ones are urged to be on hand.

TECH'S VOTE IN FAVOR OF BASEBALL

Student Council Acts to Retain Game as Major Sport.

BY an unanimous vote of its members, the Tech High School student council yesterday decided to retain baseball as a major sport at the school, thus bringing to the end a drawn out debate which threatened to disrupt the annual high school baseball series. The action of the council was accepted as final by Principal Frank Daniel who announced that he would be guided in the matter by student opinion.

John Paul Collins, chairman of the board of faculty advisors is endeavoring to obtain the use of Griffith Stadium for the series games this season. One of the reasons advanced by Tech for its desire to abandon the sport was the lack of student interest and subsequent poor attendance at the games which were played in the Eastern High School stadium.

Collins was to confer with Clark Griffith on the matter today. Should he succeed it is believed that not only will the attendance increase, because of the central location of the stadium, but will offer a greater incentive for boys to play on their respective school teams.

Ready readers await the offers in Post Classified Ads, the first thing in the morning.

Charity Play Invitation Accepted

8-Team Competition to Get Underway on Feb. 22.

Event to Fill Lull in Schedule; 1932 Play Drew 100,000.

SIGNALLY honored by Mayor John O'Brien's committee on unemployment, George Washington University's basket ball team was invited yesterday and immediately accepted an invitation to participate in a charity basket ball tournament to be held beginning February 22 at Madison Square Garden in New York City.

The New York charity basket ball tournament was instigated last year by Mayor James J. Walker and was limited to five New York teams, St. John's of Brooklyn; C. C. N. Y., Columbia, Fordham and N. Y. U. This year the list probably will be expanded to eight.

George Washington first came into the attention of New York basket ball circles last year when it gave St. John's a terrific battle in Brooklyn before going down to defeat by a score of 40-37. Many critics pronounced the game as the best college game played in the Gotham district last year.

Gave St. John's Brilliant Battle.

Reemphasizing its claim to a high place in Eastern basket ball, the Colonials all but beat St. John's again last Saturday night, at G. W., losing out by a score of 36-35 in an overtime period game that hit the season's high mark for close competition. G. W. led, 30-28, with 20 seconds left of the game.

Last year's Madison Square Garden tournament took three days to run off and was viewed by a total crowd of more than 100,000, perhaps the greatest crowd ever to watch a basket ball tournament. More than $100,000 was turned over to New York's needy families. The tournament was won by St. John's.

It so happens that this year's event comes during an arid stretch in the George Washington schedule. The team plays its next-to-last game of its season on February 18, against St. John's, of Annapolis, and its final game on February 28, against Delaware.

Sutter Is Extended In Miami Net Tourney

Miami, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, No. 3 ranking tennis player in the United States, had a battle on his hands today to defeat William Reich, of Miami, 6—4, 7—5, in the first day's play of the All-South tennis championships on the Miami-Biltmore Courts.

Sutter, like other ranking players in the tournament, was expected to come through the first day's play with ease.

PARI-MUTUEL WINS IN HIALEAH FEATURE BY 2 LENGTHS

Cathop Beats Action for Second

Hanford and Coucci Ride to Doubles on Florida Card.

Whitney's Moon Shy Wins After Start Blocks Choices.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 23 (A. P.).—The scarlet, white and black silks of Joseph E. Widener were borne to their first triumph of the current meeting here today when Pari-Mutuel, a victim of bad racing luck in his last start, won the featured Brookville purse of 1 mile. The son of Fair Play reached the pagoda pole two lengths clear of the R. M. Eastman estate's Cathop, while N. E. Stanton's Action took the show a half length farther away.

Pari-Mutuel was the even money choice in the field of six and ran the 8 furlongs in 1:38 flat. Jockey Buddy Hanford completed a double astride the winner.

The field ran fairly well bunched for 6 furlongs, with Ormesby showing the way to Cathop. Pari-Mutuel found an opening on the inside on the final bend and assumed command, draw clear as Hanford rode him out in the closing furlong. Cathop held on gamely to beat the fast-finishing Action for the place. Semaphore always was outrun.

Three Horses Suffer At Start.

The worst start of the meeting marred the running of the third race with Gift of Roses, Supercharge, Memories Dear and Rosevolt having scant chance with the break. C. V. Whitney's colors were carried to their first local victory by the long shot, Moon Shy, with Silvio Coucci in the pilothouse. The daughter of St. James paying $38 for $2 won by a length from Village Vamp, with Screech another length and a half away in third place. The latter appeared a winner until Moon Shy charged down on the pacemaker in the stretch.

Silvio Coucci helped himself to a double when he guided the Greentree colt, Jungle King, first home in a blanket finish in the fourth race. Bubbler took the place a head back and a nose before the fast-finishing Daudet, while Liqueur was fighting it out in fourth position. Liqueur, Bubbler and Dorsays were bunched for the early lead but Coucci rated Jungle King close up and the colt responded gamely when asked to run through the final quarter. Daudet began slowly and took the overland route, closing fastest of all. The winner paid $12.70.

Washington-Lee High Meets St. John's Tonight

Washington and Lee High School will play host to the St. John's Prep basketers tonight at the Ballston gym, with the game slated to start at 7:45 o'clock.

Preceding the contest there will be a boxing exhibition.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, JANUARY 23.

We shall devote this to results—so read no farther if you're not interested. In the final analysis (whatever that is), your pal, Bill, could point only to two winners today. However, both were of the encouraging nature. Both were wake-ups, although Lady Legend, in the first, had her price scalped when the big money boys got in on the kill. However, Jungle King rewarded handsomely with a $12.70 mutuel and was an exclusive Bennings proposition, being a run-down from Maryland last fall. I missed with my preferred longshot, however. I mean Cathop. Paid $8.20 to place, after showing enough surprise speed to prove that I knew something. It only takes two winners these days to make Bennings believe he is a great man.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—CONTRIBUTE packs a certain amount of sprinting ability and is at best after a rest. Mike has reported the works encouraging and I can't pass up the opportunity for a big price. BROAD MEADOWS showed a promising effort in his outing here—was fourth from a slow start. May take the place. HI-JACK is in cheaper company and all that, but I figure something must be amiss.

SECOND RACE—BIG DIPPER was beaten a head at 115 to 1 the other day. Tomorrow this youngster should win, but will be the favorite, I believe. SKY ROYAL ran a fair race here and may be the one to do the chief pressing. APPEAR to take care of the show.

THIRD RACE—This contest looks like a battle of the stretch runners, with TRY IT taking the edge from WORTHINGTON and WISHING STAR. TRY IT can beat this kind any time the handlers say the word.

FIFTH RACE—CHARACTER drops 4 pounds after that winning performance here opening day and should have no trouble taking care of these. HELIOS and ESPINETTA appear best of the others. The last named would be a standout on an off track.

FOURTH RACE—GENERAL A. did everything asked in taking a purse last week with 122 pounds up. Should wage a winning battle with PROTRACTOR. LEROS gets the worst of a shift in weights with GENERAL A.

SIXTH RACE—WISE ADVOCATE was a four-length winner over CABEZO here opening day and had a 9-pound pull in the weights. Tomorrow, at equal poundage, I still believe the Wise Counselor gelding will take the purse. MIKE HALL may be third, but it is apparent that he is working toward top condition.

SEVENTH RACE—COME ON faltered in the stretch behind Frigate Bird last Saturday. Takes a shorter route tomorrow and may move up instead of back when the real test comes. TRAFFIC JUDGE exhibited a turn of speed here that holds promise. POTENTATE for the show.

MARIE JEAN N. ORLEANS WINNER

Takes Inaugural at Fair Grounds, Paying $19 to $2.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Taking advantage of her light weight of 94 pounds, F. P. Letellier's Marie Jean handed the form players a set back today, when she came from off the pace to win the Inaugural Handicap at the opening of historic Fair Grounds.

For the greater part of the 6 furlongs, the 3-year-old daughter of Wise Counsellor trailed Mrs. Payne Whitney's 7-year-old campaigner, Justinian. In the final furlong, however, the Whitney entry weakened and L. Hendricks sent Marie Jean to the front to win by a length. Justinian just managed to save the place by a nose from the Paramount Stable's On Rush.

Back among the also rans, badly beaten, were J. J. Robinson's Lucky Tom, winner of the Jefferson and Louisiana Derbies last year, and Mose Goldblatt's Jimmy Moran, a top notch handicap performer on the winter tracts for the last two seasons.

Jimmy Moran, the odds-on favorite, finished fourth, three lengths back of On Rush and a neck in front of the Southland Stable's Playtime. Lucky Tom, the second choice at 7 to 2, wound up last in the field of six.

Little considered in the wagering, Marie Jean paid $19 for a $2 ticket. She ran the distance in 1:12 4-5.

Houghton's 70 Wins In Kenwood Sweeps

Al Houghton, home pro, set the pace with a 37—33—70 in a sweepstakes at Kenwood yesterday, with George Diffenbaugh, of Indian Spring, emerging second with 72. Walter Cunningham, of Burning Tree, posted a 78; J. W. Harvey, jr., and Sam Rice, both of Indian Spring, had 81 and 82, respectively.

Ballyhoo

Is Reason Why Magnates Take It on Chin to Send Clubs South.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

IT is pretty game of the baseball magnates to send their athletes down South again as usual this year for their winter training because this is an expensive custom which they could discontinue by general agreement if they cared to. The cost is charged largely to the ballyhoo account, and there is a theory that the publicity which is sent out of the little towns in the South by the attending baseball writers brings in customers enough to pay for the travel and maintenance of the teams.

Inasmuch as most of the clubs broke no better than even at the turnstiles last year, this idea does not support itself. And the magnates, in all but a few cases, will be paying the price out of the living flesh of their firms this year with little hope of winning it back during the season.

Cost of Pasturage Reduced.

Undoubtedly the cost of pasturage for a ball player in training will be greatly reduced because the hotel proprietors are much more humane than they ever were in the boom days. However, there will be no municipal subsidies unless it could be that Max Carey's Brooklyn Dodgers have managed to talk somebody out of some money in Miami, where a fresh bank roll has been promoted and a very modest lower case pleasure boom seems to be going.

There were a few seasons at the height of things when dozens of audacious little mud puddle towns down yonder, talked into delusions of grandeur by promoters and chamber of commerce optimists, were offering large inducements to the club owners for the privilege of entertaining their troupes for five or six weeks. There would be a cash subsidy to the proprietor of the team, a special rate for the hotel, a free ball yard, and a silver cornet band to greet the athletes at the train and play them around the village square or plaza, as they liked to call the village square, in the grand parade of welcome.

Luncheons and Speeches On Program.

Speeches would ensue at a luncheon consisting of tepid consomme, breast of rubberized chicken, wilted salad, vanilla ice cream and coffee. There would be one talk by a local clergyman of the he-man, howdy-brother type who had played ball on the Y. M. C. A. team when he was in college, and therefore could address the men as a Dutch uncle. There would then be a pert, up-and-at-'em type of speech from the chairman of the boosters' committee, well salted with witty turns, and concluding with a prediction that inside of five years Magic City would be the Riviera of Oocheegoochee County.

Then the manager of the ball club and the heavy hitting outfielder would fumble a few words into the cordial atmosphere and, finally, as a chaser to speed the go-getters back to their subdivisions and the athletes up to their rooms, where they could remove their shoes and yawn, the dean of the baseball writers accompanying the troupe would tell a few bum jokes, forgetting to make the point in each case.

Those were very happy, daffy days in the sunny South, and I am sorry they had to end. But they were over long before 1929, and it has now been many a season since those disillusioned hamlets, with their crumbling portals and archways and their reeling files of ornamental street lights extending way out into the jungles and on to nowhere, have been able to offer a ball club as much as a free hot bath.

Play Stopped While Ball Is Retrieved.

This year, with so many of the natives in the little towns using wooden money, local scrip or produce in lieu of cash, the barnstorming tours which used to yield some relief from the expense of training and travel, will be curtailed or canceled. The training trips will be cut short, the personnel will be cut down and when an old fuzzy league ball is knocked into the swamp behind the right field they will holler "lost ball" and knock off playing whilst all hands go into the weeds to find it back again.

The magnates do not say much about their sufferings, possibly because they do not wish to low rate their properties with persons who might be reckless enough to want to buy them. But there was one proprietor who pawned his life insurance a few years ago to finance his players through first six weeks in a big hotel in Florida, and some of the boys will go to the bottom of the barrel, if not through it, this spring scraping together the price of spring training.

It would be a terrible hardship on the players to be required to do their boiling out in the Northern climate with daily workouts in some convention hall and long walks in the snow for their routine. But it has been done and it can be done again.

MARYLAND U. TO PLAY C. U. TOMORROW

D. C. Rivals Promise Hot Court Battle at Brookland.

THE slim collegiate athletic program for the week commences tomorrow night with one of the most important basket ball games of the year, the meeting between Maryland and Catholic University at C. U. Gymnasium. It is the only meeting on the sports calendar between two of the major institutions of learning in this section.

The tussle this year matches up two almost evenly rated combatants. Maryland has shown more brilliance upon occasion, notably the defeat of Duke, but it also has defiated to darker depths of mediocrity than has C. U. The Cards this season present an iron-man, iron-legged outfit composed of Augusterfer and Sheary, forwards; Gearity, center, and White and Rosenfield, guards. They have shown a consistent brand of good basket ball all year, and in many quarters they rate the designation of favorite for tomorrow night.

Maryland again will pin its faith on Chase and Snyder, forwards; Vincent, center, and Buscher and Yowell, guards. The game promised to promote a fine brand of competitive basket ball, not only because of the even rating of the two teams, but the natural rivalry which seems to afflict the collegians when they play their neighbors.

Maryland won with ease last year, but most of the stars who were responsible have graduated, while C. U.'s team has been strengthened by the acquisition of two fine sophs in Gearity and Augusterfer.

Two games made up the rest of the week's program. Both are to be played Saturday night. In the local activity American University plays Gallaudet at American U., while Maryland meets Navy in Annapolis in one of those traditional battles you read about.

Stocks Again Drift Lower In Dull and Light Dealing

Six-Tenths Loss Recorded as Sales Decline to 664,152 Shares.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Stocks had a rather poor start on the new week today. Hesitant during most of the morning, they pointed definitely lower after midday and although there was no indication of a pick-up in volume, closing prices represented a fractional average decline.

It was a dull market and one that tended toward selectivity. Food equities softened, but coppers were burnished by a little professional buying toward the finish, a move that got more sympathetic response elsewhere since the general list closed above the day's lows. Sales totaled 664,152 shares.

Heaviness of dairy company shares reflected recent milk reductions in the metropolitan area. Egg prices were again down, continuing a movement that began more than a fortnight ago. Borden shares lost a point. National Dairy was steadier, but General Foods and National Biscuit sagged moderately. Such industrials as U. S. Steel, American Tobacco "B," General Electric, Air Reduction, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Du Pont were narrowly changed, though the down side was favored. Corn Products and American Can were firm, while Homestaking rose 4½ and there were gains of fractions to a point for Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco and U. S. Smelting. American Telephone dragged, off a major fraction net. U. S. Steel preferred, with a dividend meeting scheduled for next week, was steady. Radio-Keith-Orpheum dipped a point on the receivership application by a noteholder.

Senator Borah's statement regarding budget belancing and inflation, as well as reports of a congressional undercurrent favoring some monetary change, appeared to have fostered selling of the dollar. A similar move, inspired by similar influences, occurred a few weeks ago but quickly stopped, thereby conveying the impression that foreign exchange speculators had been responsible. Silver monies improved and bar silver advanced, coincident with prospective revival of remonetization measures.

The money markets looked easier. Bill dealers cut acceptance yield rates by ⅛ of 1 per cent to the lowest levels on record, and a little call money was offered below the accepted "outside" cost of ½ of 1 per cent. The stock exchange clung to 1 per cent.

Current comment in Wall street on the possibility of inflation is stressing the varied plans that either have been or are likely to be suggested, and some quarters are pointing out that it might be difficult for Congress to agree on a specific proposal. Meanwhile, it is recalled that the Democratic platform declared for sound currency.

What the Stock Market Did

	Mon.	Sat.
Advances	129	208
Declines	255	89
Unchanged	125	109
Total issues	509	406

Stocks.

Trading opened dull and prices drifted lower. The average loss was six-tenths of a point. Dealing showed evidence of selectivity. Sales totaled 664,152 shares.

Bonds.

Prices sagged as enthusiasm waned. The average loss was one-tenth of a point. Interest centered on the Federal group and foreign and domestic specialties. Sales declined to $10,047,000.

Curb.

Dealing results were mixed—oils closed higher; utilities sagged. The turnover was 90,000 shares. The trading session was spent largely in backing and filling.

Wheat.

Values mounted in spite of selling drives. A decreased supply in visible American grain and improved market at Liverpool were aids to price gains. May wheat sold at 47¼ to 47½ cents.

Cotton.

Quiet and narrow trading marked cotton transactions. Quotations closed 2 to 4 points higher. March sold at 6.15. Liverpool reported hedging absorbed by trade calling.

CURB PRICES MIXED IN LISTLESS TRADING

Utilities Sag and Oils Gain as Turnover Rises to 90,000 Shares.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The Curb market found little to get excited about in today's news and spent the time listlessly backing and filling. Transfers totaled 90,000 shares, the same as last Friday.

The oils were dull, but displayed a steady tone. Humble and Standard of Indiana were slightly higher.

The utilities continued to draw the lion's share of what little activity was present, sagging slightly. Electric Bond & Share common was steady and the $6 preferred gained a point. But American Gas & Electric, American Superpower, Cities Service, Niagara Hudson Power and United Light & Power A slipped slight fractions.

It was announced today that the Blue Ridge Corporation and Shenandoah directors had recommended to stockholders a plan to write down their investments to present-day prices. Their investments are now carried at cost. The proposal would place their investments on the basis of December 31, 1932, prices, which, it was contended, would give a fairer picture of the trust's actual position. Blue Ridge convertible preferred gained nearly a point, while Shenandoah convertible preferred slipped a small fraction.

Newmont gained 1 and Roan Antelope was fractionally higher. New Jersey Zinc was a little lower. The industrials were quiet, with Aluminum gaining a scant fraction, while Cord, Stutz, Deere and Swift eased slightly. The Ford issues were steady and Woolworth, Ltd., gained a small fraction.

Gold Standard Nations Face Money Bootlegging Trouble

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The remaining gold standard nations and those, like England, which are so close to the gold standard that their currencies enjoy international prestige, now face the task of preventing the bootlegging of money.

People in countries with depreciated currencies are so eager to trade their paper money for gold currencies, the American dollar in particular, that they have ferreted around, seeking holes in the restrictions placed by their governments on foreign exchange transactions.

They are willing to pay fancy premiums to bootleg dollars into their coffers. Dealings of this character are handled by a devious system called the "black bourse." The "black bourse" in the foreign exchange world is about as adventuresome as the famous "Rum Row" off New York Harbor.

Because of exchange restrictions, enforced by countries which are seeking to keep what remaining gold they now own, American foreign trade has been badly crippled. American merchants frequently receive orders for shipment to countries off the gold standard, but when foreign buyers seek to buy dollar exchange in their home markets they find it next to impossible to get enough pay. Their governments have clamped down the lid tightly to prevent flight of capital.

To get around this ban, which is enforced in 35 foreign countries, the money bootlegger comes into play. He obtains dollars, the best way he can, smuggles them into countries where bans are enforced and sells them at premiums which net attractive profits compared with prices fixed on the restricted home exchange markets.

Some South American countries have crippled activities on the black bourse by stipulating that all exports of goods or commodities to the United States must be reported to a governmental trade commission. The governments then take care of the matter of settlement, paying the shippers with paper currencies.

Decision Reserved In Pressed Steel

Stay in Receivership Is Sought by Company; Insolvency Denied.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—New Jersey's highest court reserved decision today after hearing arguments on application of the Pressed Steel Car Co. for a stay of receivership proceedings brought against its assets, listed two months ago at $44,922,930.

Albert C. Wall, Jersey City attorney, argued before the court of errors and appeals on behalf of the railroad equipment concern that it was not insolvent and had surplus of $12,000,000 to tide it over a period of reverses. In starting receivership action, two bondholders, Isidor Tachna, of New York, and J. Lester Albertson, of New Rochelle, N. Y., asserted the company during the past two years operated at an average loss of $100,000 a month.

Bondholders' counsel, Harry Lane, of Jersey City, contended it would be "most dangerous" for the higher court to interfere with Vice Chancellor John O. Bigelow's action in naming Julius Rippel, of Newark, and Edward Herman, of Jersey City, as receivers, thus leaving assets in the hands of company officials "to do with as they might."

5 More California Banks Fail to Open

Sacramento Valley Closings Laid to Defaults of Other Houses.

San Francisco, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Ed Rainey, State superintendent of banks, announced five Sacramento Valley banks closed their doors today because of heavy withdrawals, due to closing of other nearby banks. The banks were the Bank of Courtland, the Colusa State Bank, the Bank of Folsom, the Bank of Willows and the Fair Oaks Bank.

Saturday the California National Bank and California Trust & Savings Bank of Sacramento, among the oldest banking institutions of the State, closed their doors. Mr. Rainey said today's closings were more or less protective to safeguard deposits. He said he did not regard the situation as "critical" and after a telephonic survey of the situation at Sacramento said banking conditions there were "favorable."

State banking department figures showed deposits in the five banks aggregated $3,556,751 as of December 31 or thereabouts. They were listed as follows: Colusa Bank, $1,687,011; Bank of Willows, $923,360; Bank of Folsom, $570,880; Bank of Courtland, $296,020, and Fair Oaks Bank, $79,480.

BOND MARKET SAGS AS INTEREST WANES

Prices Decline One-Tenth in Lighter Total Sales of $10,047,000.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Bond market enthusiasm waned today and, aside from the United States Government group and a few corporation and foreign specialties, there was little inclination to raise prices.

Trading volume was considerably under that of last Friday, sales totaling $10,047,000, par value. The average for 60 corporate loans declined one-tenth of a point.

While the Treasury's announcement of a $250,000,000 five-year 2½ per cent note offering for February 1 was about in line with expectations, listed Federal issues responded with advances ranging from 1-32 to 7-32 of a point. Treasury 3s, 3⅛s and Liberty fourth 4¼s were the most active. The latter, however, eased a trifle.

Highest grade issues of all categories were generally steady, reflecting the recent downward adjustment of bank deposit interest rates and reports that savings banks were considering a further lowering of interest payments.

The rails moved in an extremely narrow range, although there was a few gains and losses of a point or more.

The foreign section was quiet. German government loans were up fractionally, while some of the republic's state, municipal and corporate bonds advanced 1 to 3 or more points.

Renewed Pressure Hits Dollars on Exchanges

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Renewed pressure was exerted against the American dollar in European centers today, presumably because of reports that currency inflation is not yet a dead issue in the United States.

Led by Swiss francs, which were up 4½ points to a cable rate of 19.36½ cents, all of the continental gold currencies improved. French francs advanced to 3.91 cents, Belgian belgas to 13.86½ cents, and Dutch guilders to 40.20 cents.

The British pound sterling also gained about a cent to $3.36¾.

Visible Supply of Grain.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat decreased 3,393,000; corn increased 1,419,000; Oats increased 110,000; rye increased 45,000; barley increased 148,000.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange started the week with a quiet zone. Gold mining shares, industrials and foreign issues were lightly supported, but scattered selling of gilt-edged securities, oil shares and transatlantic issues caused an irregular closing.

Paris—The tone of the bourse was dull and prices were heavy awaiting month-end liquidation and the outcome of the efforts of the government to balance the budget. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—Prices opened cheerful on the boerse but later turned irregular. The market closed weaker.

Bankers' Acceptances Taken at Lower Rates

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Official rates of bankers' acceptances, choice form of bank credit, were reduced ⅛ per cent today.

The new scale is ⅝@¼ per cent for 30, 60 and 90 day maturities; ½@⅜ for 120 days and ⅜@⅝ bid for 150 to 180 days.

These rates represent yields. Bankers' acceptances are sold at a discount, the buyer receiving his yield through the margin of difference between the discount price and the full payment of the bills at maturity. A reduction is equivalent to an increase in price of the acceptances.

The new rates, which are the lowest of the century, were established a few days after the New York Clearing House Association's action in cutting in half the scale of interest rates on deposits.

COTTON PRICES RISE IN NARROW TRADING

March Closes at 6.15 as General Market Gains 2 to 4 Points.

New York, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Business in cotton was quiet with narrow fluctuations showing a tendency to follow the movements in stocks and wheat. After selling up to 6.16 during the early trading, March reacted to 6.10, rallied to 6.15 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 2 to 4 points.

First prices were unchanged to two points higher. The South was a moderate seller here on the bulge, while there was some scattered realizing, and after the initial demand had been supplied, prices eased slightly.

July sold from 6.42 to 6.36 with active months generally selling back to a couple of points below the closing quotations of last week, but the market steadied later with one or two deliveries making new highs for the day on a renewal of trade buying and covering promoted by the steadiness of stocks and grain. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best.

Little Southern Pressure.

Except for some hedging at the opening, which included selling by houses with cooperative connections, little pressure from the South was in evidence. The report of the Census Bureau placing ginnings prior to January 16 at 12,418,310 bales, against 15,996,382 last year, was about in line with expectations, although opinion was expressed in some quarters that final ginnings might run slightly over the outturn indicated by the December estimaae.

The New York Cotton Exchange service reported that Japanese mills had consumed 236,000 500-pound bales of all kinds of cotton in December, making a total for the first five months of this season of 1,087,000 bales, against 1,045,000 last year, and 920,000 for the same period two years ago.

Liverpool cables reported a quiet market with hedging absorbed by trade calling. Exports today, 19,454, making 4,813,571 so far this season. Port receipts, 25,397; U. S. port stocks, 4,748,750.

WHEAT VALUES RISE IN SPITE OF SELLING

Decrease in Visible Supply and Gains at Liverpool Aid Market.

Chicago, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Grain values went obstinately upgrade today, despite transient late setbacks that accompanied a brief increase of speculative selling of wheat.

Highest prices of the day for wheat were the rule at the finish, with traders giving chief attention to a big decrease of the United States wheat visible supply and to extremely bullish reports about crop prospects in domestic winter wheat territory Southwest and West. Indications pointed to heavy damage by dust storms, and there was no moisture relief for areas affected by prolonged drought.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ¼ to ¾ above Saturday's windup; corn, ⅛ to ⅜ advanced; oats, unchanged to ⅛ higher, and provisions, unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Liverpool Is Aid.

Helping the general upward tilt of the Chicago wheat market was unexpected showings by quotations at Liverpool. Low temperatures in most parts of Europe led to fears of crop damage abroad, especially in Russia and Balkan countries, where snow covering was thin. Much greater notice, however, was taken of radically unfavorable domestic crop conditions in Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Rapid depletion of wheat supplies in the United States was emphasized by announcement that during the last week there had been a reduction of 3,393,000 bushels of the country's visible stock. This made the aggregate supply in sight 155,445,000 bushels, compared with 155,883,000 a week ago and 206,595,000 at this time last year. Another strengthening influence was word from Winnipeg that purchases of Canadian wheat for shipment at the opening of Great Lakes navigation had commenced, although in general such buying was not looked for until the last part of next month.

Corn and oats displayed independent strength, with traders optimistic of a good overseas demand for corn from the United States.

Provisions were responsive to firmness of the hog market.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THERE will be a delay in the transfer of Station WMAL to the N. B. C. WJZ programs will probably not be distributed here before February 15. N. B. C. had planned to take over the operation of the station on February 1.

The broadcasting company explains that the cause for the delay is that it is impossible to work out all the details of organization by February 1. However, there may be a hitch in the transfer. The application of the N. B. C. to lease WMAL has been received by the commission and is now being considered by the engineering division. The matter will not come before the commission as a body before Friday. When the commission discusses the transfer it will be obliged to take into consideration several protests, charging monopoly.

An open letter to members of Congress, signed by Joy Elmer Morgan, chairman of the National Committee on Education by Radio, reads, in part:

"An agreement has been arranged between N. B. C. and Station WMAL by which N. B. C. will lease that station and thus control its programs for a period of years. This arrangement—if approved by the Federal Radio Commission—gives N. B. C. two stations in the Nation's Capital whose programs are controlled from New York. A third station, WJSV, is likewise controlled from this country's largest city.

"Private monopoly in industry is bad enough; monopoly in the agencies which control the distribution of ideas and the dissemination of information is infinitely worse. * * * Is it not time for Congress to recognize its responsibility to the people and to protect the listener and the individual community? Has the time not come for a comprehensive investigation of the relation of radio to the cultural development of the Nation?"

If a sufficient number of protests are received from members of Congress and other sources the commission will set a date for a hearing and there might be a longer delay before the lease becomes effective.

THE impresarios of the Five Star Theater will bring Mario Chamlee to their aerial concert stage in the broadcast over WJSV at 10 o'clock tonight.

Mr. Chamlee, assisted by an orchestra under the baton of Josef Bonime, offers the following program:

Prelude and Siciliana from "Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni), Mr. Chamlee; Canzonetta from Violin Concerto (Tschaikowsky); Allegro Scherzando from American Concerto (Gusikoff), Jaques Gordon, violinist; Waltz from "Eugene Onegin" (Tschaikowsky), orchestra; "I Hear a Lady Sigh" (Harden Church); "Elegy" (Massenet); "Mattinata" (Leoncavallo), Mr. Chamlee; "Cortege du Sarda" (Ippolitoff-Ivanoff), orchestra.

Irvin Cobb will tell the radio audience about the real Kentucky judge who was the prototype for his popular fiction character, Judge Priest, when he speaks as the guest of Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson (WRC, 8 o'clock) tonight.

YOUTH at the microphone: Lennie Hayton, whose orchestra is heard six nights a week on the Chesterfield programs over the Columbia network, hasn't yet passed his twenty-fifth birthday.

Andrea Marsh, who sings on Jack Benny's program, celebrated her eighteenth birthday last month.

Robert Trout, Washington announcer, who is frequently intrusted with the radio introductions of prominent statesmen, is but 23.

Judging from the pictures of those bearded Smith brothers, you'd never think they were particularly youthful. But their radio representatives, Scrappy Lambert and Billy Hillpot, are far from aged. The two were first signed to broadcast as the Smith Brothers eight years ago, while they were still Rutgers undergraduates.

Howard Barlow, conductor of the Columbia Symphony Orchestra, is but 35. Fourteen years ago he served as director of the Peterborough Music Festival, at the request of Mrs. Edward MacDowell, widow of the distinguished composer.

Buddy Harrod, whose dance orchestra is rapidly gaining popularity, has not yet turned 20. Tom Everett, author of the stirring "March of Time" scripts, graduated from Yale less than three years ago and never held a job before he was assigned to his present task. He is only 25 today.

The Mexican tenor, Tito Guizar, is but 26 years old. At the age of 22 he was singing leading roles in Mexico City opera.

TOMMY McLAUGHLIN, barytone, and protege of Morton Downey, will be introduced to the radio audience by the latter during Bob Taplinger's "Meet the Artist" period over WJSV at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Tommy might break down and confess that he is "The Romantic Bachelor!"

Marguerite Cromwell has selected "I'm Playing With Fire" and "A Great Big Bunch of You" for her solos with Rudolf Schramm's Wilkins Orchestra (WRC, 6:30 o'clock) tonight. Schramm will conduct the orchestra in "I've Told Every Little Star," "Among My Souvenirs" and "Try to Forget."

Highlights in the career of Josef Bonime, musical director: Born, Vilna, Poland, February 26, 1891. . . . His father, a talented amateur singer. . . . Came to the United States in 1900. . . . Asked by his father if he wanted a fiddle or skates for his birthday. . . . He said skates but got both. . . . The violin, bought in a pawnshop, cost $1.50. . . . But instead of mastering the violin, he taught himself on the piano bought for his sister. . . . An uncle heard him play and urged his parents to have him learn the piano. . . . He graduated from Institute of Musical Art under Dr. Frank Damrosch's direction. . . . Wrote a tragic overture for graduation. . . . In 1917 became Mischa Elman's accompanist and stayed with him ten years. . . . Came to radio in 1925.

BEN BERNIE has found the reason for so many marriages among divorced couples in Hollywood. He says it's because the film stars are used to retakes.

Bob White
The Old Philosopher
SAYS:

Question—We have been married for three years, considered by all of our friends a perfect match. From outward appearances that is so—from our mutual desires, it is what we want. Yet hardly a day passes but what my jealousy for my husband brings us to the brink of bitter quarreling. I just can't help myself.

Answer—Oh, yes you can. You are the only one who can control this situation. It is one of the tragedies of life, for jealousy with or without cause bows the heart in sorrow and floods the soul with pain.

A little jealousy is very right and proper in its place. I am tempted to say that with full blooded people who really love, a certain amount of jealousy will creep in not as an evil influence, but as a protective spirit. This is as it should be. No one would want a loved one to be indifferent. That would sour and sere life.

Where jealousy is carried to the extreme—to where every time your husband's phone is busy, you are seized with fits of fear that he is talking to another women—then comes the harm.

A little closer understanding, a little more openness of heart, a little more appreciation that marriage is not bondage but companionship, then jealousy will find no place in your scheme of things.

Find something to occupy your time—give of your life to others in a service of love and you will meet the every day with less of fear, and your love will find a firmer foundation. * * * remember what is good for the goose is good for the gander.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Judge Denies Mix Plea To Dismiss Miller Suit

Erie, Pa., Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Judge U. P. Rossiter today denied a motion for dismissal of Zack T. Miller's $342,000 damage suit charging breach of contract against Tom Mix, movie cowboy.

Counsel for Mix had moved for declaration of a nonsuit after Miller's case was rested. The ruling by Judge Rossiter followed private arguments in his chambers. Mix is expected to be one of the first defense witnesses.

Darby Supply Company Files Bankruptcy Writ

A petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Frederick William Darby, trading as the Fred W. Darby Supply Co., of 930 H street northwest.

The petition, filed through the law firm of Tobriner, Graham, Brez & Tobriner and John Paul Jones, did not list the schedule of assets and liabilities. Under the law, Mr. Darby has ten days after the filing of his petition to send in the schedule.

Lennart Would Be Announcer.

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Prince Lennart of Sweden, who has been plain "Mr. Bernadotte" since he disobeyed the king and married Miss Karin Nissvandt, a commoner, last year, was reported today to have applied for a job as radio announcer with the Swedish Broadcasting Co.

Students of Annapolis Not to Be at Inaugural

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 23.—The Regiment of Midshipmen will not participate in the parade incident to the inauguration of President Roosevelt in Washington on March 4. Economy is assigned as the reason, as the expense of transportation and meals for more than 1,700 students would mount to a considerable item. Moreover, the absence of the Midshipmen from the city would disrupt an extensive athletic program at the Naval Academy scheduled for the day of the inauguration, including the Army-Navy basket ball game.

Authorities of the academy are said to have been disinclined from the outset for the midshipmen to make the trip, although many of the boys offered to pay their own expenses.

Every telephone in Washington is a branch agency for Post Classified Ads. Just call National 4200 and pay later.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THIS is written in New York, and, with the heaviest snowfall in years fresh in my memory, it may seem premature to talk about spring. But women who wish to be in form for the spring fashions had better start right now. For this reducing business can not, or at least should not, be rushed. Be content to lose 2 pounds a week. This can be done easily and safely, and when you have reached the weight at which you look and feel your best, the proper maintenance diet will keep you there.

Only women in good physical condition should attempt to reduce at all. If you have reason to believe that you are not in good health generally, the first thing to do is to place yourself in a physician's care and follow his prescription for attaining physical perfection. Never mind working your weight down. Work your health up.

Liquid Diet.

If, aside from the excess weight, you are otherwise quite fit, start the stomach shrinking. There are many ways to reduce. Some women have taken off pounds successfully by cutting down on starches, sweets, fat-producing meats and similar foods and adding more fruits and vegetables, also more roughage to the diet. Other women eat everything, but cut their portions in half. Then there's the monodiet and the milk diet.

The three-day liquid diet, followed by a balanced, low-calory diet, is a very simple, successful reducing plan. The liquid diet does two things. It clears the system of accumulated waste and it shrinks the stomach. You may feel a little headachy the first day, but you'll feel fine the next. And at the end of the third day, you'll be several pounds lighter. Let that encourage you to keep up the regime, but not the liquid diet.

Drink a glass of orange juice every two hours, from 10 in the morning to 10 in the evening, and between times as much water as you wish. Coffee is permissible if you feel you must have it, but no cream or sugar; milk if you wish. Two lemons, two oranges, one grapefruit and enough water to make 2 quarts makes a good fruit drink. Avoid adding sugar, but if you must, sweeten just the least bit.

You may return to the liquid diet, or rather liquid fast, for one day only occasionally, when you feel you need moral support.

Tomorrow—A Suggested Reducing Diet.

What Today Means

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:40 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7:15 p. m. to 8:10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:10 a. m. to 12 noon and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Little things will seem to go wrong on this day; they will begin in the morning at home and will continue at business. You will feel continually at the point of exasperation. You may have a lucky break at the office, and pick up a small sum of money you had not anticipated. For the young man who is thinking of "popping the question," this January 24 would seem a good time.

The child born on this January 24 will probably get his way all through life. His will not be a haphazard trip through life. Through force of character and personality, through will power and the ability to work long and hard, he will earn for himself a cherished place in society.

If January 24 is your birthday, you are the type of person who may be classed as just ':plain folk." You can not "put on airs," nor would you if you could. You do not like people who are other than simple and genuine. Quite possibly you find yourself holding down a white collar job, but within yourself you feel that you would be much happier if you could get out and work with your hands. This does not mean that you are an unthinking person. Quite the contrary, you are a creative thinker, but you prefer to express yourself manually.

Born on January 24, your one thought in life is to care well for your family. To see your wife (or husband) and children happy is your greatest happiness. You are ever on the alert to better your condition in life in order to correspondingly advance theirs. There is not a grain of selfishness in your nature. The women make ideal mothers, always working for or with their children, never pampering them, but urging them on to greater accomplishments. Probably the greatest fault of these splendid women is a tendency to talk too much about their own affairs. This may be and often is due to the fact that their sole interest in life is so very much tied up in family affairs.

Successful people born on January 24:

Joseph H. Choate, lawyer.

Joseph W. Drexel, banker and philanthropist.

Charles Kendall Adams, educator.

Charles H. Niehaus, sculptor.

George A. Gates, educator.

Culbertson on Bridge

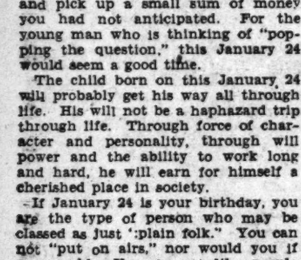
By ELY CULBERTSON

569.

THE zeal to proselytize is one that seems common to almost all people. It is a quality which I possess, and so I can not resist the plea of Mr. Leslie C. Hansel, of Arlington, Mass., to show him how to correctly bid and also correctly play the hand below. In a letter to me he states that he is an inveterate foe of systems, but that if I can convince him that my system of bidding will take care of the problems presented by the North and South hands below, he will raise the Approach-Forcing System to the highest pedestal in the land. This is a big promise, Mr. Hansel, but I like big promises when they are followed with equally great performances.

Let us examine the actual problem:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



Mr. Leslie C. Hansel

Mr. Hansel, playing, as he says, with Mrs. Hansel, reached the following result in the bidding on the hand above and was set 2 tricks in the play:

South	West	North	East
2♣	2♠	Pass	3◇
3♡	3♠	Pass	Pass
4♣	Dbl.	4♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Let us see what would have happened had he bid and played his hand properly. The correct bidding would be:

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♠	Pass	2◇
2♡	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

This result is correct. Mr. Hansel was not playing the Culbertson Sys-tem when he opened with a Forcing bid of two clubs on his hand, but his Opening bid was immaterial, as a matter of fact, because we reach the same result there. The difference comes in the play.

Against the actual contract, West's Opening lead was the diamond 10, probably his best choice. East overtook with the Knave, in order to lead a spade. West cashed 2 spade tricks and then returned his last diamond, which South ruffed. Mr. Hansel ruffed with an honor, but this was a bad mistake. He should have ruffed low and then laid down the Ace of clubs, followed with a low club, which should have been ruffed with an honor in the Dummy hand, returned to his own hand with a trump, and led another club, ruffed with Dummy's last honor, thereby establishing the suit. Mr. Hansel should then have returned to his own hand with the last trump, pulled the last remaining trump, and proceeded to make the game he had contracted for.

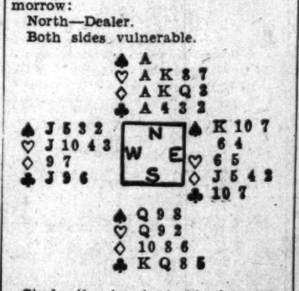
There is nothing difficult whatever about the play, nor, as a matter of fact, is there anything difficult about the bidding. The hand is just one of those hands that afford a good Bridge player a little bit of mental nourishment in the bidding and a vast deal of satisfaction in the play.

I am confidently counting on a new convert to the correct principles of bidding.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Wharf shopping for oysters at the fish market waterfront in Southwest Washington is a food-buying adventure familiar to many Washingtonians. Economical, of course, is any transaction made there, but the picturesque masts and sails of the fish boats closely berthed there in the rippling Potomac are a background that adds richly to the value of the purchase, if the shopper is at all sensitive to his colorful surroundings.

The Meanderer writes this, however, not so much to dwell upon the lure of the fish wharf, where she admits having spent many delightful hours, but to give a suggestion to oyster shoppers. A seasoned oyster shopper, one of those who asks for an oyster to sample and knows from its taste about how far down the Potomac the oyster once lived, told the Meanderer that the salty tang so desirable in oysters can't be found less than 100 miles by water from Washington. "After you get 100 miles or so down the river the oysters begin to get really brackish," the seasoned oyster shopper said.

So, the Meanderer would gather that the oyster shopper should inquire first of the oyster monger how far has been his journey to Washington in his sloop, schooner or other carrier of the bivalves. If his cargo was gathered less than 100 miles away, therefore, he is not likely to guarantee the customer the required salty taste in his offerings.

The scarcity and resulting high price of alligator pears on the local market is grievous to those particularly fond of this most edible food. Hostesses who plan to serve them have substituted other things for alligator pears in their menus. This need not be necessary if the number of persons the hostess plans to serve is large enough to warrant a purchase of a small crate of the avocados. The Meanderer knows where a box of "nines," or very large, choice alligator pears, may be bought for $2.75. They are so large that each box contains only nine. Bought individually such large pears cost at least 50 cents each. The dealer who sells them for $2.75 a crate guarantees that they will keep at least two weeks. This value is interesting as compared with the pears not half so large selling at retail for 25 cents in most markets.

The market place selling the alligator pears also offers shelled black walnuts in five-pound lots at 22½ cents a pound. This discovery came, alas, after the Meanderer had just bought some black walnut meats for 30 cents a pound at what she thought was a remarkably low price!

Georgia cane sirup in cans containing more than two pounds is an excellent grade of sirup, according to the dealer in the Southwest market who sells it for 35 cents. This sirup should be a good maple sirup substitute in these days of careful food budgeting.

"Bronze" oranges, or the kind of Florida oranges with brownish skins, selling so cheaply in many fruit stands, are not necessarily inferior, one fruit marketer in the southwest told the Meanderer. The "bronzes," as he called them, are a good buy for their sweetness of taste, as well as their juice content. They sell regularly for 20 cents a dozen or two dozen for 35 cents in this fruit stand in Southwest Washington.

Another orange value two or more housewives might combine in taking advantage of is the purchase of a crate of 250 oranges for $2.50, with the price per orange very plain to see. The Meanderer will be glad to tell those who call The Washington Post, National 4205, extension 52, where this or any of the values mentioned in this column may be found.

Wood for fireplaces is a rarity in the food places the Meanderer visits, but at the farm-to-home market in Bethesda oak and maple logs are selling at $12 a cord, delivered anywhere within the District, and cut to suit the customer.

Small baskets of tomatoes weighing 5 pounds or more, known as "pans" in the marketer's language, cost as little as 50 cents a "pan" in one of the Meanderer's especial haunts in Southwest Washington. The 50-cent pans contain small tomatoes, but they are of good quality. Larger tomatoes in the same size baskets sell for from 60 to 75 cents and offer a saving over the usual price for smaller quantities.

"I had not heard of the place until I read about it in your column," a kind correspondent of the Meanderer writes, referring to a farm women's market described in the column recently. "All the food there looks so appetizing I feel I want to buy something of every one. We bought several things there—a most delicious chicken, chocolate cake, eggs, hominy, cottage cheese, &c."

And if the Meanderer may be pardoned for publishing the conclusion of the letter—"Your column gives us many pointers about unusual foods that give variety to menu." Thank you, Mrs. Wardman Park Hotel friend. The Meanderer always is gratified to receive such encouragement. Also, she is glad to receive criticism that may not be favorable. Suggestions, too, on material which might be used in this column are welcomed. Address the Market Meanderer, The Washington Post.

Strawberries at 20 cents a quart are an astounding value in January. In several retail fruit stands visited this price prevailed. It is probable that the favorable weather conditions for moving the berriess out of Florida has lowered the price asked locally.

Dalmatian cherries and large glace maraschinos are among the choice offerings in a stand selling fancy foods in the corner of a centrally located downtown market. Imperial prunes so large that they measure only 15 or 20 to a pound are among the dried fruits this corner offers, as are mission figs, dried pears and the choicest of dried apricots.

Telephone questions about Market Meanderings to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 52; or address the Market Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

IN the River Adda in Lombardy, a fisherman cast his net and drew back in it a strange object. Iron it was, and plated, one on the other. Yet fashioned so curiously, that he was impelled to ascertain its use or meaning.

And we hear that 'twas a gag, or muzzle, or mouthpiece, used to keep vituperous or scandalmongering or just plain chattering women mute! This in the Middle Ages, and in quite general use, too, in both France and Italy. The husband or father was the privileged operator of the gadjet—and there is no record of a man's having ever been subjected to this gentle manner of silence enforcement, you can bet your sweet waterwave!

Fact is, this agreeable little "baillon" was last used in Cheshire in 1824—or at least, that is the last time we hear of it until the appearance of the one in the fisherman's net. Whether there will be a revival, along with the other aspects of the mode—who knows? Many of us are resigned to the impossibility of such an occurrence, albeit a secret hope.

But I'll tell you one thing—an iron plated silencer would never have been put on a woman with a melodious voice! The harmony, the purity, the sheer beauty of a lovely voice has the effect of stopping chattering and bickering, anyhow. Tell me honestly—have you ever heard a beautiful voice raised in anger or click-splitting out staccato syllables or rage? Or gossiping unduly? When you stop to think of it, you realize that you never have. It is as though the possessor of such a voice values it and herself too much for such baseness.

Or, what do you think?

Would you like to know how to increase your wardrobe to three or four times its actual present size? Well, just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for this week's leaflet—and you will find out. Sounds like magazine subscriptions, doesn't it! But it is nothing as arduous. 'Tis just a lot of little hints all sorted out and pigeonholed, for keeping one's wardrobe in French-maid shape—thereby prolonging the life of each single thing at least three or four times. Which makes us increase our wardrobe to three or four times its size—now doesn't it? The many, many hints in this leaflet for keeping your clothes in perfect order are nothing that will take more than a few half hours a week—less time than you spend now, with far more results. Do send for this leaflet—you'll be glad!

Au revoir.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SIGNIFICANCE OF FEELING COLD.

THE human animal is far from being adapted to the temperatures in which he lives. He is able to adjust himself sufficiently well to prevent death from the excessive heat of summer and the frigid cold of winter, but he is not able to shield himself against much discomfort and some diseases which are the result of atmospheric changes.

It is generally accepted that man maintains his temperature steadily at approximately 98½ regardless of the weather and that never is there a fluctuation of a fraction of a degree. The fact is that the temperature of the human body fluctuates somewhat according to weather.

When a man says he feels cold he probably is cold. If the temperature of his skin is taken with an accurate instrument devised for recording accurately the temperature of exposed locations it will be found that he is several degrees below normal.

When a woman complains of cold feet the chances are strong that her feet are cold. Accurate measurements might show normal temperatures in the internal organs, but those of her feet would be much below normal.

The disease which reflects the influence of temperature more than any other is rheumatism. This is true of rheumatic fever, or acute inflammatory rheumatism, and it cousins the several kinds of chronic arthritis. If a person has any kind of a rheumatic pain close records of the temperature of his skin everywhere will show areas that are cold, however warm other areas may be.

The cold feet brigade is naturally built for the development of some of the rheumatic disorders and, somewhere along the way from the beginning to the end, they can expect to develop rheumatic pains or to get creaky in the joints.

For the relief of rheumatic discomforts nothing equals heat. That was the basis of the popularity of red flannel underwear, hot springs, and other heat cures.

A popular treatment for chronic arthritis just now is surgical. It consists in cutting certain nerves. By this procedure the cold, rheumatic feet and legs are kept in warm glow.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

DR. BUTLER DISOWNS THE BABY.
("Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler stated that Columbia had nothing to do with Technocracy, and had merely let the engineers have a room there when they had no other place to go."—News item.)

Of those Technocrats I'm guiltless,
I dislike this great furore;
All I know is that one morning
They were left outside my door.
I retired late one evening
Free from trouble and from care,
To discover in the morning
That the Technocrats were there!

II.

They were homeless, they were hungry,
In this big and cruel burg,
So I gave them food and lodging—
And they went and laid an "erg!"
Of their plans to save the Nation
My indorsement I withhold;
Where would Butler get new buildings
If they gave me joules for gold?

III.

Just a little room I gave them—
Just a room and nothing more;
Now I wonder, how I wonder,
What I ever did it for?
When they came they seemed so noiseless
That they cast a silence grand—
Now their statements fill the papers
And commotion fills the land!

IV.

Why, I hardly heard them working
For the first few weeks or so!
I'd forgotten all about 'em—
They were silent as the snow;
Suddenly I heard a babble
And a sound like crack o' doom—
And—gadzooks!—it was those tenants
Who had come with me to room!

V.

Life is full of such surprises,
Sudden shocks and things like that,
But the doings of those lodgers
Knocked your Uncle Nickie flat;
Never more will I be tender
When strange roomers come to me;
What does kindness ever get you?...
"Ergs" and "joules" and "energy!"

ADD SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT.

New York theaters have cut the top price to musical shows as low as $2.75. It is now almost possible to see one without adopting a financing plan.

THE OLD STAND-BYS.

America apparently never tires of Miss America contests, Amos 'n' Andy and the annual story that Babe Ruth will quit baseball rather than take another salary cut.

Why is it that the pictures of those Florida bathing girls look the same every January, except possibly a little dumber?

"Huey Long Ties Up Senate."—Headline. If only the Senate would tie up Huey Long!

FROM THE HEART.

Gene Sarazen has had his tonsils removed. At least he thinks he has. This department's sincere hope is that, as is so commonly done, the surgeon didn't miss the tonsils and take a mere divot. (Editor's note: Mr. Phillips had his second set of tonsils out recently.)

Expert Discusses Children's Types

Two Out of Five Classes Need Help in Studies, Dr. Lewis Says.

Out of the five types of children found in the average elementary school, two of them need special attention in the completion of their studies, a group of educational workers were told yesterday by Dr. Nolan D. C. Lewis, of St Elizabeths Hospital, at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Frank Frost, 2601 Thirteenth street northwest.

Dr. Lewis classed the children as follows: The queer child, who lives a life apart and is seldom understood; the child with neurotic tendencies; the average child; the ambitious child with good social adjustments, and the shy, silent, retiring child.

The first and last of this classification need special help if they are to be useful citizens, Dr. Lewis pointed out.

"A child's fears are his greatest enemies," Dr. Lewis declared. "Fear is the curse of the human race and should be driven from the small child's mind."

Wampler Posts Bond On Tax-Evasion Count

Surrendering voluntarily yesterday to local authorities, T. Morris Wampler, attorney, yesterday posted a $10,000 bond with United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage to insure his presence in Baltimore when he is wanted for trial there.

Mr. Wampler was indicted in Baltimore on charges of evading income taxes for 1930 and 1931. A hearing was set for Friday on a request to take the lawyer to Baltimore for trial in the Federal court there.

Politicians Termed Devoid of Courage

Tax Authority Speaks at Georgetown Citizens' Meeting.

Politicians are as bankrupt of courage as the Nation is financially, Hugh C. Bickford, author of "Court Procedure in Federal Tax Cases," declared in discussing taxes and Government finances last night before the Georgetown Citizens Association.

He explained there are only two ways to finance the Government—taxation and the floating of bonds. Last year, he continued, more than half of the money expended by the Federal Government was obtained through the sale of bonds. The speaker offered no solutions for Government financing, but stated that it was obvious that economies were needed.

The association adopted a resolution asking that the dangerous corner at Thirty-first and Q streets northwest be straightened. It withdrew its request for more patrolmen at the Seventh Precinct after being informed that new policemen would have to be added to the Metropolitan force.

BROWN MINIMIZES 'CRIME WAVE' AND POINTS TO RECORDS

Cites Housebreakings Drop From Last Year; Murder Suspect Is Arrested.

The existence of a crime wave in the Capital was denied last night by Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown, who described the extraordinary protective measures invoked in the last few days as a "preventive measure" rather than an acknowledgment of a crime wave.

"Our experience has been," he said, "that when a crime has been committed which has attracted wide attention such as the pay roll holdup and murder near the House Office Building, that two or three similar crimes follow close upon it.

"With this thought in mind, the additional men were placed on patrol to prevent such a series. So far, we have been fairly successful, not only in the matter of prevention, but in the solution of the crimes which have occurred."

The records for the first 23 days of January, compared with similar records of last year, show very favorably, he said. He cited records showing that housebreakings dropped from 198 to 187 for this year; grand larcenies dropped from 61 to 39 for this year; stolen automobiles dropped slightly from 228 for last year to 224 for this year; robberies increased this year from 64 to 74, and larcenies from automobiles increased from 87 to 127.

Crimes reported for January 14 were 48 compared to 30 reported for last Saturday, while Sunday's crime increased to 36 as compared with 22 for Sunday, January 15. The total for last week-end was two less than reported the previous week-end.

Suspect Arrested.

Meanwhile, the Detective Bureau continued its search for the accomplice of George McK. Pittman, 33, colored, who has confessed the murder of William Simms, colored watchman, during the safe-blowing at the Dickey & Sons feed and coal establishment at Benning early Sunday.

The implement used in the crushing of Simms' skull was found by Eleventh Precinct police. It is a combination hammer and punch, which might have been used in the safe-blowing.

Early today, Baltimore detectives arrested Lewis K. Green, 28 years old, of 156 Lexington avenue, that city, who is being held on suspicion that he may be the man who accompanied Pittman in the safe robbery and killing. The arrest was made on the basis of a lookout given to the Baltimore police on Sunday night, they reported.

Within 60 hours of the slaying of Edward Ecklund, paymaster of the Browning Paint Co., in an attempt to rob him of a $2,000 pay roll, the District Grand Jury had begun an investigation of the web of evidence.

Investigation Complete.

If the grand jury returns an indictment—the investigation was completed yesterday—a return will be made to Chief Justice A. A. Wheat in District Supreme Court tomorrow.

Claude Myers, 28, and Sewell Workman, 23, both colored, and Albert E. Cash, 20, and Everett Blackwell, 22, will be investigated in connection with first-degree murder charges. Oscar Cash and Clyde E. Templeton are being accused as accessories after the fact.

A colored man, identifying himself as Frank King, 20, of 2050 Eighth street northwest, was held by police last night on charges of assault and possessing a dangerous weapon, following his alleged attempt to hold up Washington Railway bus terminal at 2040 Georgia avenue northwest with an ice pick.

When the man entered the terminal, H. L. Bride, of Brentwood, Md., manager, asked him what he wanted. The man is said to have pulled the ice pick. Several drivers rushed to the manager's assistance and subdued the man.

Woman's Purse Snatched.

The purse of Mrs. Jennie Steinley, of 1006 M street northwest, containing about $27, was snatched late yesterday by a thief who sneaked up behind her as she was walking near her home. She was carrying the purse beneath her arm and the thief grabbed it and fled so quickly that Mrs. Steinley was unable to obtain a description.

Alleged to have snatched the watch of R. W. Champion, of 1513 Four-and-a-half street southwest, after requesting the time, Joseph Hornsby, 23, of Shelby, N. C., was held by police last night for investigation. The man was seized by Lester Erheret, a watchman at the Municipal Wood Yard, who saw the watch-snatching.

District Drys to Testify At House Hearing Today

District drys, who Sunday expressed themselves in unqualified opposition to a local beer bill at a public mass meeting, will testify before the House District judiciary subcommittee at 10 a. m. today on the Black 3.2 per cent beer-for-revenue bill.

Witnesses representing the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be the first on the stand. District wets will conclude their case before the subcommittee at final hearings Thursday. The subcommittee is expected to order a favorable report on the bill.

EAT BEANS AND LIKE THEM

Celebrating their third birthday yesterday, the Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade under command of Lieut. Col. J. J. Staley, threw themselves a bean dinner at the Marine Barracks, where generals and privates alike ate—beans. Upper—Even generals like beans; sometimes. Left to right—Brig. Gen. Hugh Matthews is just elevating a fork full of beans; Maj. Lucien Van Doren has finished a second helping; Maj. Gen. Ben C. Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, still "rolls his own," and Representative Melvin Maas, of Minnesota, a major in the reserve, enjoys an after-dinner smoke. Lower—Good noncommissioned officers also like beans. Left to right—Sergt. Maj. Harry Volkman, First Sergt. H. W. Warner, Sergt. Maj. O. C. Brown and Gunnery Sergt. L. W. Berry.

JUDGE MATTINGLY IN FAVOR OF BOXING

Tells Mid-City Citizens It Is Not Half as Dangerous as Football.

Stating that boxing in the schools would be a healthy, educational and diverting sport, Judge Robert Mattingly of Police Court told members of the Mid-City Citizens Association at their meeting last night at the Thomson School that preventative measures through education should be taken against crime, and added that criminals should be given speedy trial.

In reference to boxing, Judge Mattingly said that the sport is "not half so disgraceful or dangerous as football games."

He asserted "the courts delay too long in trying murderers and we hang and electrocute too few." Speaking about the functions of courts in meting out justice, especially in a murder trial, he said that speedy action is desirable to suppress crime.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who also spoke, stated that the type of men on the local department and the scientific methods used made the organization one of the best in the world.

Policeman Henry Nestor, the "singing cop," gave several vocal selections. He was accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth Combs. Capt. Edward Kelly of the Third Precinct addressed the group. A. J. Driscoll, president of the association, presided.

$10,000 Requested For Viaduct Study

Gambrill Wants B. & O. Tracks Bridged to Shorten Route.

Appropriation of $10,000 to be immediately available for a study of a viaduct or bridge over the tracks of the metropolitan branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, was asked of the House District appropriations subcommittee yesterday by a delegation headed by Representative Gambrill (Democrat), Maryland.

The viaduct would permit extension of New Hampshire avenue. It would make possible a shorter route to Baltimore, as Maryland authorities already have promised to provide a connection with the Maryland road system. United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage was among those who spoke in favor of the project.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, emphasized the need for a long-time construction program for the District, so that one project would not compete with another at annual appropriation hearings. The New Hampshire avenue program has been under consideration for 20 years.

POSTAL JOB STRIKE AGREEMENT SOUGHT

Labor Unit Is Hearing Cases of Hoisting Engineers and Steamfitters.

An accord between hoisting engineers and teamfitters, whose dispute over the jurisdiction of a motor generator has placed 500 workers on the new Postoffice Building into enforced idleness, is being sought by the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, which is hearing the cases presented by the International Union of Operative Engineers and the United Association of Steamfitters and Plumbers.

That there is a likelihood that the electricians might join the strike was belittled last night by Samuel Terry, business agent of the electricians' union. "This is a jurisdictional matter between the steamfitters and the hoisting engineers. The electricians are not yet in the picture and I don't believe they will be. The electricians have always maintained the electric generators and I don't think their jurisdiction in this work will be questioned."

There were no indications as to when a settlement between the hoisting engineers and steamfitters would be effected. The steamfitters are now operating the motor generators, while the hoisting engineers claim they have jurisdiction in what they describe as a "power plant." The steamfitters base their claim to operate the generators on the fact that the apparatus is used for current to operate a welding machine for pipes.

The fifteen hoisting engineers were called off the job on Friday, and 500 men, whose work is dependent upon the hoisting engineers to provide materials, have been forced to cease labor.

2 Suicide Certificates Are Issued by Coroner

Suicide certificates were issued by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald in the deaths of Mrs. Beulah Weeks, found shot through the head in her apartment at 1812 K street northwest, and William Powell, who died from poison at Emergency Hospital. Both deaths were Sunday.

Mrs. Weeks will be buried tomorrow at Cedar Hill Cemetery, following funeral services at 11 a. m. at Chamber's funeral parlors. She was a War Department clerk. Mr. Powell, a native of Washington and a graduate of Georgetown University Law School, was credit manager of a New York clothing concern.

Holy Name Officers To Be Named Tonight

The Washington section of the Holy Name Society will hold its quarterly meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in St. Martin's School. Officers will be elected.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of this diocese, will be present and is expected to address the meeting.

$800 Jewel Loot Saved by Arrest

But Greek Bonds, Stolen in Same Robbery, Are Still Missing.

Most of the jewelry, valued at about $800, stolen from Aleck Cochinos, 1005 Ninth street northwest, was recovered by police yesterday, but Greek bonds, valued at 15,000 francs, are still missing.

The Cochinos apartment was looted Sunday night while the family was visiting on an upper floor.

Patrolmen R. E. Williams and E. G. Warren, who remembered seeing a colored man carrying several boxes on Ninth street near that address, yesterday arrested William Ward, alias Jones, 38, colored, of 836 O street northwest. All the jewelry except a diamond bracelet was recovered.

HOUSE BODY URGED TO GIVE P.U.C. MORE TAXI RULE POWERS

Another Group Fights Move to Put In Meters; Keech Presents Figures.

Greater power for the Public Utilities Commission in taxicab regulation, to "put an end to the present distressing and demoralizing condition," yesterday was asked of the House District Appropriations subcommittee by the citizens' join transportation committee.

At the same time People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech and representatives of the District Federation of Citizens Associations asked the subcommittee to continue another year its limitation of the Public Utilities Commission's authority to require installation of taxicab meters.

Representative Thomas Blanton (Democrat), Texas, at whose instance the prohibition was originally put in the bill, told the citizens he was in favor of retaining it. Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, is another subcommittee member who stands with him.

"Growing Menace" Cited.

Led by Thomas P. Littlepage, the Citizens Joint Transportation Committee outlined the "growing menace of the taxicab to life, limb and property," and urged the need for a property financial responsibility law, to be put into effect by the Public Utilities Commission.

The Littlepage delegation outlined four reasons why they hold taxicabs contribute to the "chaotic condition of public transportation." It was charged that through various subterfuges, cabs are now rented by drivers, despite a commission order prohibiting it. To make any net earnings, it was charged, cabs have to be driven at excessive rates of speed, and drivers have to drive in such a state of fatigue as to encourage accidents. Further, it was argued, cutthroat competition has reduced maintenance work on taxicabs to an unsafe limit.

Mileage Figures Presented.

Peoples' Counsel Keech told the subcommittee that any change in the present system would be bad from the standpoint that it would throw many men out of work. He presented figures showing that, based on mileage, taxicabs have about the same accident ratio as passenger cars.

Representing the Federation of Citizens Associations, George E. Sullivan, William McK. Clayton and E. H. Young, opposed striking the prohibition on metered taxicab operation from the 1934 District bill.

Holaday Attacks Taxicab Reduction

Citizens' Spokesmen Says New Rules Would Add to Joblessness.

In an address to members of the North Capitol Citizens Association last night Representative William P. Holaday, of Illinois, and member of the District Committee, spoke in behalf of Washington taxicab operators and stated that any legislation enacted to reduce their operations would be of serious consequence.

Holaday further stated that he would fight vigorously the proposed bill now before the House, which would drastically reduce taxicab operations here. Besides reducing the number of taxicabs now in operation to one-third their present number, he said, the enactment of this bill would create a serious unemployment problem in Washington. The association will bring the matter up for immediate action at the next meeting.

First Vice President B. J. McGuirl, in behalf of the association, indorsed the action taken by the Federation of Citizens Associations in disapproving acquisition of Hoover Airport on the grounds of excess taxation and the highly assessed valuation of the property.

First Concert Tonight By Interstate Chorus

The Interstate Male Chorus, conducted by Clyde B. Aitchison, will present the first concert of their thirteenth season tonight at Memorial Hall.

Included in the program are "Sunrise" by Podbertsky, "The Broken Melody" by Sibelius and "Soumi's Song" by Franz Mair.

LIFE ON A WINDOW LEDGE

The title of this picture might be "Home Sweet Home on a Window Ledge." Unnoticed by anyone a pigeon laboriously carried wisps of straw gathered from the busy streets to a window ledge on the third floor of The Washington Post Building and laid two eggs. Yesterday two little squabs picked their way into the sunlight and their mother flew away to obtain food for two hungry mouths. A rather precarious perch for youngsters, but still—home.

AID ASKED OF HOUSE BY IDLE SINGLE MEN

Meanwhile, Senate Is Told of New Transient Army on Move.

A delegation of local unemployed single men yesterday appeared before the House District appropriations subcommittee with a petition asking Congress to remove the present charity restrictions on dispensing relief to unmarried needy males.

Accompanied by the Rev. John A. Ryan and the Rev. R. A. McGowan, of the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Council, the delegation outlined the dire plight of local single men who are in need, but are not provided for under the present relief system.

The delegation earlier made representations to Vice President Curtis.

Meanwhile, Miss Grace Abbott, of the United States Children's Bureau, told the Senate Manufacturers subcommittee that a new army of transients is moving across the country, kept on the go by inadequate local relief funds.

Testifying on the Cutting bill to provide $15,000,000 to help States and the District in solution of the transient problem, suggested a movement to keep transients where they are "and not push them on."

Closing of Repair Shops Is Attacked

Trinidad Citizens Protest to House Members and Commissioners.

Declaring that the proposed closing of the District repair shops would throw 600 men out of work and perhaps delay repairs on schools and other municipal buildings, the Trinidad Citizens Association last night addressed letters of protest to the House District Committee and the District Commissioners.

The association, which met at the home of its president, George J. Cleary, also adopted a motion asking the commissioners to authorize the burning of street lights for an additional half-hour of mornings "in view of the recent crime wave." The commissioner's attention was also called to the use of a vacant lot on Eames place between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets for the abandonment of automobiles creating a fire hazard.

Motions asking the Director of Traffic to establish a pedestrian safety aisle at Fifteenth and H streets and for the placing of traffic signal lights at H street and Eleventh and Fifteenth streets also were voted favorably.

SOUTHWEST GROUP SEES STREET PERIL

Dangerous Corners and Sale of School Property Are Dinner Subjects.

School and playground development, restoration of the Fourth precinct and elimination of dangerous conditions at a number of intersections in the Southwest section, were urged by the Southwest Business Men's Association at a dinner meeting last night at Roland's Restaurant, 420 Seventh street southwest.

The association will ask that the proceeds from the sale of the site of the old Potomac School, on Twelfth street between D and E streets southwest, be used for school and playground development. The District Commissioners have asked Congress for authority to sell the property.

Intersections characterized as exceedingly dangerous were those at Fourteenth and Water streets, Tenth street and Maryland avenue, Sixth street and Maryland avenue and Seventh and C streets, all in southwest. A committee was appointed to cooperate with one representing the Southwest Citizens Association, to consider a new name for Four and One-Half Street.

The following new officers were elected: William E. Miller, president; Charles P. W. Fiske, vice president; Percy C. Brady, secretary, and Joseph P. Burke, treasurer. John N. Auth, Mr. Burke, and Frank A. Johnson were reelected members of the executive committee. Inspector Albert J. Headley, and Capt. Milton D. Smith, of the Traffic Bureau, who were guests, spoke on conditions in the southwest section.

Alexandria Couple Wins Damage Suit for $8,000

A jury in District Supreme Court yesterday returned a verdict giving $8,000 to Mr. and Mrs. George Ettleman, of Alexandria, for injuries the wife suffered on May 7, 1930, when she was struck by a truck operated by an agent for Gus Eichberg, an auctioneer.

Through Attorneys Welch, Daily & Welch and Emmett L. Sheehan, Mrs. Ettleman testified she was struck by the truck while she was crossing at Four-and-a-half and E streets southwest. She testified that when a child was born to her several months after the accident she was still in a plaster cast. The husband received $2,000 for expenses and the wife was given $6,000.

360 Days Meted Witness Slapper

Coal Larceny Charge Will Revived at End of Man's Term.

Because he slapped the complaining witness in court after the witness, Clifford Gill, had testified that he had stolen a bag of coal, James Webster, colored, will have to spend the next 360 days in jail. Judge Isaac R. Hitt sentenced Webster after being told that he had slapped Gill as they were emerging from the probation officer's office in Police Court.

At his trial for stealing the coal, Webster appeared so nervous his case was referred to the probation officer and he appeared well on the way to a probationary sentence when he took matters into his own hands and gave Gill a resounding slap. Assistant United States Attorney Milford Schwartz immediately made out an assault case and Webster was found guilty.

On the coal larceny charge sentence is being reserved until later.

Methodist Board Sued By Worker for Slander

The Board of Temperance, Phohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church South and Edward Drake, jr., general office and building manager of that organization, were named defendants in a $10,000 slander suit filed in District Supreme Court yesterday.

Joseph Wilkinson, of 3328 N street northwest, who filed the suit, claimed he had been slandered when he was wrongfully accused of taking some objects from the board's building at 100 Maryland avenue northeast. Attorney Louis L. Litt represented Wilkinson, who described himself as a carpenter who was working on the building.

COMMITTEE STAYS HOSTILE TO CUPOLA DESPITE PROTESTS

Members of House District Body Are Not Impressed by Delegations.

Members of the House District appropriations subcommittee yesterday listened to a long train of witnesses favoring erection of a cupola on the new Taft Junior High School, but apparently were not swayed from their announced intention of proposing legislation to forestall its construction.

Following the hearing, Chairman Clarence Cannon said he knew of no one of the five members of the subcommittee who had changed his mind on the question.

Kenneth Armstrong, of the Burroughs Citizens Association; E. G. Sievers, of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association, and others collaborated in the filing of a brief, arguing the legal right of the community to a junior high school with a cupola.

Question Authority.

The delegation contends the matter is now outside the jurisdiction of the committee, inasmuch as the appropriation for the school has already been made, without any restriction on the proposed adornment.

As the cupola was included in the design approved by the Fine Arts Commission, and the Commissioners promised citizens last October the cupola would be built, and as there are adequate appropriations for its construction, they argued the committee has no legal right to prohibit erection of the cupola at this time.

Tells of Agreement.

Chairman Cannon said there was a "gentleman's agreement" with the Commissioners, that if the Macfarland Junior High School was not set up as a model for all future junior high school structures, such unnecessary "doodads" would not be added. Further, he pointed out, the contractor's estimate for the cupola, originally placed at $3,800, has been boosted to $10,000.

Although appropriations for the school are already available, Chairman Cannon said the subcommittee can write a restriction in the 1934 District bill, prohibiting use of any of the appropriated funds for construction of the cupola.

$10,000 Asked for Boy For His Auto Injuries

Antonio Mosca, of 119 D street northwest, yesterday, on behalf of his minor son, Joseph, filed suit against the Standard Tire & Battery Co., 935 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, in District Supreme Court.

Through Attorney Jacob N. Halper, Mr. Mosca asks for $10,000 damages because he alleges, his son was struck by a truck of the tire company and was badly hurt. The accident occurred last November.
